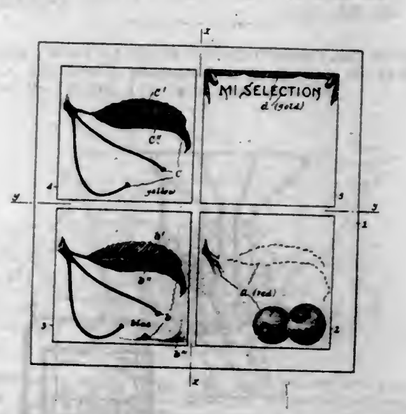
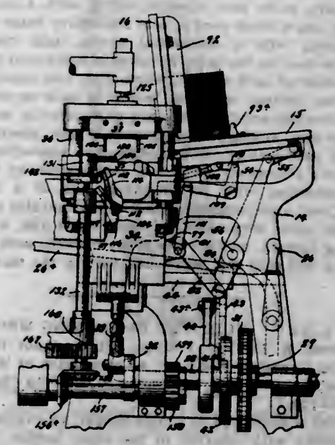
A clip for spacing freshly painted or enameled window screens, which is bent to shape from a single piece of relatively rigid metal and has legs spaced apart a greater distance than the thickness of the screen frames, which legs extend downward from substantially horizontal sections that are joined by an upwardly extending handle loop.



1,681,926. HEAT TRANSFER. JOHN E. BELL, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Foster Wheeler Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 17, 1923. Serial No. 663,107. 7 Claims. (Cl. 257—1.)

1. The method of effecting a heat transfer between two fluids at different temperatures which consists in passing a fluid heat transfer medium along a path of flow including a portion in which said medium absorbs heat from the hotter of the two first mentioned fluids and a portion in which said medium imparts heat to the cooler of the two first mentioned fluids, and dividing the fluid heat transfer medium into a multiplicity of fine streams of predetermined fineness in each of said portions.



1,681,927. ART OF PRODUCING PRINTED PICTURES IN COLORS. LOUIS W. BLISS, Paterson, N. J. Filed July 6, 1927. Serial No. 203,758. 2 Claims. (Cl. 101—211.)

1. The hereindescribed method of producing surfaces for printing a picture illustrative of objects appearing in several colors which consists in preparing, in separate fields of a single surface and in contrast therewith, original images of the respective areas to be occupied by the different colors to be present in such picture, then preparing a single photographic negative of all the images while preserving said surface intact, and then preparing the surfaces for the printing from such negative.

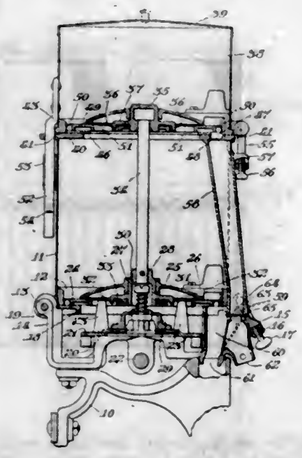
1,681,928. BLANKING AND TRANSFERRING MECHANISM FOR BOX-MAKING MACHINES. ORPH W. COWGILL, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to St. Louis Label Works, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Original application filed Jan. 19, 1923, Serial No. 613,632. Divided and this application filed Aug. 10, 1925. Serial No. 49,418. 15 Claims. (Cl. 93—58.)

3. A blank cutting mechanism for box making machines comprising a stationary die member, a punch member mounted above and cooperating therewith, and means yieldingly mounted in said stationary die member for yieldingly supporting the material at a plurality of points above the face of and in spaced relation with said stationary die member.

1,681,929. MIXED-BEVERAGE-VENDING APPARATUS. WILLIAM C. DE ARMOND and WILLIAM RAY H. WATT, Philadelphia, Pa., assignors to Gravity Carbonator Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 27, 1925. Serial No. 18,653. 11 Claims. (Cl. 225—21.)



5. In a device of the character stated, a door, a serving platform adapted to receive a receptacle, a discharging nozzle above and in vertical alignment with the receptacle, means to retain said door in a locked position with the platform free, and means actuated by the weight of the liquid in the receptacle for releasing said locking means.

7. In a device of the character stated, a control valve having a casing, a stationary valve face carried by said casing, a rotatable valve disc mounted in said casing, and having a movable valve face juxtaposed to said stationary face, a port in said stationary valve face communicating with a source of carbonating gas supply, a port in said stationary valve face, communicating with a carbonating battery and a third port in said stationary valve face communicating with a measuring device, said three ports being located on the same circle with respect to the center of rotation of said movable valve disc, and equally spaced from the central port, two ports in said movable valve face, interconnected within said valve disc by means of a passage-way, adapted to connect said first mentioned stationary port with either one of the two succeeding stationary ports alternately, a port in said stationary valve face communicating with the discharge end of a measuring device, and a corresponding port in the movable valve face, an axial valve stem carried by said valve disc, a discharge opening therein, and a passageway between said discharge opening and said last mentioned port in the movable disc.

1,681,930. MULTIPLE DISPENSING MECHANISM. SAMUEL K. DENNIS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to International Harvester Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 27, 1926. Serial No. 91,010. 13 Claims. (Cl. 221—122.)

1. The combination of a main hopper, an auxiliary hopper superposed with relation to the main hopper, dispensing mechanism in each hopper, a discharge chute in communication with each dispensing mechanism, means for driving both dispensing mechanisms, and means for mounting the auxiliary hopper so that it may be bodily lifted to disconnect the drive for its dispensing mechanism and thereafter swung aside so as to uncover the main hopper and permit access thereto.

8. The combination of a main hopper, an auxiliary hopper superposed with relation to the main hopper, dispensing mechanism in each hopper, a discharge chute for each dispensing mechanism, means for driving both dispensing mechanisms, and means for mounting the auxiliary hopper so that it may be bodily lifted to disconnect the drive for its dispensing mechanism and thereafter moved so as to uncover the main hopper without tipping the auxiliary hopper.

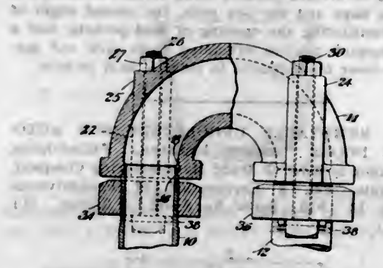
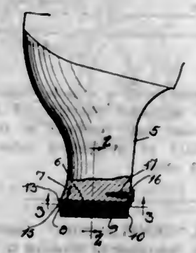
1,681,931. BALANCE ARM FOR WINDOWS. EDWARD H. ELLISON, Jamestown, N. Y., assignor to Austral Window Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Jan. 27, 1925. Serial No. 5,035. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—40.)



1. A balance arm for windows formed up from a single sheet of stampable material comprising a central portion, intermediate portions, and end portions, the central and intermediate portions being channeled in cross sections, in combination with companion end portions secured, respectively, to the outer ends of the intermediate portion and cooperating with the aforesaid end portions to provide a means for attaching sash bolts.

1,681,932. METHOD OF MANUFACTURING BALANCE ARMS FOR WINDOWS. EDWARD H. ELLISON, Jamestown, N. Y., assignor to Austral Window Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Jan. 27, 1925. Serial No. 5,034. 14 Claims. (Cl. 29—148.)

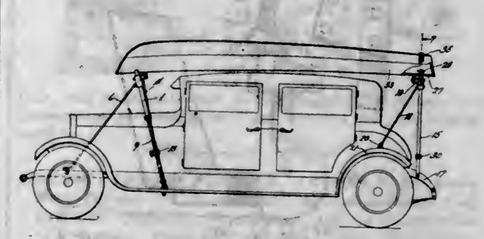


1. The method of manufacturing a balance arm for windows which consists in cutting a flat blank from the raw stock, subjecting said blank to a pressing operation to effect a formed-up arm channeled in cross section, subjecting said formed-up arm to a punching operation to provide its center and ends with pivot holes, and also subjecting the formed-up arm to a second forming operation to square the edges at the center thereof.

1,681,933. RETURN BEND. JAMES P. FISHER, Bartlesville, Okla., assignor to Doherty Research Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 20, 1920. Serial No. 375,213. 1 Claim. (Cl. 285—20.)

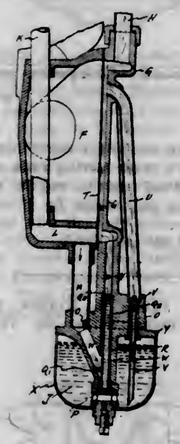
A return bend for pipe stills having a curved body forming a conduit, the ends of said conduit lying substantially in a given plane, a pair of apertured lugs fixed to said body near each end thereof, the lugs of each pair lying on opposite sides of the respective ends of the bend and having their apertures closely adjacent the respective mouths of the conduit, said lugs of each pair extending in a straight line along the body of the bend and a pronounced shoulder on the outer surface of the body of the bend connecting the lugs of each pair at their ends remote from the mouths of said conduit.

1,681,934. SHOE HEEL. ROBERT FULLI, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 21, 1927. Serial No. 234,719. 1 Claim. (Cl. 36—36.)



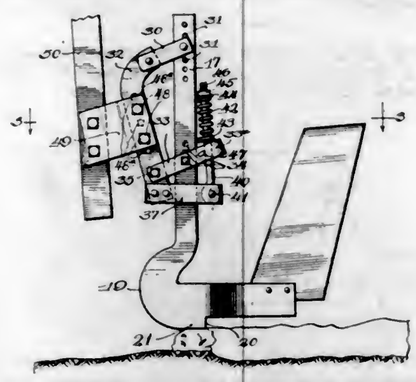
In a shoe heel, a main plate adapted to be nailed to the bottom of a heel body and having an apertured flange forming an open-front guideway on its under side, and a tread lift carrying plate removably slidably fitted in said guideway and having tongues on the side and rear edges thereof adapted to enter the apertures of the flange and to be clinched at the outer side of the latter.

1,681,935. JORDAN ENGINE. HERMAN R. HARRIGAN, Holyoke, Mass., assignor to E. D. Jones & Sons Co., Pittsfield, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed May 11, 1926. Serial No. 108,437. 10 Claims. (Cl. 92—27.)



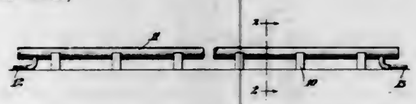
1. In a refining engine, a shell provided with grinding bars extending the length of the shell, other grinding bars shorter than the shell and extending to one end thereof and located between the longer bars, filler blocks separating certain of the bars, the ends of the shorter bars being acutely bevelled in the direction of the passage of stock through the shell, a core or plug cooperating with the shell, and means for effecting a relative adjustment of the core and shell.

1,681,936. BOAT CARRIER FOR AUTOMOBILES. GOLDEN A. HILLSTROM, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 30, 1927. Serial No. 222,988. 11 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)



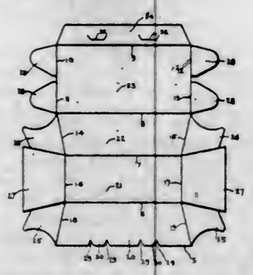
1. Means for supporting a boat on an automobile, comprising a pair of inverted U-shaped risers respectively secured to forward and rear portions of the automobile and both extending above the automobile, means for securing the top of one riser to a single point on the boat, the other riser having its bight disposed for supporting two opposite edge portions of the boat, and means associated with the last named riser for clamping the boat to the latter.

1,681,937. VAPORIZING DEVICE. GEORGE M. HOLLEY, Detroit, Mich. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 751,819. 2 Claims. (Cl. 261—13.)



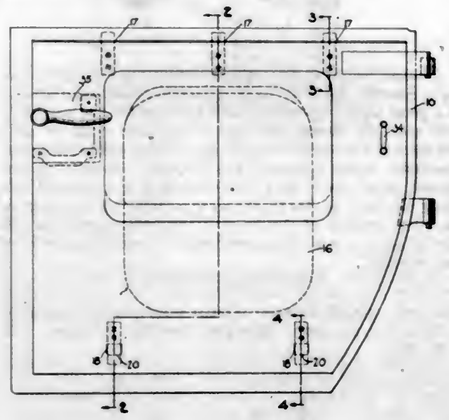
2. A vaporizing device adapted for use in conjunction with an internal combustion engine, comprising an exhaust manifold having an opening therein, a vaporizing element located in said opening, a cover for said vaporizing element, a conduit communicating with the atmosphere leading to said vaporizing element, a fuel nozzle discharging into said conduit, a vapor outlet from said conduit located in said cover, an additional air passage, a fuel nozzle discharging therein, said passage having an outlet located in said cover adjacent said outlet from said vaporizing element, means for delaying the discharge of said second fuel nozzle until the depression in said vapor outlet reaches a predetermined minimum depression.

1,681,938. RUNNER OPENER. LEE H. KAUPKE, Rock Island, Ill., assignor to Rock Island Plow Company, Rock Island, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 14, 1925. Serial No. 56,142. 9 Claims. (Cl. 97—112.)



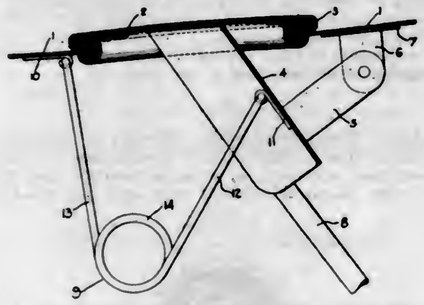
1. A runner opener adapted for attachment to a planter, comprising a single vertically disposed standard and supporting means therefor, a horizontally disposed member connected therewith provided with a sharpened blade forming a skag, the extreme lower sharpened edge of said skag being substantially in vertical alinement with said standard and the point of connection with its supporting means.

1,681,939. TUNNEL KILN. JAMES KELLEHER, Chippawa, Ontario, Canada, assignor to Harper Electric Furnace Corporation, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 17, 1925. Serial No. 44,184. 4 Claims. (Cl. 25—142.)



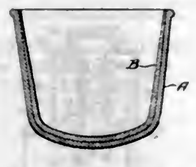
1. In a tunnel kiln means for conveying material therethrough comprising a track having rails composed of hollow tube sections fitted end to end in abutting contact to form a continuous rail, means for circulating a cooling medium in one direction through said tube sections, and a carrier supported by said track.

1,681,940. BOX. JAMES G. LANDER, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Dec. 18, 1925. Serial No. 76,247. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—33.)



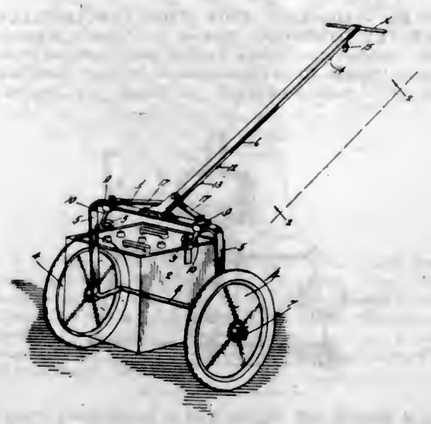
A non-folding box composed of a single piece of material, having a bottom, inwardly tapered ends and sides extending therefrom, a top extending from the rear side, a flap joining the front edge of the top, flaps extending from both sides over-lapping each other and the ends, the upper edges of the flaps being inwardly curved, staples extending through the over-lapped portions of said flaps, a pair of divided pockets being formed at each end between the flaps and the box ends, the curved edges of said flaps facilitating the opening of said pockets, and a pair of separated tongues extending from each end portion of the cover for lodgment in pairs of said pockets.

1,681,941. REMOVABLE UPHOLSTERY FOR AUTOMOBILE DOORS. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edw. G. Budd Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 13, 1925. Serial No. 8,902. 3 Claims. (Cl. 296—44.)



1. The combination with a vehicle door body having a plurality of slots arranged therein, of a substantially flat upholstery frame unit resilient in its entirety and carrying a plurality of projecting tabs or tangs inserted within said slots.

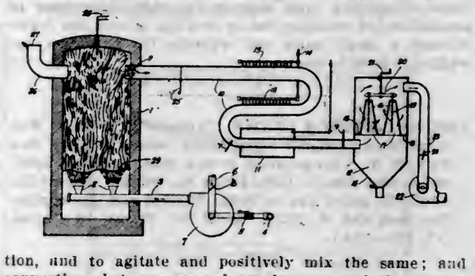
1,681,942. COWL VENTILATOR. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 20, 1926. Serial No. 149,705. 6 Claims. (Cl. 98—2.)



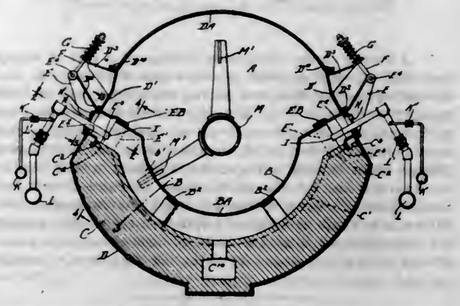
5. In combination, an automobile body panel of sheet metal having a ventilator opening therein, a rubber gasket enclosing within the body of its cross section the edges of said opening and supported in position by virtue of such enclosure, together with a cover for said opening arranged to bear upon said gasket in closed position.

1,681,943. LADLE LINING. JAMES V. MARSHALL, New Castle, Pa., assignor to New Castle Refractories Company, New Castle, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 18, 1925. Serial No. 76,185. 4 Claims. (Cl. 22—81.)

1. A ladle lining comprising a cup-shaped body of hardened refractory material adapted to be inserted in and form a lining for a molten metal holding ladle.



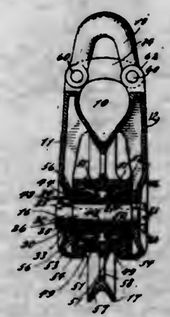
1,681,944. TRUCK FOR STORAGE BATTERIES. THOMAS MARSHALL, Jr., Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 5, 1926. Serial No. 127,290. 6 Claims. (Cl. 214—65.5.)



1 A two-wheeled truck for handling an object having a pair of laterally spaced portions formed to be gripped, comprising a rigid frame of inverted U-shaped vertical section consisting of a horizontal top bar and a pair of depending arms spaced by a distance greater than the object, two wheels respectively journaled to the two arms on a common axis disposed for supporting the frame with the said top bar higher than the spaced portions of the object; a tongue secured to the middle of the top bar and extending rearward transversely of the top bar; a pair of hook members slidably mounted on the top bar at opposite sides of the tongue and depending from the tongue, the top bar and the hook members being formed for preventing rotation of the hook members about the top bar; a control member mounted on the tongue for slidable movement longitudinally of the latter, a pair of links directly connecting the forward end of the control member with the hook members, and a handle on the control member adjacent to the free end of the tongue for manipulating the control member.

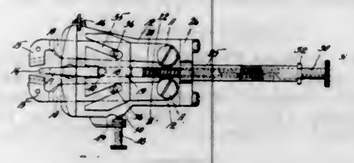
1,681,945. APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING CARBON. CHAUNCEY MATLOCK, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Monroe-Louisiana Carbon Company, Monroe, La., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Jan. 5, 1921. Serial No. 435,071. Divided and this application filed June 11, 1923. Serial No. 644,722. 5 Claims. (Cl. 134—60.)

1. In an apparatus for separating and recovering carbon black from a hydrocarbon gas, the combination of a furnace; gas burners positioned within said furnace; a gas mixing machine adapted to receive gas and air in proportional quantities insufficient for complete combustion, and to agitate and positively mix the same; and connections between several gas burners and the mixing machine.



1,681,946. RETORT FURNACE. CHARLES V. MCINTIRE, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Consolidated Coal Products Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 15, 1924. Serial No. 726,217. 10 Claims. (Cl. 202—9.)

1. A horizontally disposed retort comprising a bottom part of refractory material having a trough shaped upper surface with transverse grooves formed therein, a metallic lining for said surface formed of arc shaped sections of inverted trough shape in transverse section, with the outer edges of the trough sides received in said grooves, and means for passing heating gases through the flue spaces formed within said sections above said surface.



1,681,947. SHEAVE BLOCK. JAMES M. MEANY and HOWARD D. NORRIS, Portland, Oreg., assignors to Lidgerwood Manufacturing Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 12, 1926. Serial No. 141,055. 15 Claims. (Cl. 254—192.)

1. In a sheave block, side frames, an axle member secured to one of said frames and provided at its free end with lugs, the other side frame being provided with lugs cooperating with those of the axle and also provided with an opening through which the lugs of said axle are received, the engaging faces of the lugs of said axle and those of the side frame comprising cams whereby the side frames may be assembled and disassembled by rotation of one side frame through a small angle and whereby the parts may be wedgingly held in position.

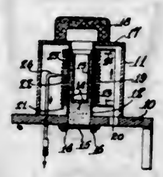
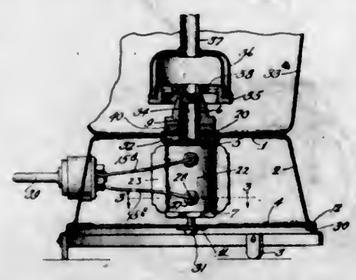
1,681,948. BUTTON CLAMP. HAROLD W. MORRIS, Waltham, Mass., assignor to Frederick Osann Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed June 7, 1923, Serial No. 643,897, Patent No. 1,606,173, dated Nov. 9, 1926. Divided and this application filed Oct. 9, 1925. Serial No. 61,524. 3 Claims. (Cl. 112—114.)



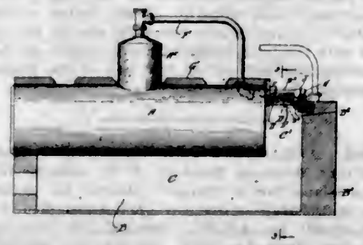
1. A button clamp comprising a support, a pair of clamping elements each pivoted to said support at one end, and having oppositely disposed button-engaging faces at their opposite ends, a member slidable on said support between said clamping elements and having a button-engaging face cooperating with the button-engaging faces of said elements, pins on said elements riding in inclined slots in said member to cause a simultaneous approach and recession of said button-engaging faces, a spring for urging said member in a direction to cause said faces to approach each other, a member actuable to move said slidable member against the action of said spring, and means for adjusting the pressure exerted on said slidable member by said spring.

1,681,949. DUPLEX FOLDER. ZOLTAN V. MORVAY, Bridgeton, N. J. Filed Sept. 16, 1926. Serial No. 135,757. 2 Claims. (Cl. 112—152.)



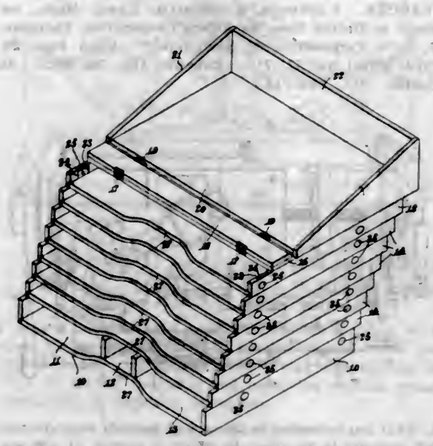
2. An attachment for sewing machines comprising a pair of plates, means for actuating said plates toward and away from each other, one plate having an S-shaped cross-sectional configuration throughout its length, the other plate being curved to simulate the curvature of a portion of the other plate and adapted to cooperate therewith to form a tuck in material passed between the plates, and said S-shaped plate having a tube formed by one of its bends to receive and guide a tape element to position in the tuck for the purpose defined.

1,681,950. MULTIPLE-PATH WATER-COOLED FURNACE. EDWIN F. NORTHRUP, Princeton, N. J., assignor to Ajax Electro-Thermic Corporation, Trenton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 13, 1923. Serial No. 651,398. 21 Claims. (Cl. 266—15.)



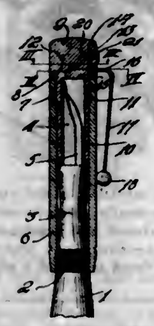
1. In an electric furnace, a hollow inductor furnace coil of highly conducting tubular material, in combination with means for supporting the charge to be heated within the coil and a source of water cooling therefor providing multiple paths from inlet to discharge through different sections of the coil.

1,681,951. HEATING UNIT FOR ELECTRICALLY-HEATED UTENSILS. EDWARD S. PRESTON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Chicago Electric Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 23, 1928. Serial No. 248,827. 14 Claims. (Cl. 219—44.)



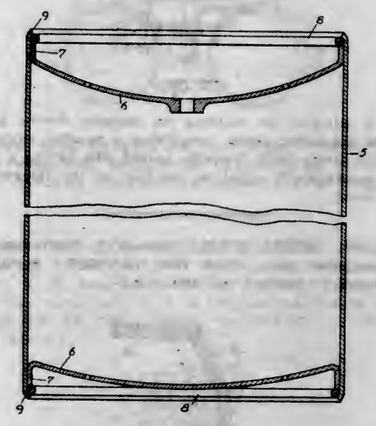
1. A heating unit for use with a flat-bottomed utensil, comprising a casing having a central depression in its top and a perforation through the said depression, a heat-transmitting member having its main portion within the casing and having a stem extending upwardly through the said perforation, and means housed by the depression and associated with the stem for clamping the said member to the said top.

1,681,952. RETURN TUBULAR SUPERHEATER BOILER. JOHN PRIMROSE, Richmond, N. Y., assignor to Foster Wheeler Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 29, 1923. Serial No. 615,636. 4 Claims. (Cl. 122—461.)



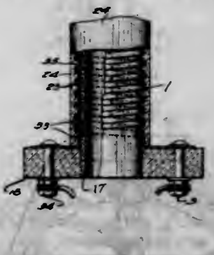
4. In a return tubular boiler furnace having housing walls at the sides and rear end of the portion of the furnace chamber at the rear of the boiler, the improvement which consists in a superheater forming a roof for said chamber portion and comprising headers mounted on the housing wall at the sides of said chamber portion, and tubes each comprising a body portion extending across said chamber portion and having their extremities connected to said headers.

1,681,953. MULTIPLE-TRAY CABINET. HENRY C. SABIN, Winthrop, Mass. Filed Jan. 26, 1928. Serial No. 249,541. 4 Claims. (Cl. 312—186.)



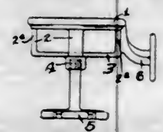
1. A cabinet consisting of a base tray with an open front, other open ended trays superimposed thereon, parallel bars each pivotally connected to all of said trays and movable about their pivots to bring each tray set back from the tray immediately beneath it and resting thereon, and a cover hinged to the upper tray adapted to close the fronts of all of said trays.

1,681,954. FOUNTAIN-PEN CLIP. SOLOMON M. SAGER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Sager Pen Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 13, 1927. Serial No. 198,460. 14 Claims. (Cl. 24—11.)



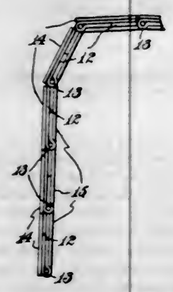
1. The combination with a fountain pen cap having a groove therein, of a plug for closing one end of said cap, a clip, a ball formed on one end thereof, an arm integrally formed on the other end of said clip adapted to project inwardly between the plug and cap, a retaining plate integrally formed on said arm and adapted to project into the groove in said plug, and teeth integrally formed on said plate adapted to project into the groove of said fountain pen cap.

1,681,955. CONTAINER. ALAN M. SCAIFE, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Wm. B. Scaife & Sons Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 4, 1927. Serial No. 188,677. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—73.)



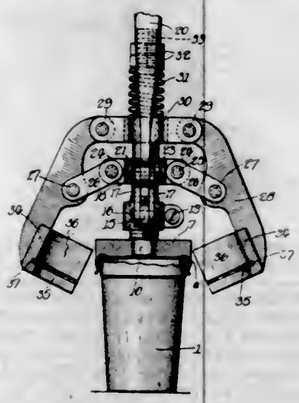
1. A container for volatile hydrocarbons including a shell, a closure member having an outwardly-extending annular flange secured by brazing within said shell and spaced from the end thereof, an annular member also secured by brazing within the shell and abutting the edge of the flange of said closure member to form a protecting means against destructive impacts sustained by the brazed joint of the closure member, and an additional means on the shell for retaining the ring in abutting relation to the flange of the closure, said annular member partially over-hanging the edge of the closure-flange to provide a hand-grip for the container.

1,681,956. PROCESS OF MAKING ELECTRICAL HEATERS. ROBERT L. SHRINER, Weehawken, N. J., assignor to Hudson Heating Systems, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Mar. 6, 1926, Serial No. 92,711. Divided and this application filed Dec. 27, 1926. Serial No. 157,080. 1 Claim. (Cl. 201—63.)



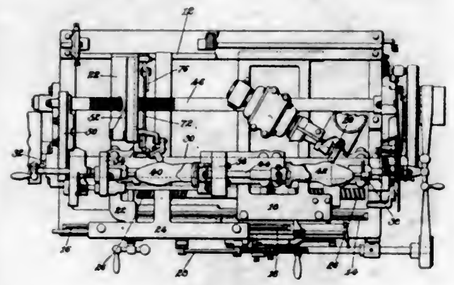
The herein described method of encasing a metallic conductor in a cavity in a refractory envelope which shall permit free expansion and contraction of said conductor, which comprises the following steps; winding said conductor cold around a suitable support of insulating material, embedding said conductor in a coating of plastic refractory material of considerable thickness applied to said support in mass form, heating said conductor by passing the predetermined amount of current through it while said coating material is still soft and free from exterior pressure, and subsequently hardening said coating as by baking; whereby the expanded conductor will push aside the elastic coating to form an expansion chamber for itself thereon.

1,681,957. MOLDING PATTERN. AUGUST J. SMITH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 30, 1925. Serial No. 27,052. 4 Claims. (Cl. 22—158.)



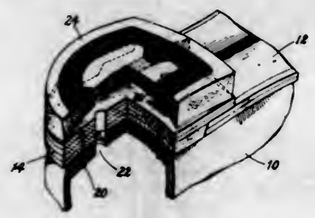
1. A pattern for molding an annular device having spaced depending posts, comprising a member having an interior cavity with inwardly spaced ribs having a thickness substantially equal to one half of the thickness of said posts.

1,681,958. STEEL DOOR. GEORGE E. STEVENSON, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Dec. 15, 1927. Serial No. 240,103. 1 Claim. (Cl. 189—51.)



A flexible curtain composed of a plurality of hingedly connected elements each of which comprises a sheet metal core perforated, slotted and its edges overlapped upon its middle to form hinge eyes, and a finish strip secured to the core member and having a width such that the edges thereof will abut edges of similar plates of adjacent core elements when the curtain is flattened.

1,681,959. HAND MACHINE FOR SEALING CAPS TO JARS AND CANS. SWAN NILS TEVANDER, Maywood, Ill., assignor to Swan Metallic Seal & Cap Company, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 31, 1923. Serial No. 629,181. 5 Claims. (Cl. 226—86.)

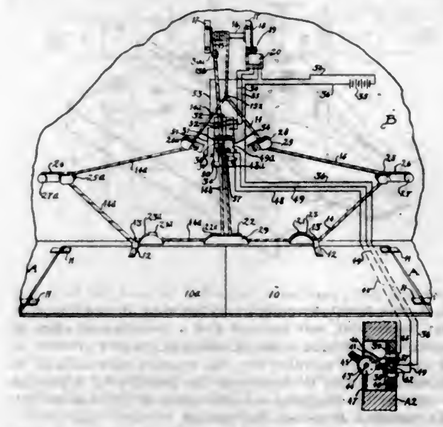


4. In a device of the class described, a head block mounted over the top of a cap for holding the cap on the vessel to be sealed, a support connected with the said head block, two relatively movable sliding members carried by said support, two opposed operating levers hinged to one of the said members, two links connecting said support to said levers, two swinging levers hinged to the other of said sliding members and two gripper jaws carried by said swinging levers adapted to embrace and act upon the flange of the cap held by the holding means.

1,681,960. MACHINE FOR EFFECTING SYSTEMATIC IRREGULARITIES IN THE REPRODUCTION OF OBJECTS. LAURENCE E. TOPHAM, Lynn, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 29, 1922, Serial No. 571,716. Renewed Dec. 14, 1926. 46 Claims. (Cl. 142—15.)

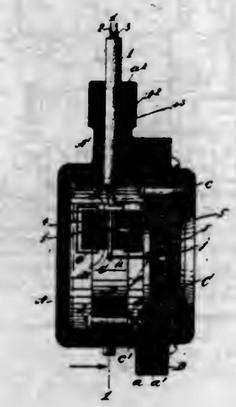
1. That improvement in the art of pattern reproduction which consists in forming, in effect, a system of differential elements in the model, and reproducing them in the work, the orientation of the elements and their reproductions as regards corresponding axes in the model and work respectively being different.

1,681,961. HEEL. GEORGE E. WARREN, Swampscott, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 20, 1923, Serial No. 658,292. Renewed Mar. 8, 1926. 6 Claims. (Cl. 36—35.)



1. A shoe heel comprising a deformable, resilient top section which is normally concavo-convex on every line of cross section, flattened and combined with a comparatively rigid concavo-convex base section, the heel as a whole having a flat tread face and a concave seat face.

1,681,962. DOOR-OPERATING DEVICE. NICKOLAY WESTBY, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,488. 1 Claim. (Cl. 268—63.)



In a structure having a wall with a door opening and two oppositely hinged doors adapted to close the opening when they are swung toward each other, sheaves arranged above the doors, a cable or similar flexible element stretched over the sheaves and attached to the doors to open and close them, a reversible electric motor in an electric circuit, operative connection between the motor and the cable, a switch starting the motor to open and close the doors, and means operated by the cable for automatically stopping the motor when the doors are either closed or opened, the said automatic stopping means comprising a pole changer having a slidable member with a wing having an aperture, a portion of the cable being slidable in the said aperture and having obstructions fixed on it to act on the wing and move the slidable member alternately in opposite directions.

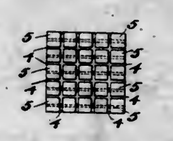
1,681,963. MAGNETOPHONE. ROBERT L. WILLIAMS, Newton, Mass., assignor to Submarine Signal Company, Portland, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Jan. 2, 1920. Serial No. 348,935. 4 Claims. (Cl. 177—386.)

1. A hydrophone comprising a casing, a rubber diaphragm mounted in said casing and exposed to receive the approaching sound waves, an armature connected to said diaphragm and operated thereby, and means including said armature and an electrical circuit for inducing a current in said electrical circuit.



1,681,964. ATTACHMENT FOR SPECTACLES. ROBERT YOUNG, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 22, 1927. Serial No. 162,716. 9 Claims. (Cl. 240—52.)

1. As a removable attachment for a spectacle frame, a supporting device for a head lamp or the like, said device comprising a medial body portion adapted to overlie the bridge of the frame and to support said lamp, and two pairs of clamping arms carried by said body portion and extending upwardly and downwardly respectively, said pairs being arranged and constructed to brace themselves respectively between the upwardly and the downwardly diverging frame portions adjacent to the bridge.

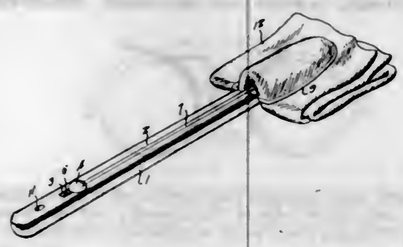
1,681,965. PAD FOR MANGLE ROLLERS, IRONING BOARDS, AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM A. ZEIDLER, New York, N. Y., assignor to Zeidler Economy Spring Pad Co., Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 24, 1922. Serial No. 596,669. 5 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

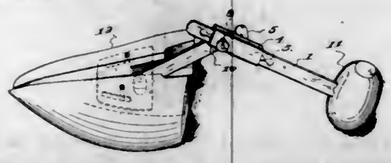
1. A base for a pad for ironing machines and the like composed of a sheet of cork with intersecting incisions.

1,681,966. BALANCED-TOGGLE VALVE. WILLIAM A. ZEIDLER, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 30, 1925. Serial No. 65,829. 8 Claims. (Cl. 251—125.)



2. In a device of the class described, a casing having an inlet and an outlet opening, spherical seats at the upper and lower parts of said casing, one of the seats constituting a valve seat, toggle members engaging said seats, and connected together, one of said toggle members comprising a valve for cooperating with said valve seat, springs for holding said toggle members in right relation to their seats and each other, said toggle members adapted to be operated to open the valve.

1,681,967. DUSTER AND WASH STICK. JOHN B. ZORN, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Oct. 10, 1927. Serial No. 225,341. 3 Claims. (Cl. 15—150.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a handle having a longitudinal slot therein, a bar pivotally mounted in and extending parallel with the handle, a fastening device contained within the handle and releasably holding the bar in locked position within the handle, and a metal loop mounted in the end of the handle and extending in spaced relation to and around the free exposed end of the aforesaid bar.

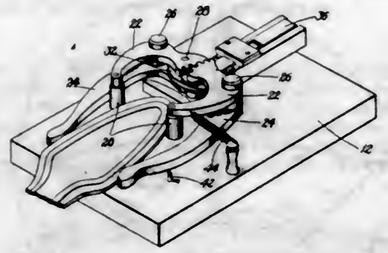
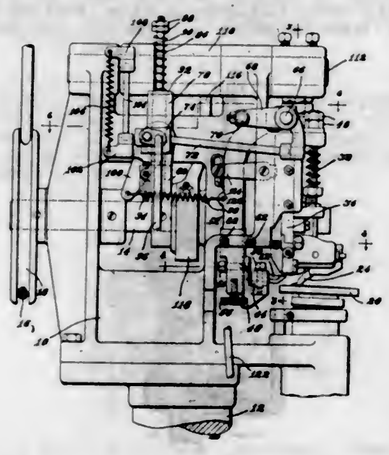
1,681,968. SHOE-TREE. ARTHUR R. ANDERSON, North Arlington, N. J. Filed May 11, 1925. Serial No. 29,593. 3 Claims. (Cl. 12—128.2.)



1. A toggle joint for shoe trees comprising an arm provided with a slot having alternate enlarged and reduced portions; a member slidably mounted on said arm; a bearing pin slidably supported in said member with an enlarged section normally seated in one of said enlarged slot portions, and a reduced section adapted to pass through said reduced slot portions; and a second arm pivoted on the enlarged section of said bearing pin and guided for pivotal movement between a side of said first mentioned arm and a side of said member; said bearing pin and said second mentioned arm being slidable along said first mentioned arm only when the reduced section of said bearing pin is shifted into alignment with the reduced portions of said slot.

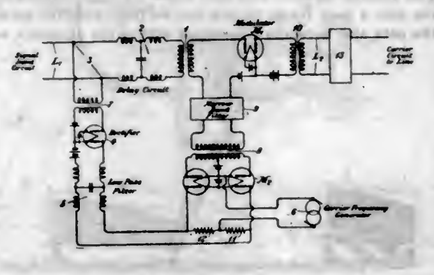
1,681,969. HYDRAULIC CENTER-SHIFTING MECHANISM. VICTOR ANGERER, Ridley Park, Pa., assignor to Taylor-Wharton Iron and Steel Company, High Bridge, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 15, 1919. Serial No. 344,959. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—1.)



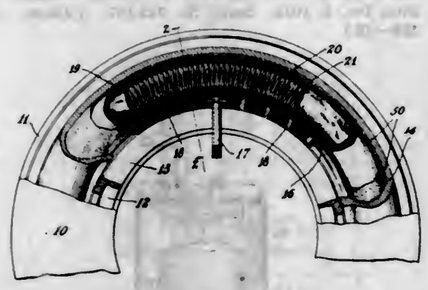
6. A shaft, eccentrics having chambered openings mounted on the shaft to divide such chambers by the shaft, means on the shaft for closing the chambers beyond the shaft, housings on the eccentrics opening toward and adjacent each other, and a spring mounted in the adjacent housings of the respective eccentrics, said spring being tensioned in the opposite movement of the eccentrics.

1,681,970. POSITIONING DEVICE. FREDERIC E. BERTRAND, Lynn, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 14, 1922. Serial No. 606,879. 10 Claims. (Cl. 12—40.)

1. A sole positioning device comprising, in combination, a flat, horizontal, sole support and a plurality of pairs of connected positioning arms of different lengths pivoted on said support and movable over the support substantially in a horizontal plane to determine the position of a sole on the support by engaging opposite sides of the sole at different distances from one end thereof.



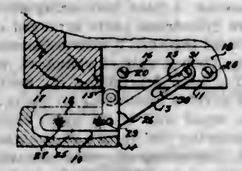
1,681,971. STOCK-FITTING MACHINE. FREDERIC E. BERTRAND, Lynn, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 15, 1923. Serial No. 612,770. 42 Claims. (Cl. 12—27.)



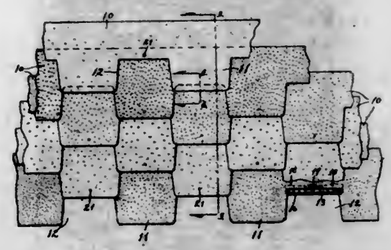
1. A stock-fitting machine comprising, in combination, a support for a sole, mans to form a lip on the sole by cutting inwardly from the edge, and a knife movable toward and across the edge face of the sole to slash the material which is to form the lip.

1,681,972. CARRIER AMPLITUDE-CONTROL SYSTEM. OTTO B. BLACKWELL, Plandome, N. Y., and HERMAN A. AFFEL, Maplewood, N. J., assignors to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 25, 1926. Serial No. 90,638. 21 Claims. (Cl. 178—44.)

1. In a carrier or radio signaling system in which a carrier frequency is modulated by a signal frequency, the method which consists in producing a carrier frequency, varying the energy level of the carrier frequency by variations in the level of the signal frequency, and simultaneously modulating by the said signal the carrier frequency as thus varied.

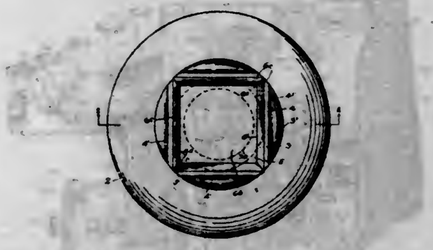


1,681,973. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR VULCANIZING PNEUMATIC TIRES. JAMES W. BRUNDAGE, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The B. F. Goodrich Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 25, 1927. Serial No. 208,147. 7 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)



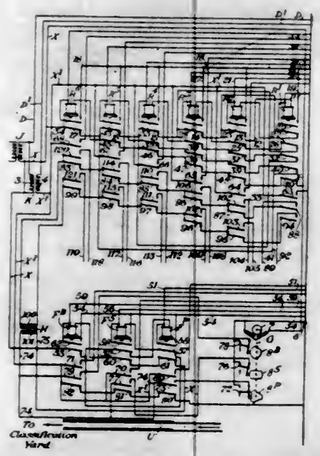
1. The method of vulcanizing a pneumatic tire which comprises distending the tire in a mold by forcing a moist, plastic distending material into the tire, reducing the plasticity of the distending material by removal of moisture therefrom through the space between the beads of the tire, and thereafter maintaining the tire at a vulcanizing temperature.

1,681,974. HINGE. WYCLIFFE L. CLARK, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed Sept. 26, 1927. Serial No. 221,880. 2 Claims. (Cl. 16—138.)



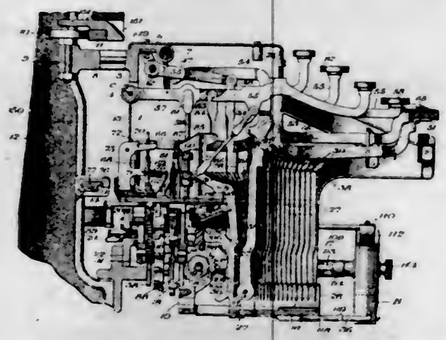
2. A hinge comprising a fixed element, a movable element, means adapted to removably secure one end of said movable element to said fixed element, a connecting stop link, said link being longitudinally slotted through a portion of its length, means pivotally engaging one end of said link with said movable element and means engaging said slotted end of said link with said fixed element.

1,681,975. ROOFING ELEMENT. ISADORE DAVIS, Des Moines, Iowa, assignor to Interlocking Shingle Co., Des Moines, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Nov. 2, 1925. Serial No. 66,217. 4 Claims. (Cl. 108—7.)



2. A roofing element comprising a body formed on one margin with alternate projections and notches, a clip underlying the end portion of each projection and offset to form hooks, said clip being formed with teeth extending in both directions from its body, the end portion of the projection being folded around the margin of the clip and the teeth of the clip penetrating in both directions the material of the said projection to cause uniform expansion and contraction thereof.

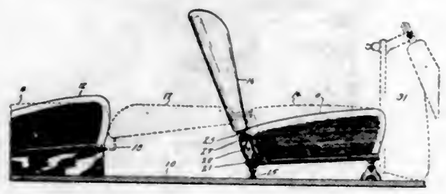
1,681,976. BOTTLE CLOSURE. HARRY DE WALLACE, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Apr. 22, 1927. Serial No. 185,848. 3 Claims. (Cl. 215—38.)



1. A closure for bottles having square recessed and beaded mouths comprising a substantially square body of fibrous material having a substantially square shaped crease spaced from the edges of the body and parallel to said edges, and diagonal creases connecting the corners of the first named creases with the adjacent corners of the body, the portions between the square crease and the edges of the body constituting a four-sided apron which latter extends upwardly and is curved outwardly, said diagonal creases being of V-form and having their apices extending from the corners of the body and flaring toward the corners of the square shaped crease and being adapted to engage in the corners of the angular recess of the bottle mouth.

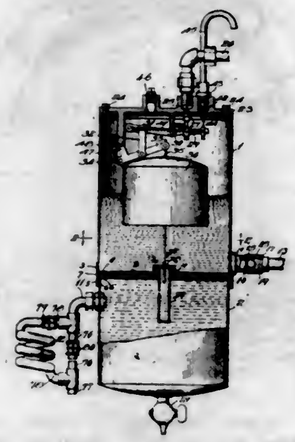
1,681,977. CAB SIGNALING SYSTEM FOR RAILWAY YARDS. CHARLES W. FAILOR, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 24, 1927, Serial No. 170,495. Renewed July 9, 1928. 20 Claims. (Cl. 104—26.)

1. A cab signal system for a railway receiving yard, comprising a trackway circuit for each track for inductively transmitting indications to a vehicle on the track, manually controlled means for selecting any one of said circuits for operation, and other manually controlled means for supplying to such selected circuit any desired one of a plurality of distinctive currents.



1,681,978. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. HARRY A. FOOTHORAP, Harrisburg, Pa., assignor to Elliott-Fisher Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 14, 1925. Serial No. 30,265. 19 Claims. (Cl. 197—2.)

17. The combination with a movable supporting frame of a carriage having a movable supporting connection exclusively at its rear side, with the frame and down-strike printing mechanism mounted on the carriage in advance of said supporting connection.



1,681,979. FRONT-SEAT CONSTRUCTION FOR AUTOMOBILES. HERBERT R. GRAHAM, Miller, S. Dak. Filed Aug. 28, 1926. Serial No. 132,302. 3 Claims. (Cl. 155—7.)

1. In a front seat construction for vehicles, a seat frame, brackets secured to said frame and having upwardly and rearwardly inclined channels, each of said channels having side plates the forward extremities of which are connected by a web, said web being cut away to form projecting ears at the upper extremities of the side plates, a stud secured between said ears above the upper extremity of the web, a back frame having end portions received between the ears and normally telescoped within the channels, each end portion having a longitudinal slot receiving the stud and allowing withdrawal from telescoping relation to a position in which the end portion may hinge in either direction about the stud without contact with the web, the end portion engaging with the web when in telescoped relation, to lock the back frame against rearward movement.

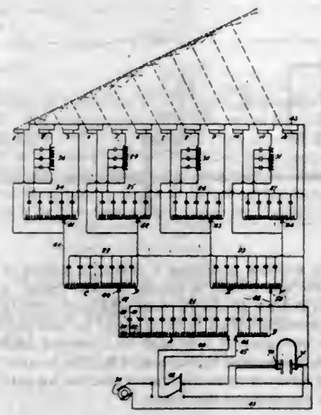
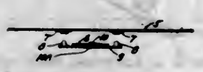
1,681,980. APPARATUS FOR PURIFYING USED LUBRICATING OIL. EDWARD L. GROSS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 3, 1919. Serial No. 342,197. 1 Claim. (Cl. 196—16.)



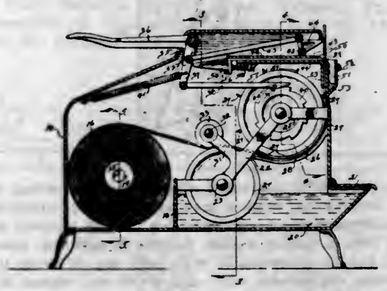
An apparatus for purifying used lubricating oil, having, in combination, a used lubricating oil purifying tank comprising two cylindrical parts arranged end to end and detachably secured together, a filtering member arranged at the juncture to form a pair of chambers, said tank being provided with a used lubricating oil inlet to the lower chamber and a purified lubricating oil outlet and a plurality of ports in the upper wall of the upper chamber, a suction conduit for removing the vapors of contaminating liquids from the used lubricating oil, communicating with one of said last mentioned ports, means in said last mentioned chamber for controlling said ports at predetermined points, whereby a vacuum due to said suction may be periodically formed and broken in said chamber, a check valve controlling said purified oil outlet, and a passage for oil communicating with said used oil inlet.

1,681,981. DRAIN. CHARLES F. GILBERT, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Feb. 9, 1921. Serial No. 443,638. 5 Claims. (Cl. 251—39.)



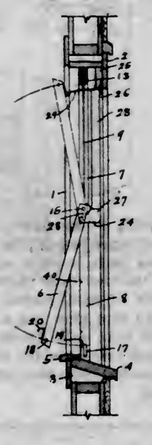
1. In a drain of the class described, a casing having a smooth bore throughout its length, a hollow plug having an imperforate end and a helix and a circumferential groove in its wall, a valve, means for detachably securing the valve to the imperforate end of the hollow plug, and a removable element adapted to project into the bore and engage in said helix in the plug.

1,681,982. DIRECTIVE SOUND TRANSMISSION. HARVEY C. HAYES, Anacostia, D. C., and MAX MASON, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Submarine Signal Company, Portland, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Original application filed June 25, 1919, Serial No. 306,685½. Divided and this application filed Feb. 26, 1926. Serial No. 90,849. 7 Claims. (Cl. 177—386.)



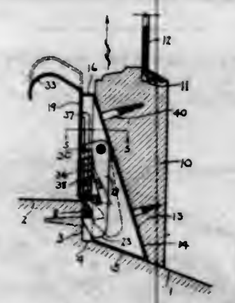
7. The method of producing sound beams in varying directions at the will of the operator from a series of stationary sound producers having their effective portions radiating in the same plane which consists in independently actuating said sound producers from a source of electrical current, introducing in the path of supply from said source to said sound producers varying retardation to vary progressively the phase of the current supplied to successive producers whereby a sound beam may be produced in any direction.

1,681,983. LINGERIE CLASP. LUCIA R. KELLER, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Apr. 16, 1927. Serial No. 184,284. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—73.)



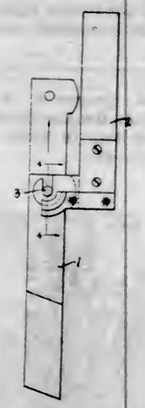
1. In a clasp of the class described for a garment having shoulder straps for supporting the garment, a fastener comprising a bar of stiff material, means for detachably affixing said bar to the upper portion of the garment, said strap for each fastener adapted to be passed transversely under said bar and between it and the garment, and means fixed to said bar at the side of it normally adjacent the garment, for engaging the said strap at any desired place.

1,681,984. STAMP-AFFIXING MACHINE. HERBERT F. LESSMANN, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Sept. 19, 1927. Serial No. 220,370. 8 Claims. (Cl. 216—27.)



1. In a device of the class described, a housing having a slot opening, a laterally extending platform adjacent said slot opening, a shaft in said housing designed to support a roll of postage stamps, a means for advancing the said roll of postage stamps through said slot opening, one stamp at a time, a blade slidably mounted in said housing capable of cutting off single stamps as they pass through said slot opening, a stamp affixing member above said platform, a means for moistening said stamps, and a lever for actuating said stamp advancing mechanism, said blade and stamp affixing member.

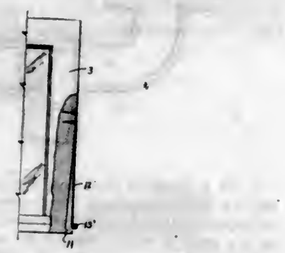
1,681,985. WINDOW. CLAUDE A. LEWIS, Houston, Tex., assignor to American Window Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 10, 1926. Serial No. 115,141. 19 Claims. (Cl. 20—49.)



1. The combination with a window casing, of an upper and a lower sash therein, the upper end of the lower sash and the lower end of the upper sash being both pivoted in the casing to revolve about a common transverse axis to permit said sashes to be swung about said axis into reversed position.

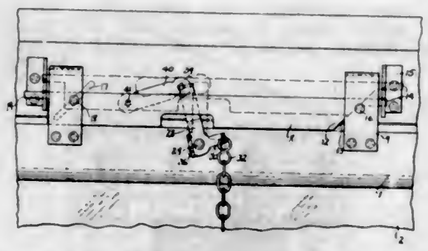
1,681,986. WINDOW LATCH. CLAUDE A. LEWIS, Houston, Tex., assignor to American Window Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 3, 1926. Serial No. 120,269. 9 Claims. (Cl. 292—110.)

1. In combination with a window sash and casing, means for latching the window sash to the casing, comprising a shouldered plate on said casing, a pivoted latching dog on said sash, a handle slidable relative to said dog, means on said handle co-operating with said dog to force it into latching engagement with said plate, and means on said handle to throw said dog out of latching position when said handle is raised to elevate said sash.



1,681,987. WINDOW-SASH SUPPORT. CLAUDE A. LEWIS, Houston, Tex., assignor to American Window Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 7, 1926. Serial No. 133,925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—49.)

1. A window including a lower sash adapted to slide vertically upward, laterally projecting pins adjacent the upper end thereof, an upper sash, a plate at each side of said upper sash adjacent the lower end thereof, a forwardly extending arm on each of said plates, said arms having slots therein engaging said pins and a stationary bracket below said plate and arm, said bracket having a groove therein to receive said extension the sides of said groove serving to limit the lateral movement of said extension for the purpose described.



1,681,988. RESILIENTLY-MOUNTED WINDOW SASH. CLAUDE A. LEWIS, Houston, Tex., assignor to American Window Company, Houston, Tex., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 21, 1926. Serial No. 136,749. 14 Claims. (Cl. 20—49.)

1. In a window, a casing having opposite channels therein, and forwardly curved grooves communicating therewith adjacent the upper ends thereof, riders slidable in said channels, said riders having upwardly opening grooves at their upper ends and pin-receiving recesses at their lower ends, a sash on said riders, upper and lower pins fitting within said grooves and said recesses respectively, and means to hold said lower pins resiliently within said recesses.

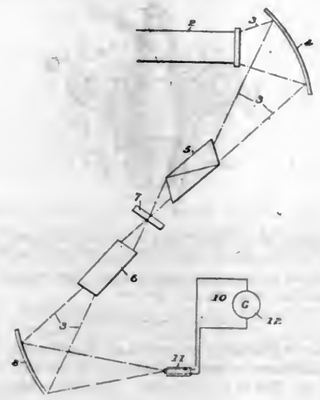
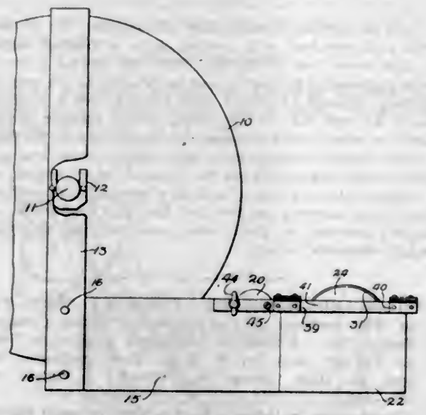
1,681,989. TOP LATCH FOR WINDOWS. CLAUDE ALEXANDER LEWIS, Houston, Tex., assignor to American Window Company, Houston, Tex., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 5, 1927. Serial No. 181,019. 11 Claims. (Cl. 292—186.)



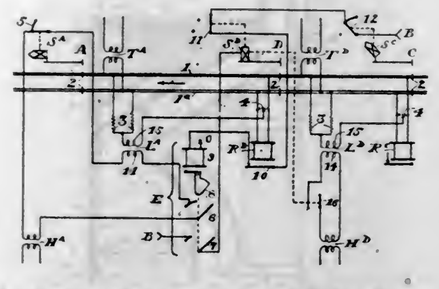
1. In a window including a casing, a frame, a sash pivoted at its lower end to swing in said frame, a latch on said sash, flexible means to raise said latch, retaining plates on said casing adapted to be engaged by said latch bar and limit the swinging of said sash to a vented position when said latch is operated through said flexible means, said latch bar being released from its vented position on said retaining means in the manner described.

1,681,990. WINDOW POLE. CLAUDE A. LEWIS, Houston, Tex. Filed May 16, 1927. Serial No. 191,780. 3 Claims. (Cl. 268—134.)



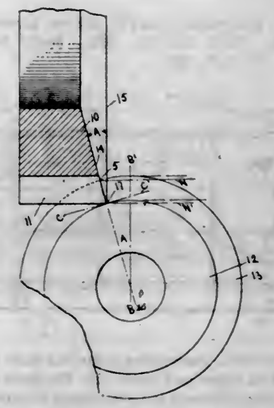
1. A window pole for the purpose set forth comprising a handle, a rod axially of said handle at the forward end thereof, said rod being bent laterally and then forwardly to provide a fulcrum finger to engage a support, a lateral arm on said rod, a finger on said arm aligned approximately with said fulcrum finger and adapted to engage a window sash for the purpose stated.

1,681,991. METHOD OF DETECTING AND MEASURING STRAINS. JESSE T. LITTLETON, Jr., Corning N. Y., assignor to Corning Glass Works, Corning, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 20, 1926. Serial No. 149,747. 4 Claims. (Cl. 73—51.)



1. A method of detecting strain in a medium transmissive of heat-rays, which comprises the steps of polarizing heat-rays, passing said polarized heat-rays through a transmissive specimen, absorbing the polarized rays transmitted by said specimen, and noting the presence or absence of strain in said specimen in terms of the effect produced upon a heat detector by the depolarized rays transmitted by said specimen.

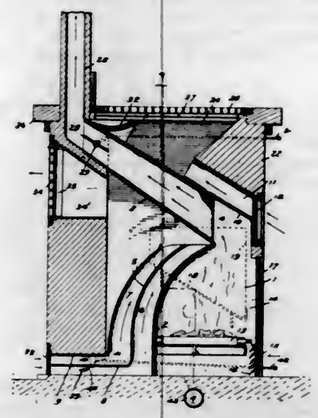
1,681,992. MACHINE FOR APPLYING PASTE TO PAPER SHEETS. SAMUEL LOVENWIRTH, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed June 4, 1926. Serial No. 113,740. 1 Claim. (Cl. 91—51.)



In a device of the class described, a structure for supporting a roll of paper, sheet guiding means mounted in said structure, a receptacle detachably connected with said structure, the receptacle including a paste compartment, and an independent compartment, rollers mounted for rotation and for vertical movement in these compartments, means for connecting the aforesaid structure and detachable receptacle, and paper guiding devices each comprising upper and lower plates arranged in pairs, the plates of one pair extending across the adjacent edges of the structure supporting the paper roll and the detachable receptacle, and being secured to the connecting means for these elements.

1,681,993. RAILWAY-TRAFFIC-CONTROLLING APPARATUS. RONALD A. MCCANN, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 29, 1926. Serial No. 125,763. 12 Claims. (Cl. 246—23.)

3. In combination, a section of railway track, an interlocking signal located at the entrance end of said section and controlled at least in part by manual means having normal and reverse positions wherein said signal indicates stop and proceed respectively, means for causing a non-restrictive indication to be given on a train occupying said section when said manual means is in reverse position and traffic conditions in advance of said section are safe, and means for preventing said manual means from being restored to its full normal position while a train is in said section.



1,681,994. METHOD OF GENERATING TOOTH FORMS. EDWARD W. MILLER, Springfield, Vt., assignor to The Fellows Gear Shaper Company, Springfield, Vt., a Corporation of Vermont. Filed Apr. 15, 1924. Serial No. 706,661. 5 Claims. (Cl. 90—4.)

1. The method of generating tooth forms which consists in providing a cutter having the form of a helical gear of uniform diameter and uniform width of tooth from end to end, such cutter having a conically recessed end face and cutting edges at the ends of its teeth, applying such cutter to the work with its axis making an acute angle with the momentary direction of relative cutting travel, rotating the work so as to approach the end of the cutter at the cutting edges thereof, and effecting a relative motion of rolling traverse between the cutter and work lengthwise of the latter.

1,681,995. HEATER. EUGENE P. MILES, Hobart, Okla. Filed Dec. 10, 1927. Serial No. 239,229. 6 Claims. (Cl. 126—121.)

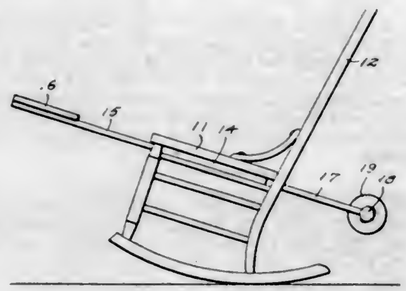
1,681,996. FOLDING CRATE. FRANK MORROGH, Arnaudville, La. Filed Jan. 27, 1926. Serial No. 84,219. 1 Claim. (Cl. 217—48.)

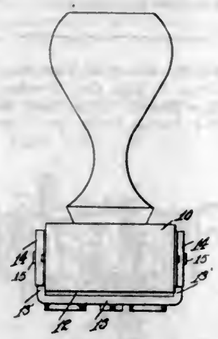


A foldable crate comprising sides and ends, each of which consists of an upper and lower rail, the ends of the rails of the sides being disposed in overlapping relation to the outer face of the rails of the ends and pivotally connected together, vertical slats secured to the inner face of the rails of each side and end, sills extending parallel to the lower rails of the sides across the slats and secured thereto, a bottom adapted to be supported by said sills, U-shaped members having their legs slidably mounted through the top of the upper rails of each end, and a cover composed of longitudinal spaced slats connected together at a point remote from their ends, slidably disposed between the upper rails of the sides, the ends of the central slat of the cover being adapted to enter the U-shaped members, through longitudinal movement of the cover.

1,681,997. SPARK PLUG. HARRY MUNROE, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 4, 1926. Serial No. 133,616. 5 Claims. (Cl. 123—169.)

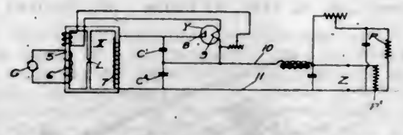
1. A spark plug comprising a screw threaded carrier, a fire-proof fibrous layer arranged about said carrier, an insulating body arranged in said carrier, and means to retain said insulating body in the carrier.

1,681,998. SEESAW. CURTIS A. PENDLETON, Port Alberni, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Nov. 23, 1927. Serial No. 235,371. 1 Claim. (Cl. 272—56.)



In a convertible rocking-chair and see-saw, the combination with the seat of a rocking chair, a member secured by the lower face of the said seat and having a central socket extending forwardly and rearwardly of the seat and opening through the front edge thereof, and a narrower socket at each side of the central socket opening through the rear edge of said member, an extensible seat including a stem slidably adjustable in said centrol socket and movable toward and away from the front of the chair seat, and a counterbalance element including arms slidably adjustable in said narrower sockets and having a transverse connecting member on their outer ends adapted to receive weight elements thereon.

1,681,999. RUBBER STAMP. CLARENCE L. SMITH, Tampa, Fla., assignor to The Franklin Printing Company, Tampa, Fla. Refiled for abandoned application Serial No. 742,612, filed Oct. 9, 1924. This application filed Sept. 25, 1926. Serial No. 137,809. 1 Claim. (Cl. 101—405.)



A hand stamp including a block, a strip of metal disposed transversely of each end of the block and having the major portion intermediate the ends offset away from the block ends and having its ends secured to said block ends, a printing strip including a central body portion having a printing face and terminal tabs, said tabs being arranged to be inserted between the offset portions of the metal strips and the block ends, and fastening means disposed through said intermediate portions of the metal strips, the tab ends of the printing strip, and the block ends, whereby said printing strip is securely fastened to the block, while at the same time being readily removable.

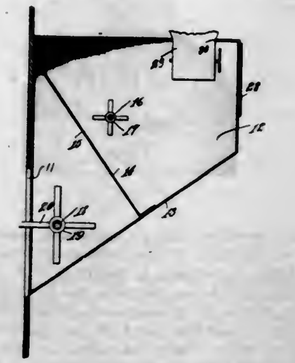
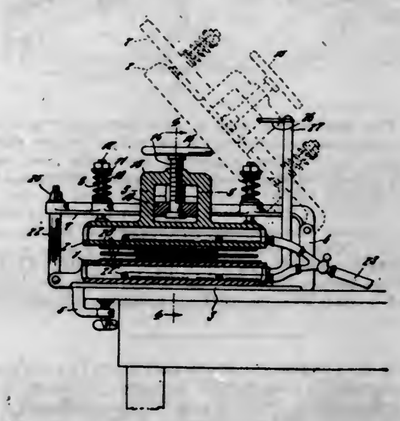
1,682,000. RECTIFICATION OF ALTERNATING CURRENTS. THEODORE A. WILLARD, Cleveland, Ohio, and FREDERICK S. MCCULLOUGH, Wilkinsburg, Pa. Filed Nov. 13, 1924. Serial No. 749,661. 6 Claims. (Cl. 175—363.)

1. Means for effecting the rectification of alternating currents including a resonant circuit in which there is a rectifier, a capacity in parallel with the rectifier, and a capacity in series with the rectifier and said first mentioned capacity.



4. The method of rectifying alternating currents with a one-way rectifier consisting in increasing the rectifying period for the rectifier beyond one half cycle phase period of the supply current and decreasing the non-rectifying period of the rectifier below the other half cycle phase period of the supply current.

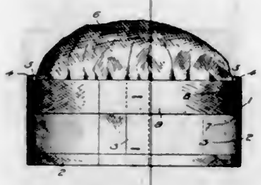
1,682,001. MILKING MACHINE. FRANK M. WRABEK, Le Sueur Center, Minn. Filed Apr. 9, 1927. Serial No. 182,368. 3 Claims. (Cl. 31—79.)



1. In a device of the class described, an operator's bench, a support hinged to the bench for vertical swinging adjustment, means for holding the support in adjusted vertical positions, an abutment mounted on the support, jaws located on opposite sides of the abutment, and means mounted on the support for moving the jaws toward and away from each other.

1,682,002. AUTOMATIC STOKER. WILLIAM A. YARWOOD, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed June 15, 1925, Serial No. 37,255. Renewed May 10, 1928. 1 Claim. (Cl. 110—115.)

A stoking device comprising a casing having an inclined bottom wall, and a furnace contacting wall provided with a discharge opening adjacent its lower end, an inclined partition in the casing extending from the bottom wall to the furnace contacting wall above said opening, said partition having an opening above the level of the first opening, a rotary element on the upper side of said partition and in position to agitate the fuel adjacent said partition opening, and a projector inwardly of the discharge opening directly beneath the partition opening in position to receive the fuel thereon which falls vertically from said partition opening.



1,682,003. CLOTHES-PRESSING MACHINE. ROBERT COMADORE BURNLEY, Louisville, Ky. Filed Jan. 29, 1927. Serial No. 164,591. 2 Claims. (Cl. 100—57.)

1. A press of the class described comprising a base, a stationary member supported thereby, uprights at the rear of the base, bars pivotally connected with the uprights, latch means for connecting the front ends of the bars with the base, a movable member, spring means for supporting the movable member from the bars, a guide on the movable member, a screw shaft carried thereby, a handle on the shaft, a cross head arranged to move in the guide and movable by the turning of the shaft, beams connected with the cross head and bearing against parts of the movable member and means for pivotally connecting the beams with the bars.

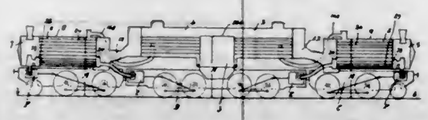
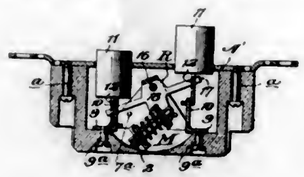
1,682,004. CAP. DANIEL J. CREMEN, Blackwood, N. J. Filed Feb. 9, 1927. Serial No. 166,884. 4 Claims. (Cl. 2—200.)



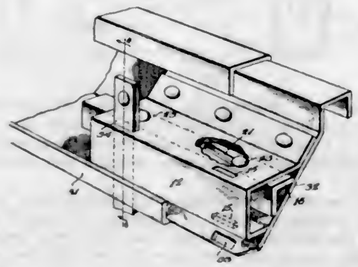
1. A cap provided with an upstanding continuously extending substantially circular brim comprising a relatively flexible fabric facing and a relatively stiff fibrous lining intimately united by an adhesive, and a ventilating crown of loosely woven material, one of the peripheral ends of said lining terminating short of the adjacent peripheral end of the flexible fabric, the unlined portion of the said flexible material being loosely disposed within the brim and constituting the sole means to which the crown is secured for connecting the latter to the brim.

1,682,005. GREENHOUSE PROTECTOR. ROBERT E. DE ZONIA, Denver, Colo., assignor of one-fourth to Jasper N. Ripley, Denver, Colo. Filed Jan. 27, 1928. Serial No. 250,010. 8 Claims. (Cl. 108—2.)



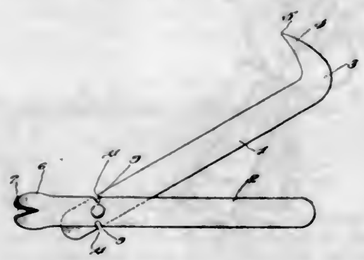
1. The combination with a green-house having track ways supported transversely of its roof, of screen sheets windable upon rollers supported above the roof, said sheets having carriages attached thereto for movement upon the track ways.

1,682,006. STEAM LOCOMOTIVE. ATTILIO FRANCO, Milan, Italy. Filed Feb. 25, 1925, Serial No. 11,585, and in Italy Feb. 25, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—37.)



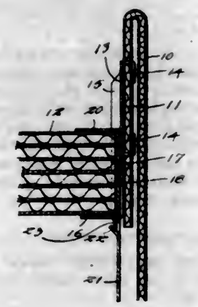
1. In a locomotive, interconnected end and center driving units, a main boiler carried by the center unit, an auxiliary boiler carried by each end unit for heating the feed water for the main boiler up to the vaporation temperature existing in the main boiler whereby the entire heating surface of the main boiler is utilized solely for converting the water heated to evaporation temperature in the auxiliary boilers into steam.

1,682,007. SWITCH. EDGAR H. FREEMAN, Trenton, N. J., assignor to Circle F Mfg. Co., Trenton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 10, 1926. Serial No. 121,670. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—72.)



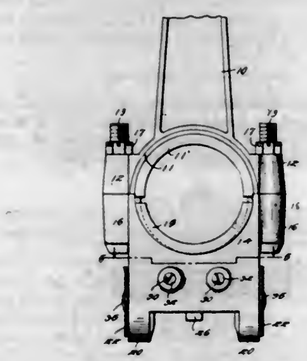
1. A switch of the class described including in combination with a yoke and an actuator, a plunger device arranged between the actuator and the yoke and including a core member doubled upon itself to provide spaced spring arms at its lower end adapted to engage over and straddle a portion of the yoke, and a spring carried by the core and adapted to be compressed by the actuator.

1,682,008. CONCRETE FORM. JOHN N. HELTZEL, Warren, Ohio. Filed Dec. 8, 1925, Serial No. 74,106. Renewed July 13, 1928. 13 Claims. (Cl. 25—118.)



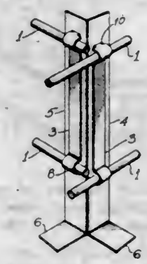
1. A concrete form having means for receiving two stakes, and a single element arranged to simultaneously clamp both stakes.

1,682,009. COMBINATION TOOL. CLAUDE A. KINNEY, Hannibal, Mo. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,734. 1 Claim. (Cl. 140—123.6.)



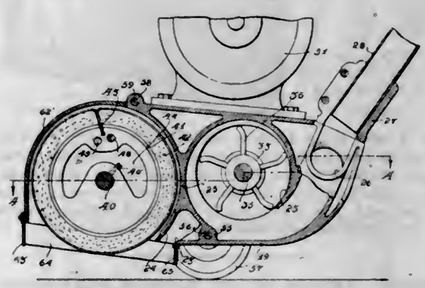
In a tool of the class described, two relatively narrow members, means for pivotally connecting said members together whereby one of said members will extend but a relatively short distance beyond said pivoting point, and such that the other member will extend beyond said pivoting point a distance relatively short compared to the other length thereof but of greater extent than said first-named member, said members having slots formed therein adjacent said pivoting point, said slots being adapted to be disposed in alinement when said members are moved from parallel relation with respect to each other.

1,682,010. BOX-COVER FASTENER. EDWARD B. KOPLITZ, Hoboken, N. J. Filed May 11, 1927. Serial No. 190,565. 4 Claims. (Cl. 229—5.7.)



1. The combination with a receptacle and the end closure thereof, of a bracket secured within the receptacle for supporting the closure within the receptacle, and a locking member arranged to be inserted between the bracket and the closure and having means engaging with the closure for holding the same on said bracket.

1,682,011. AUTOMATIC TAKE-UP FOR CONNECTING RODS. JOSEPH KRIZ, Jr., St. Paul, Minn. Filed Dec. 8, 1926. Serial No. 153,437. 4 Claims. (Cl. 308—67.)

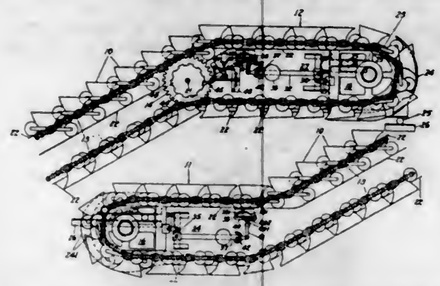


1. In an automatic adjusting means for bearings, an upper bearing part, and a lower bearing part, a bearing element supported in the lower part, worm shafts supported in the lower part, screw shafts engaged therewith, cams on the screw shafts engaged with the bearing element, and spring means for urging the worm shafts rotatably.

1,682,012. BAR SUPPORT. HENRY H. LAMPERT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 18, 1927. Serial No. 184,759. 5 Claims. (Cl. 94—8.)

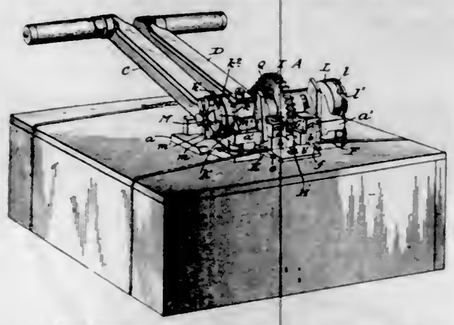
1. A device of the class described comprising a support, a clip having a pair of seat portions spaced apart and adapted to support bars in substantially the same plane, the portion of said clip between said seat portions being arranged to abut against one face of said support, and interlocking means on said support and clip.

1,682,013. SANDING MACHINE. JOHN B. LEONARD, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 17, 1926. Serial No. 109,476. 4 Claims. (Cl. 51—176.)



1. A sanding machine of the class described, comprising: a housing formed from a pair of similar sections placed side to side, each of said sections having a chamber formed therein and communicating with an inlet passage formed partly in each of said sections at the engaging faces, and communicating with an outlet passage formed partly by each of said sections at the communicating faces; and a fan mounted in each of said chambers.

1,682,014. SAFETY DEVICE FOR CONVEYERS. SAMUEL G. MARGLES, Brooklyn, and ARTHUR E. HANDY, Lynbrook, N. Y., assignors to Otis Elevator Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,167. 7 Claims. (Cl. 198—232.)



1. An electrically operated conveyer comprising a belt with an electrically operated driving means for imparting motion to the belt and having positive driving connections with two points of the belt so that portions of the belt extend from the driving means in both directions to the ends of the conveyer, and means in conjunction with each of said extending portions adapted to open the electric circuit of the electric driving means when a break occurs in either of said portions.

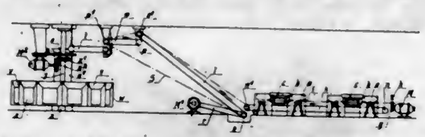
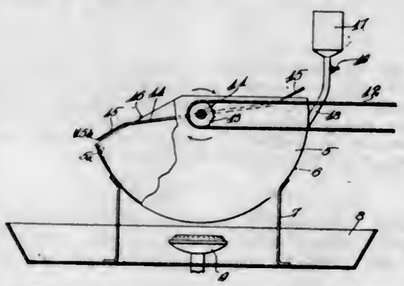
1,682,015. WIRE-TYING MACHINE. JOHN SHERMAN MCCHESNEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Gerrard Company, Inc., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,280. 12 Claims. (Cl. 140—93.)



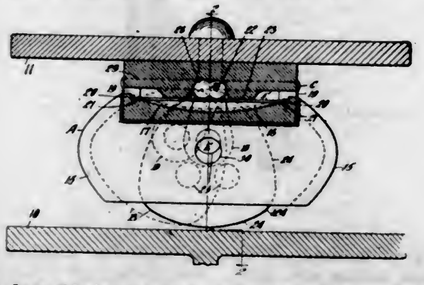
1. A wire tying machine embodying a shaft, a plurality of tension heads rotatable therewith, a tension lever, means operated by the lever for imparting a rotative motion to the shaft and the heads, and splice forming means for joining a looped band while said band is under tension by the action of said heads.

1,682,016. METHOD OF AND MACHINE FOR PRODUCING DEFORMED WIRE TIES. JOHN SHERMAN MCCHESNEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Gerrard Company, Inc., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,283. 35 Claims. (Cl. 140—78.)



1. In the art of making wire ties, the process which consists in straightening wire and feeding it in a prescribed path, cutting said wire to produce a piece the length of which is a multiple of a plurality of individual ties, shifting the multi-length piece out of the path of feed of the wire, and severing the shifted multi-length piece to produce a plurality of individual ties.

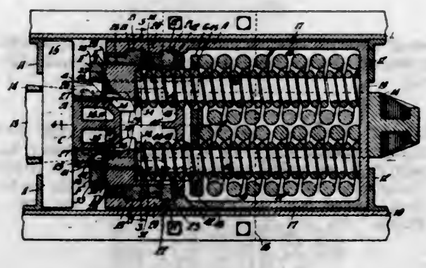
1,682,017. MACHINE FOR MECHANICALLY MIXING TOBACCO LEAVES. HEINRICH MÜLLER, Gross Flottbeck, near Hamburg, Germany, assignor to the Firm Johann Carl Müller, Dresden-A., Germany. Filed Dec. 24, 1926, Serial No. 156,851, and in Germany Nov. 7, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 226—19.)



1. In a machine for automatically mixing tobacco leaves, a plurality of individual conveyors each adapted to carry a different brand of leaves, a common conveyor onto which the different brands of leaves are deposited from said individual conveyors, a stationary funnel shaped chute at one end of said common conveyor to receive the mixture of different leaves from the latter and a series of individual receptacles moving past said stationary receptacle so that the leaves are distributed therein from the latter in uniform successive layers.

1,682,018. POP-CORN MACHINE. SWAN NELSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 14, 1927. Serial No. 226,179. 9 Claims. (Cl. 53—4.)

1. A corn popper comprising a trough, and a sweep arm movable along and in substantial contact with the floor of the trough throughout the major portion of its travel therealong, the floor of the trough diverging tangentially from the path of travel of the paddle toward the end of the path of travel.



1,682,019. SIDE BEARING. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to W. H. Miner, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 16, 1928. Serial No. 651,739. 5 Claims. (Cl. 308—226.)

2. In a side bearing adapted to be attached to a body bolster, the combination with a retaining member having an upper bearing surface; of an anti-friction element adapted to roll during operation thereof; pendulum means yieldingly sustained by said retaining member; and means pivotally supporting said element from said pendulum means.

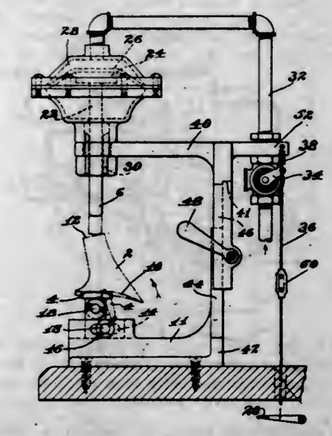
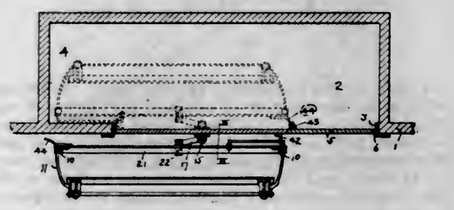
1,682,020. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 12, 1927. Serial No. 174,730. 5 Claims. (Cl. 213—32.)



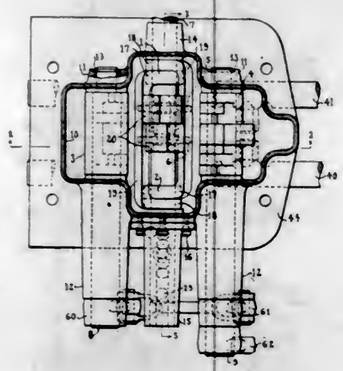
1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with a friction shell; of shoes co-operating with the shell; a wedge anchored to the shell, the wedge being limited against outward movement by said anchoring means, said wedge block and shoes being cut away to permit insertion of the shoes within the shell after the wedge has been anchored to the shell; spring resistance means within the shell yieldingly opposing movement of said shoes inwardly of the shell; and detachable face plates mounted on the shoes, said face plates being interposed between the wedge and shoes and engaging the wedge to limit movement of the shoes outwardly of the shell.

1,682,021. BUFFING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 31, 1927. Serial No. 179,863. 5 Claims. (Cl. 213—222.)



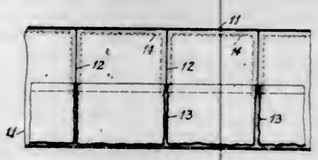
1. In a buffing mechanism of the character described, the combination with a housing; of yieldable means within said housing and bearing thereagainst; a friction system mounted in said housing, including friction elements and a wedge constructed to move in unison under relatively light shocks transmitted to said wedge and to move relatively with respect to each other to develop friction under the influence of relatively heavier shocks transmitted to said wedge; means for transmitting movement of said friction system to said yieldable means both under light and relatively heavier shocks; and a buffer head disposed within said housing and about said friction system and operating to transmit shocks to said wedge, said buffer head being guided in its movements by said housing.

1,682,022. WOOD-HEEL-BLOCK CLAMP. WESLEY JOHN SHAW, Haverhill, Mass., assignor to New England Wood Heel Co., Haverhill, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 14, 1926. Serial No. 141,480. 14 Claims. (Cl. 12—123.)



1. A heel-block clamp for use in covering concaved wood-heel blocks having, in combination, a convex jaw adapted to engage the concave face of the block, a cooperating jaw adapted to engage the tread of the block, and foot-controlled, fluid-pressure means for actuating the cooperating jaw towards the convex jaw.

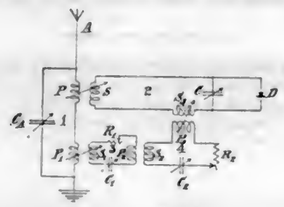
1,682,023. FOLDING BED. NEIL SINCLAIR, Oakland, Calif., assignor to Rip Van Winkle Wall Bed Company, Inc., Oakland, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Nov. 22, 1921. Serial No. 516,939. 12 Claims. (Cl. 5—170.)



1. A bed mounted on a relatively narrower panel, said panel rotatable about a vertical axis, a hinged door adjacent the panel and adapted when opened to allow the bed to pass through the opening so formed, means supporting the bed in combination with the said panel and admitting of a lateral displacement of the bed with respect to the face of the panel, and means forcing said lateral displacement as said panel is rotated whereby the bed both before and after rotation of the panel is forced to extend substantially beyond that edge of the panel then remote from said door and leave unobstructed the passageway closed by said door.

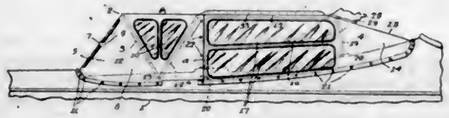
1,682,024. GEAR-SHIFTING MECHANISM. WILLIAM C. STEVENS and HERMAN J. TAYLOR, Milwaukee, Wis., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Vulcan Motor Devices Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Continuation of application Serial No. 522,997, filed Dec. 17, 1921. This application filed Sept. 22, 1922. Serial No. 589,886. 30 Claims. (Cl. 74—58.)

1. In a gear shifting device, in combination, spaced elements, each of varying contour and a part located between said elements and cooperable with surfaces of said elements selectively to effect gear changes for different speed settings.



1,682,025. AIRSHIP. HANS STROBL, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Luftschiffbau Zeppelin G. m. b. H., Friedrichshafen, Bodensee, Germany. Filed Feb. 18, 1927, Serial No. 169,176, and in Germany Mar. 2, 1926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 244—3.)

A rigid airship comprising an outer shell; transverse walls in the upper portion of said shell subdividing it into compartments; the walls of two adjacent ones of said compartments being gas-tight; two gas-tight bags, each of said bags being widely open at its top; the rim of the upper opening of one of said bags fitting and being fastened to the lower end of one of said gas-tight upper compartments; the rim of the upper opening of said second bag fitting and being fastened to the lower end of said second gas-tight upper compartment; every one of said two bags together with the space of its corresponding upper compartment forming a gas cell; the walls of said bags in size and shape being adapted to fit also closely to the inside of the corresponding compartments, respectively.



1,682,026. PREVENTION OF INTERFERENCE IN RADIORECEPTION. FREDERICK K. VREELAND, Montclair, N. J. Filed July 12, 1921. Serial No. 484,059. 19 Claims. (Cl. 250—20.)

1. The method of receiving radio signal impulses and simultaneously eliminating sustained radio signal interference which consists in neutralizing the effect of interfering signal currents by an equal and opposite effect selectively derived from the same radio signal current that produces the interfering effect, and observing the unbalanced signal effect.

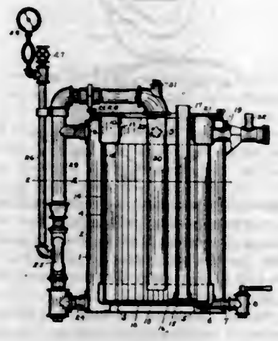
1,682,027. FOLDING TOP FOR FLYING BOATS. PAUL G. ZIMMERMANN and BORIS V. KORVIN-KROUKOVSKY, Keyport, N. J., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Healey-Aeromarine Bus Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 17, 1922. Serial No. 601,466. 5 Claims. (Cl. 135—6.)



4. A folding top for flying-boats, comprising foldable front and rear sections parting transversely, the front section comprising a flexible cover and transverse pivoted bows adapted to fold forward and downward, the rear section comprising two halves parting longitudinally, said halves comprising flexible covers and longitudinal pivoted bows adapted to fold oppositely outward and downward, a strip on the edge of one of the rear cover halves, said strip in the erected condition being supported at its front end on a bow of the front section, and rows of fastenings for connecting the sections at the partings, a longitudinal row of the fastening elements for connecting the two rear cover halves being carried by said strip.

1,682,028. RECEPTACLE. CLARENCE H. YOUNG, Boston, Mass. Filed Sept. 30, 1926. Serial No. 138,665. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—97.)

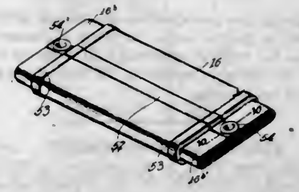
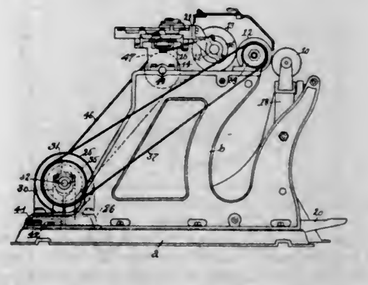
1,682,029. LIQUID HEATER. WALTER A. BARRETT, Fort Wayne, Ind. Filed Aug. 31, 1925. Serial No. 53,496. 2 Claims. (Cl. 257—209.)



1. A heater comprising three receptacles one within the other, the intermediate receptacle being spaced from each of the others, the side walls of the intermediate and innermost receptacles being vertically corrugated and fit one within the other in spaced relation to form a transversely narrow passageway between said walls, a chamber communicating with the upper end of the passageway, means to conduct the liquid to be heated to the lower end of the passageway to cause the liquid to rise in a film in said passageway and discharge into the chamber, a heating medium in the outer and innermost receptacles and contacting with the said corrugated walls and means to withdraw the said medium from the outer receptacle and deliver it to the innermost receptacle from which latter receptacle the said medium overflows back into the outer receptacle for uniformly heating the said corrugated walls.

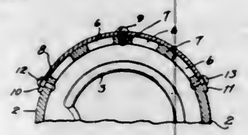
1,682,030. CONTAINER AND METHOD OF MANUFACTURE. JOSEPH BERG, Long Island City, N. Y. Filed May 22, 1925. Serial No. 32,062. 10 Claims. (Cl. 206—8.)

5. In a container, in combination, a container body having a wall portion provided with a straight end edge, and a lid for said body having a wall portion provided with a straight end edge, the straight end edge of the wall portion of the lid bearing on and pivotally contacting with the straight end edge of the wall portion of said body for unattached tilting movement of the lid.



1,682,031. ELECTRIC CONDENSER AND PROCESS OF MANUFACTURE. GEORGE EPAM BLIZIOTIS, Newark, N. J., assignor to Consolidated Research Laboratories, Inc., Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 21, 1927. Serial No. 176,896. 8 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.)

1. An electric condenser comprising a pair of insulated foil strips of equal width, said strips being disposed in staggered relation to each other and formed into a flattened coil having its central portion compressed to form bands near the ends of the coil.

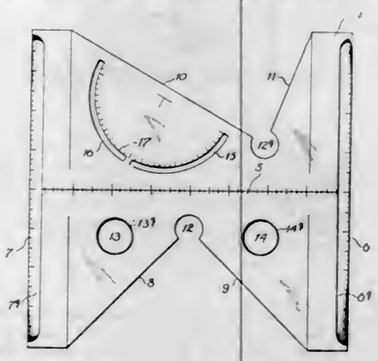


4. An electric condenser comprising a layered coil composed of a strip formed from two plies of metallic foil uniform in width and arranged in staggered relation, an insulative coating on each ply and over the coalesced strip, both ends of said strip having its plies separated and folded back upon themselves to prevent current leakage.

1,682,032. MACHINE FOR TREATING HIDES, SKINS, AND LEATHER. JOHN J. BROPHY, Salem, and WINN E. BROUGHTON, Peabody, Mass., assignors to The Turner Tanning Machinery Company, Peabody, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed May 25, 1922. Serial No. 563,616. 3 Claims. (Cl. 149—16.)

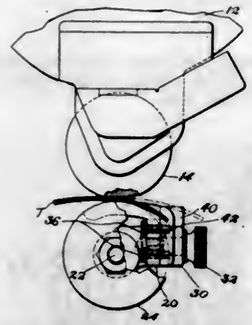
1. In a machine of the character described, in combination, a framework comprising a base and upright side frames, a bladed cylinder, a grinding wheel and a driving drum for said grinding wheel supported by said side frames, a belt connecting said grinding wheel with said drum, a motor support mounted on said base between said side frames and adjustable thereon toward and from said bladed cylinder, side arms extended from said support and provided with bearing boxes extended beyond said side frames, an electric motor mounted on said adjustable support and having its rotor provided with a shaft supported by said bearing boxes, belts connecting the rotor shaft with the bladed cylinder, and a belt connecting the rotor shaft with said driving drum.

1,682,033. HIGH-PRESSURE GAUGE CASING HAVING AN EXPLOSION VENT. RUDOLPH E. BRUCKNER, Bayside, N. Y., assignor to National Gauge and Equipment Company, La Crosse, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 15, 1927. Serial No. 219,586. 6 Claims. (Cl. 73—109.)



1. In a gauge, the combination of a casing provided with safety vents, a flexible cover forming a closure for said vents, means for rigidly attaching said cover to the casing, and means for slidably retaining an end of said cover in contact with said casing.

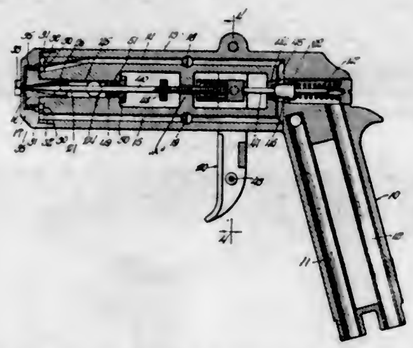
1,682,034. SURVEYING INSTRUMENT. DONALD M. BURMISTER, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Keuffel & Esser Company, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 16, 1927. Serial No. 184,213. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—2 3.)



1. A device of the character described comprising a casing having an eyepiece at one end, a sight strip at the other end, an angle mirror intermediate the ends of the casing and having an edge which is perpendicular to said sight strip when viewed through said eyepiece, a pair of angularly-related apertures in said casing, and means for supporting said mirror and sight strip within said casing to present said mirror in alignment with either of said apertures.

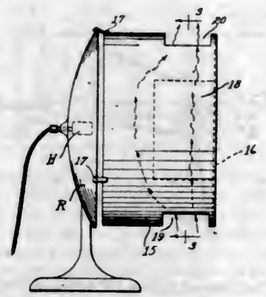
1,682,035. PLOTTING INSTRUMENT. ALBERT LORING CLARK, Jr., Ann Arbor, Mich. Filed June 13, 1923. Serial No. 645,035. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—104.)

1. A plotting instrument comprising a polygonal plate made of flexible material, the sides of the plate having parallel edges, scales on the plate adjacent said edges, and a scale extending between and at right angles to said scales, one end of the plate having two reentrant and converging edges adjoining each other and extending at acute angles to said scales, said plate being adapted to be flexed and positioned so that a portion thereof containing one of said reentrant edges will overlie an additional instrument and the edge adjoining said one edge will engage an edge of the additional instrument to angularly position the side edges of the plate parallel to a line of reference so that parallel and perpendicular distances relatively to said reference line may be simultaneously measured by means of the scales.



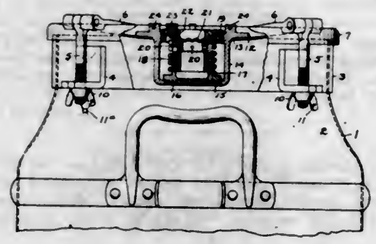
1,682,036. CEMENTING MACHINE. JOHN W. COSGROVE, Medford, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 27, 1922. Serial No. 556,870. 14 Claims. (Cl. 91—49.)

5. In a cementing machine, a cement-applying roll, a co-operating work-supporting roll, means for rotating said rolls to advance the work, and a work-supporting finger fixed adjacent to the supporting roll and opposite the applying roll and at a greater distance from the applying roll than is the supporting roll.



14. In a coating machine, an applying member, a plurality of pressure members for holding the work in engagement with the applying member, and means having a portion arranged to guide the work in contact with plural pressure members and a portion arranged to guide said work in contact with a different number of pressure members than are made effective by the first-mentioned portion.

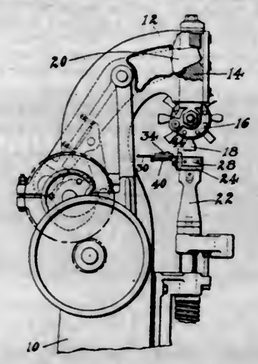
1,682,037. SPRAY GUN. ALBERT M. CRAIG, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 20, 1924. Serial No. 744,544. 17 Claims. (Cl. 91—45.)



1. A spray gun having a barrel portion, having a face lying substantially in a transverse plane, said face having two air distributing channels therein, a color tip covering one of said channels, an air cap covering the other distributing channel, said color tip having a paint supply passage therethrough, and having passages therethrough placing the distributing channel covered thereby in communication with the space between the color tip and the air cap, said air cap having a spreader jet passage therein in communication with the distributing channel covered by said air cap.

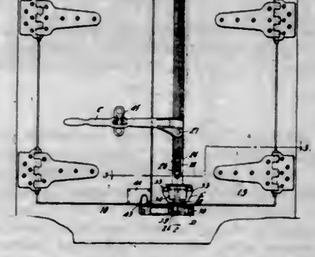
1,682,038. RADIANT-HEATER ATTACHMENT. GEORGE L. DAVENPORT, Jr., Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 1, 1927. Serial No. 209,832. 2 Claims. (Cl. 126—86.)

2. The combination with a radiant heater employing a concavo-convex reflector, of an attachment therefor consisting of a cylindrical body member open at its rear portion and closed at its front portion, the open rear portion having a diameter agreeing approximately with that of the reflector of the heater, a cylindrical baffle extending from the closed front portion of the body member and terminating in spaced relation to the said open rear portion and being of less diameter than the inside diameter of the body member, the body member having an air intake opening at a point beneath the baffle and an outlet opening above the baffle for the heated air, and means securing the body member to the reflector of the heater so as to closely relate the said open rear portion with the concave of the reflector.



1,682,039. CONTAINER. RALPH L. FEAGLES, Fort Wayne, Ind. Filed Nov. 3, 1926. Serial No. 145,945. 3 Claims. (Cl. 220—44.)

1. The combination, with an open top receptacle, of a lid adapted to receive the mouth of the receptacle, co-operating means on the lid and on the receptacle for locking and sealing the lid to the receptacle, a vent in the lid and a spring opposed valve below the lid and normally closing the vent and adapted to open the same under the influence of an accumulation of pressure within the receptacle.



1,682,040. WORK-POSITIONING DEVICE. JOHN C. HARDIE, Brockton, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 14, 1926. Serial No. 129,203. 6 Claims. (Cl. 101—407.)

1. In a machine for operating upon boot and shoe parts, a work-positioning device comprising a work support, a slidable end gage associated with said work support and resiliently held in forward position, and relatively fixed indicating means associated with the work support and constructed and arranged to cooperate with another portion of a piece of work to enable the operator to move each piece of the work against the tension of the gage to bring that piece of work to desired position over the work support.

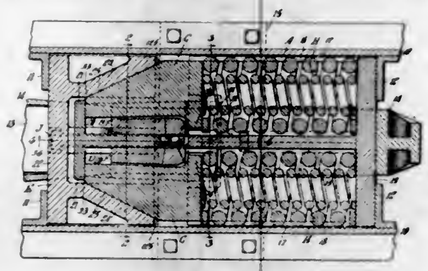
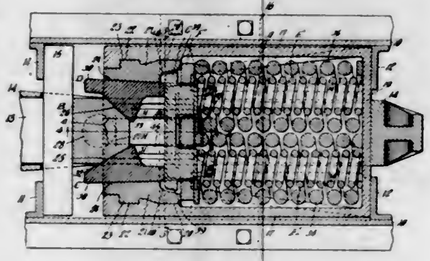
1,682,041. REFRIGERATOR - CAR - DOOR - OPERATING MECHANISM. STACY B. HASELTINE, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to W. H. Miner, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 21, 1924. Serial No. 687,528. 12 Claims. (Cl. 268—72.)



1. In a door operating mechanism, the combination with a member having a door opening and a pivoted door; of a keeper fixed to said member adjacent the door opening, said keeper being provided with an elongated slot; an operating rotary shaft mounted on the door; means for rotating the shaft; means for effecting bodily movement of the shaft transversely of the door when rotated; and eccentric means on said shaft co-acting with the slot of said keeper for effecting movement of the door, said means being moved eccentrically to the shaft while partaking of the bodily movement of the shaft.

1,682,042. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. STACY B. HASELTINE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 11, 1926. Serial No. 154,077. 12 Claims. (Cl. 213—36.)



1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with a main follower; of a friction post; inwardly acting wedge means, said wedge means and main follower being relatively movable toward and away from each other; friction shoes co-operating with said wedge means; spring resistance means opposing relative movement of said shoes and main follower; movable friction elements interposed between the friction post and shoes; and means for arresting relative movement of the main follower and friction elements after a predetermined compression of the mechanism, thereby compelling relative movement of said shoes and friction elements during the remainder of the compression stroke.

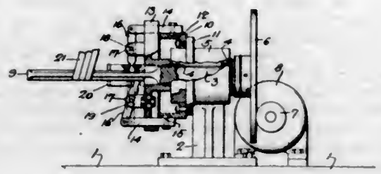
1,682,043. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. STACY B. HASELTINE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 16, 1927. Serial No. 168,558. 10 Claims. (Cl. 213—32.)

1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with a friction shell; friction shoes cooperating therewith; spring resistance means opposing movement of the shoes; a wedge engaging the shoes; and means for holding the wedge assembled with the shell, including retaining means providing a lost motion connection, said retaining means being separate from and embracing the wedge and detachably anchored to the wedge and shell.



1,682,044. FAN. HEINRICH G. HERION, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 14, 1928. Serial No. 254,278. 3 Claims. (Cl. 230—261.)

1. A fan of the character described including a body, a shaft operatively supported within the body and carrying a pinion, a reciprocable rack mounted upon the body and having teeth engaging said pinion and having a stem extending out beyond the body whereby the rack may be reciprocated, a spring resisting movement of the rack in one direction and resiliently urging it in the opposite direction, a second shaft having fan blades thereon, a gear wheel loosely mounted upon the first named shaft and operatively engaging the second named shaft to rotate it, a friction clutch between the first named shaft and the gear wheel comprising a cam having a plurality of lobes, each lobe having a curved edge face, the gear wheel being recessed for the reception of said eccentric, and circular members mounted within said recess and disposed between the curved edges of the lobes and the outer wall of the recess, said clutch being operative upon an inward movement of the stem to clutch the shaft to the gear wheel but become inoperative upon an outward movement of the stem.

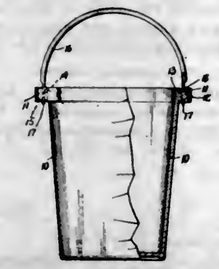
1,682,045. TUBE-WINDING MACHINE. CHARLES HOLLMANN, Fort Wayne, Ind. Filed Apr. 11, 1927. Serial No. 182,648. 6 Claims. (Cl. 93—80.)

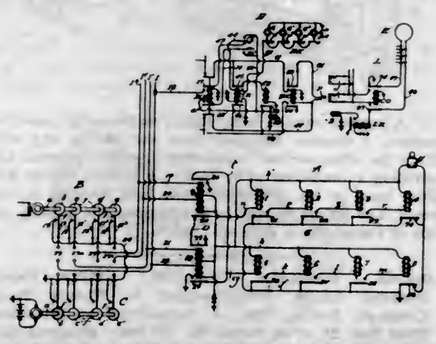
1. In a tube winding machine, a rotatable mandrel, reciprocable members longitudinally disposed in the mandrel, means engaging the members and adapted to reciprocate them and a fixed member movably engaged by the latter means to cause said means to reciprocate the members.

1,682,046. COMBINATION TIE AND COLLAR FOLDER. RAYMOND E. JOHNSON, Manistee, Mich. Filed Nov. 5, 1927. Serial No. 231,358. 3 Claims. (Cl. 150—53.)



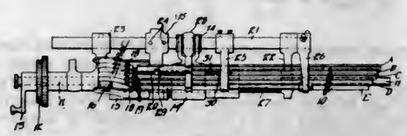
1. A folder of the class described, comprising: a pair of end panels; a pair of intermediate panels; a covering extending around said panels, said covering forming a flexible hinge intermediate the adjacent edges of said intermediate panels and intermediate the adjacent edges of said end panels and said intermediate panels; a non-flexible reinforcing member in said intermediate panels; a flexible reinforcing member in said end panels; and supporting means on the inner face of each of said intermediate panels.

1,682,047. SIGN HOLDER. JOHN T. LANG and CHARLES F. SCHOEFER, Tottenville, N. Y. Filed Sept. 26, 1927. Serial No. 222,049. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—125.)



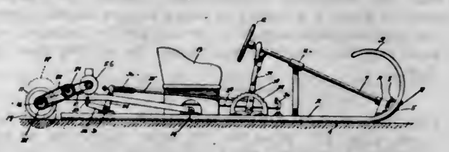
The combination with a seat back, of an advertising display device comprising a slotted sign holder, a sign in said slot, a removable retainer forming a top for the sign holder and being slotted to fit over the upper edge of the sign, a depending tongue on one end of the retainer, an extension on the opposite end, a tubular portion on one end of the holder into which said extension fits, a slotted portion on the opposite end of the holder into which the tongue fits, means for locking the tongue in the slotted portion, and means for securing the holder to the seat.

1,682,048. RECEPTACLE AND HANDLE THEREFOR. LOUIS LEVIEN, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 24, 1927. Serial No. 215,162. 2 Claims. (Cl. 215—100.)



1. A glass receptacle having two pairs of tapered projections integral therewith, holding projections integral with said receptacle and located in the spaces between said tapered projections and substantially flush with the outer surface of said tapered projections, and a handle made of resilient material having perforated ends adapted to engage said recesses.

1,682,049. ALARM CIRCUIT. JOHN F. MEYERS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 13, 1924. Serial No. 743,237. 5 Claims. (Cl. 177—311.)

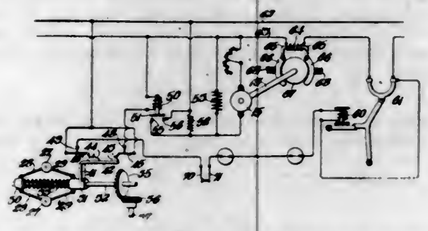


1. An alarm system for ringing interrupters comprising in combination, an alarm, an alarm circuit, means for maintaining the alarm circuit open during the normal operation of the interrupter comprising a train of quick-pick-up-slow-release relays, means whereby the first relay of the train is energized periodically by the interrupter, means whereby the energization of each of the remaining relays is controlled by its preceding relay independently of the interrupter and means whereby the deenergization of the last relay in the train closes the alarm circuit, the number of relays and their period of release being such that the last relay of the train will not be deenergized between successive closures of the circuit of the first relay by the interrupter.

1,682,050. FEEDING ATTACHMENT FOR KNITTING MACHINES. WILLIAM NEBEL, Charlotte, N. C. Filed May 27, 1926. Serial No. 112,140. 8 Claims. (Cl. 66—128.)

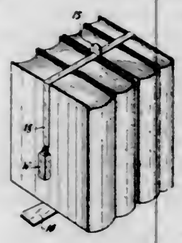
8. In a knitting machine, a main yarn carrier rod for the instep yarn, splicing yarn carriers for constant width sole splicing, a first set of stops for limiting the movement of the carrier rods in one direction, a second stop means spaced from but moving with said first set of stop for limiting the movement of the splicing carrier rod in the opposite direction, said first and second stops both movable simultaneously inward step-by-step for narrowing, means independent of said first and second stops normally out of operative relation to said splicing carrier rod for moving it inwardly simultaneously with said first and second stops in the same direction and for the same distance at each step in the narrowing operation, the inward movement of the first stops serving to limit the movement of the instep yarn carrier whereby the first and second stops for the splicing yarn carrier may be shifted at the end of each course.

1,682,051. MOTOR TOBOGGAN. HERMAN E. PEARSON, Wayzata, Minn. Filed Mar. 1, 1924. Serial No. 696,358. 2 Claims. (Cl. 180—6.)



1. In combination with a toboggan having a driver's seat substantially intermediately thereof in a lengthwise direction, a frame pivoted at one end substantially beneath the seat and extending rearwardly, said frame having traction means engageable rearwardly of the toboggan, means mounted upon the frame for driving said traction means, means for raising and lowering the frame, including a lever, and rod, said rod extending to a point forwardly of the seat, and an operating lever pivotally engaged with the forward end of the rod, and arranged in front of the driver's seat.

1,682,052. ESCALATOR. ARTHUR RADCLIFFE, Boston, Mass. Filed Jan. 30, 1926. Serial No. 84,929. 4 Claims. (Cl. 198—232.)



2. An escalator having in combination an endless conveyer member, an electric motor for driving said conveyer member, a circuit for said motor, a governor operatively connected with said conveyer member and responsive to the speed thereof, a plurality of independent circuits provided with circuit controllers, and a controlling member co-operating with said independent circuit controllers and operated by said governor to maintain both of said circuit controllers closed when the conveyer member is running at normal speed, to open the circuit governed by one of said circuit controllers when the speed of the conveyer member exceeds the normal speed a predetermined amount, to maintain the circuit governed by the other circuit controller closed at said increased speed of the conveyer member, and to open the circuit of the second circuit controller when the speed of the conveyer member is increased a further predetermined amount.

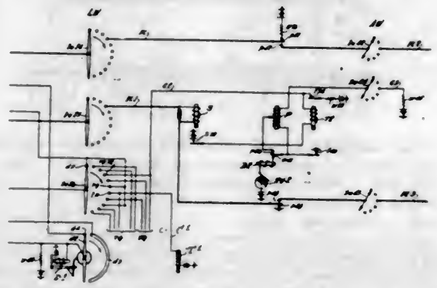
1,682,053. BOOK SUPPORT. FELIX J. RUSH, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 20, 1927. Serial No. 241,430. 4 Claims. (Cl. 211—43.)



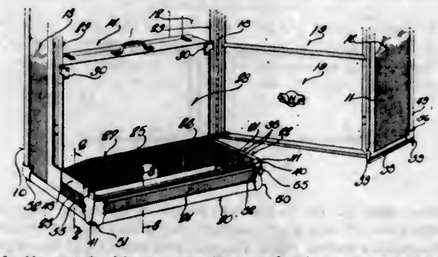
1. A book support comprising a base, a standard of thin construction extending upward therefrom and including a slide for additional elevation and against the opposite sides of which a plurality of books may be nested closely, and flexible means carried by the upright for engaging outward over the remote sides of books for holding them upright.

1,682,054. PEACH-SIZING MACHINE. WILLIAM H. TAYLOR, Anna, Ill. Filed Feb. 27, 1926. Serial No. 91,180. 1 Claim. (Cl. 209—103.)

In a fruit-sizing machine, an inclined sizing deck having an opening, a sizing roller journaled at the lower edge of the opening, means for rotating the roller, a gate on the deck at the upper edge of the opening, the gate being spaced from all portions of the roller and being inclined upwardly from the deck toward the upper portion of the surface of the roller, there being an unincumbered opening between the gate and the roller, the gate cooperating with the roller to vary the effective size of the opening, and means for holding all portions of the gate fixedly in adjusted positions and in spaced relation to the roller at all times.

1,682,055. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. ADOLF WASCHNACK, Neu Finkenkrug, Germany, assignor to Siemens & Halske Aktiengesellschaft, Wernerwerk, Siemensstadt, near Berlin, Germany. Filed Mar. 1, 1924, Serial No. 696,130, and in Germany Mar. 29, 1923. 8 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)

1. In a telephone system, an automatic switch, subscribers' lines and trunk lines terminating in the banks of said switch, a set of wipers for said switch adapted to be moved in one direction only, means responsive to impulses sent to said switch for moving said wipers into engagement with the set of bank contacts corresponding to the number of impulses sent, said means including a side switch, and means for determining the extent of operation of said side switch depending on whether said wipers are positioned on the contacts terminating a subscriber's line or a trunk line.



1,682,056. BAGGAGE CARRIER. GEORGE HENRY WHEARY, Racine, Wis., assignor to Wheary Trunk Co., Racine, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Sept. 15, 1924. Serial No. 737,824. 10 Claims. (Cl. 190—13.)

3. A baggage carrier, comprising two hingedly connected sections, a member extended from one section and over which the other section is movable to closed position and providing a compartment to receive a portion of the garments hung in the section to which said member is connected, and means carried by the member for holding the ends of the garments disposed therein.

1,682,057. BAGGAGE CARRIER. GEORGE HENRY WHEARY, Racine, Wis., assignor to Wheary Trunk Company, Racine, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Nov. 24, 1924, Serial No. 751,888. Renewed Mar. 28, 1927. 21 Claims. (Cl. 190—28.)

7. A baggage carrier, comprising a pair of hingedly connected sections each including front and side panels, a member extended laterally from one section and over which the other section is movable to closed position, said member including front and side panels, a valance carried by the front panel of the movable section and the side panel thereof adjacent the hinge connection, said valance overlying the adjacent side and front panels of said member when the sections are closed, and a valance carried by the other side panel of said member and overlying the adjacent side panel of the movable section when the sections are closed.

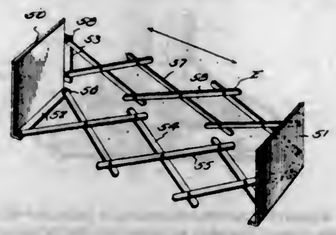
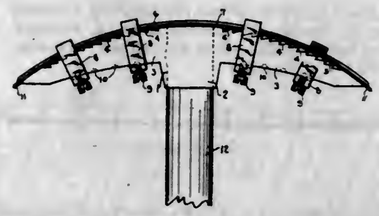
1,682,058. PROCESS FOR MAKING METALLIC TUNGSTEN. KOJI ANJOW, Tokyo Fu, Japan, assignor to Mitsubishi Kogyo Kabushiki Kaisha, Tokyo, Japan, a Corporation of Japan. Filed July 3, 1926, Serial No. 120,532, and in Japan May 18, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 75—17.)



1. A process of treating crude metallic tungsten to obtain technically pure tungsten therefrom, which consists in heating the crude metallic tungsten with an aqueous solution of alkali in a closed vessel under pressure.

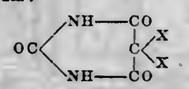
1,682,059. GOLF PRACTICING MACHINE. JOHN CLAYTON BACKUS, Smethport, Pa. Filed July 16, 1927. Serial No. 206,277. 14 Claims. (Cl. 265—22.)



1. A golf practicing machine including a casing, distance-indicating means and direction-indicating means mounted upon the casing, and a captive golf ball operatively connected to said indicating means by a flexible element, a portion of the casing having thereon a mat simulating turf upon which the golf ball may be placed, said mat having therein a tee projecting above the mat upon which the ball may be placed.

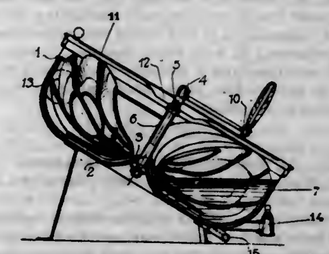
1,682,060. ADJUSTABLE BOOKHOLDER. ROBERT W. BANKS, El Dorado, Ark. Filed Jan. 20, 1926. Serial No. 82,597. 1 Claim. (Cl. 211—43.)

A book holder comprising a pair of end plates, inwardly directed flanges formed on the lower edges of the end plates, book supporting lazy tong construction connecting the flanges together, inwardly directed flanges formed on the rear edges of the end plates, and a lazy tong construction connecting said last mentioned flanges together.



1,682,061. BRICKLAYER'S TOOL. ANDREW BELL, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed May 11, 1927. Serial No. 190,512. 1 Claim. (Cl. 125—42.)

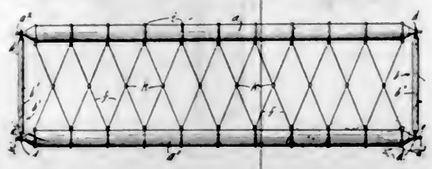
1. In a device of the class described, a body member, a central eye in this body member for the reception of a handle, two downwardly curved arms projecting outwardly from said body member, a plurality of notches formed on the upper surface of said arms, a flexible point member having a downwardly turned end functioning in said notches and resting upon the upper surface of said notches, a flexible upper securing member positioned directly above said point members, a plurality of clamps holding securely said point members between an upper securing member and upper surface of said notches and including a clamp near the outer ends of said arms, means for adjusting and fastening said plurality of clamps, substsntially as described.



1,682,062. SOPORIFICS CONTAINING AT LEAST ONE ALKINYL GROUP. MAX BOCKMÜHL, RUDOLF SCHWABE, and GUSTAV EHRHART, Hochst-on-the-Main, Germany, assignors, by mesne assignments, to Winthrop Chemical Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 15, 1926, Serial No. 155,097, and in Germany June 11, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 260—33.)

1. As new products, soporifics being derivatives of barbituric acid and containing at least one alkinyl group in the five position of the barbituric acid ring, corresponding to the general formula:

wherein X means an alkyl, alkenyl, alkinyl or phenyl group, but at least one X being an alkinyl group.



1,682,063. DISH WASHING AND DRYING MACHINE. JULES-LOUIS BRETON, Bellevue, France. Filed Mar. 24, 1925, Serial No. 17,983, and in France Dec. 31, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 141—9.)

In a dish-washing machine, a tank having its axis inclined; and a dish support inside said tank mounted to rotate about an inclined axis coinciding with the tank axis, said dish support having means associated with it for holding dishes therein in a position such that each dish is inclined both to the axis of rotation and to the horizontal plane of the water level in the tank, whereby the successive dishes are caused to pick up and carry the water with them during their movement with the support and thereafter pour it upon the dishes below them.

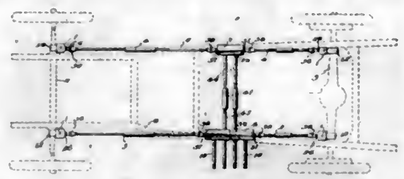
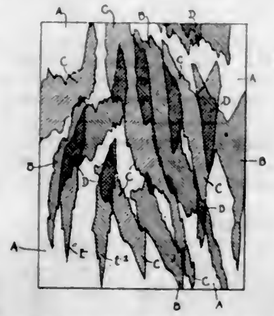
1,682,064. RAFT FOR TRANSPORTING TIMBER. ALBERT H. BRYANT and EDWARD G. TUCK, Portland, Oreg. Filed July 6, 1927. Serial No. 203,800. 3 Claims. (Cl. 9—15.)

1. A raft of the character described comprising a substantially rectangular frame composed of rigid side-members extending the full length of the frame and rigid bands secured on the side-members, fastening elements secured to said bands, load carrying members comprising diverging cable-lengths secured to said fastening elements of the side-members and connected intermediate the latter, load securing cables also fastened to said fastening elements.



1,682,065. LIQUID-FUEL VAPORIZER. MURRICE T. BRYAN, Redondo Beach, Calif. Filed Nov. 14, 1925. Serial No. 68,976. 4 Claims. (Cl. 48—102.)

1. A liquid fuel vaporizer, comprising a float chamber, a liquid fuel vapor chamber, a liquid fuel receptacle on the bottom of said vapor chamber and having an opening therein, a jacket surrounding said vapor chamber in which hot exhaust gases are adapted to circulate, a liquid fuel pipe connecting said receptacle and said float chamber, and valve means in said liquid fuel receptacle controlling the opening from said receptacle into said liquid fuel vapor chamber, a syiphon connected to said vapor chamber, a second valve means in said pipe, and a control rod extending from said syiphon to said second valve means, whereby the second valve means is actuated.



1,682,066. AUTOMOBILE JACK. FRANCIS C. CASEY, Claflin, Kans. Filed May 23, 1927. Serial No. 193,689. 4 Claims. (Cl. 254—86.)

1. In combination with a vehicle chassis including side bars and front and rear axles, bearings carried by said axles, posts movable vertically through said bearings, gear housings carried by the respective side bars intermediate the length of said chassis, driven shafts extending longitudinally of said chassis with their outer ends extending into said bearings and their inner ends into the gear housing on the respectively adjacent side bar, actuating shafts extending transversely of said chassis and having ends projecting from one side of said chassis whereby said shafts may be selectively rotated at a single operating point the other ends of the actuating shafts being each disposed within one of said gear housings and having geared connection with a driven shaft therein, and means for transmitting vertical movement to said posts from companion driven shafts when the respective actuating shafts are rotated.

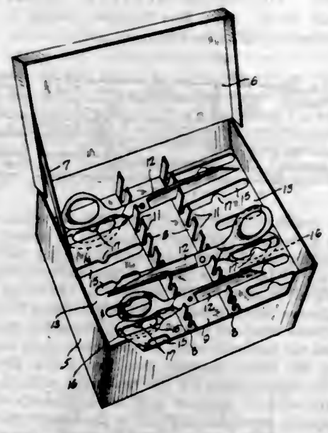
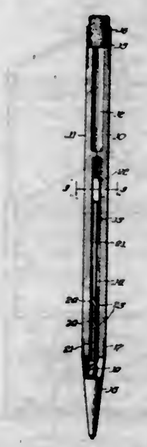
1,682,067. MARBLEIZING PROCESS. LLOYD V. CASTO, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Oxford Varnish Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Jan. 24, 1927. Serial No. 163,200. Renewed Mar. 16, 1928. 14 Claims. (Cl. 101—170.)



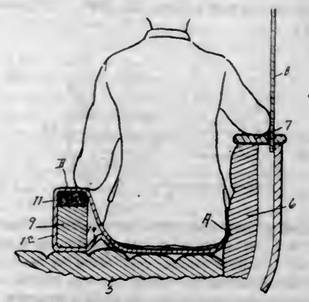
10. A process of reproducing a marble appearance on a hard surface comprising using an etched printing surface prepared from a positive carbon resist of the marble surface to be simulated by applying a ground coat to the surface to be finished, then using the etched plate or roll to make transfers of different colors, each successive transfer being made by using a pigment of a darker color than any of the preceding applied pigments.

1,682,068. SELECTIVE TELEPHONE SYSTEM. JOHN F. CAVANAGH, Providence, R. I., assignor to The Screw Machine Products Corporation, Providence, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 751,824. 17 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



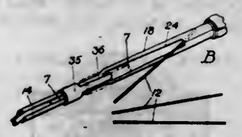
1. In a selective telephone system, a plurality of stations, means for connecting said stations in circuit, an automatic selecting switchboard for partially completing the connection between said stations, controlling means interposed in said connecting means at one of said stations for connecting that station to be called before the connection between any two other stations can be completed, and manually operable means for completing the connection between said two other stations.

1,682,069. SHIPPING AND DISPLAY BOX. JOHN J. CONWAY, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The Acme Shear Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Nov. 8, 1927. Serial No. 231,849. 5 Claims. (Cl. 206—44.)



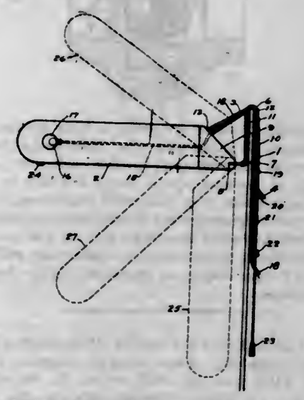
1. A shipping and display box comprising a body and a cover therefor, a transverse partition and support spaced above the bottom of the body, and having transversely extending slots to receive a bow of a pair of shears, and an upright longitudinally extending rack having vertical notches in its upper edge to receive the blades or shanks of the shears and hold them in the upright position.

1,682,070. PENCIL. FRANK C. DELI, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Autopoint Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Original application filed Oct. 3, 1921, Serial No. 504,839. Divided and this application filed Dec. 30, 1924. Serial No. 758,831. 3 Claims. (Cl. 120—18.)



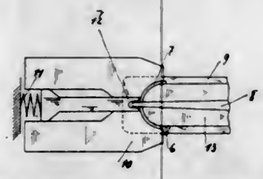
1. In a pencil, the combination of a body, and lead-advancing mechanism including a plunger, said plunger having side projections that act as threads, said projections being formed of metal that has been displaced laterally from the body of the plunger.

1,682,071. MOVABLE ARM REST. JOHN FINN, Mill Valley, Calif. Filed May 9, 1927. Serial No. 189,935. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—198.)



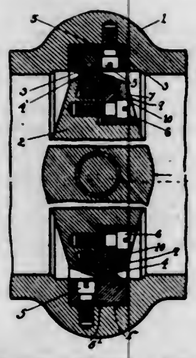
1. In a movable arm rest for use in combination with a seat, a block adapted to rest upon the seat, a fabric strip secured to said block adjacent the upper and lower extremities thereof and extending to one side of said block.

1,682,072. PENCIL. HOWARD L. FISCHER, St. Paul, Minn., assignor to Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed May 25, 1925. Serial No. 32,788. 8 Claims. (Cl. 120—14.)



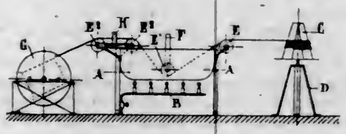
2. A closure for a pencil lead magazine, including a spring collar, and a closure tongue formed on said collar.

1,682,073. SIGNAL DEVICE. HERBERT E. FISHER, Seattle, Wash. Filed Oct. 22, 1927. Serial No. 227,918. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—54.)



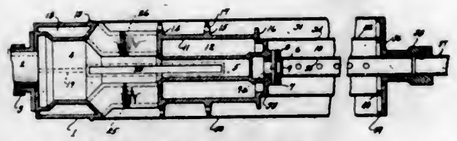
1. In a device of the class described, an arm comprising a comparatively thin flat piece of material with a hub at one end, a bracket for supporting the arm comprising a saddle and a wire, said wire bent in the form of an inverted U with means at the lower end of one leg for pivotally supporting the arm through the hub and a loop with converging sides at the lower end of the other leg, and a cord attached to the arm through the hub, passing over a saddle at the upper end of the bracket and through the loop at the lower end of the bracket the converging sides of the said loop being adaptable to hold the cord at different points to hold the arm in different positions.

1,682,074. METHOD FOR THE MANUFACTURING OF SNAPPERS FOR SNAP RINGS. BERNHARD FÖRSTER, Pforzheim, Germany. Filed Mar. 11, 1926, Serial No. 93,976, and in Germany Mar. 16, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 29—160.6.)



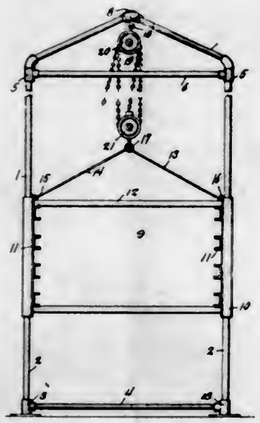
1. A method of manufacturing snappers for unslit snaprings from wire of circular cross section by means of a punch and of a hollow swage, consisting in securely holding during the bending a straight wire, which has been set-off near one end, in a punch in such a manner that the transverse central axis of the straight portion of said wire coincides with the axis of the punch so that when said punch is penetrating into the hollow swage the straight portion of the wire is uniformly bent to both sides to form a semi-circle.

1,682,075. WATER-TIGHT SEAT FOR BUTTERFLY VALVES. CHARLES V. FOULDS, Berkeley, Calif., assignor to The Pelton Water Wheel Co., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Dec. 9, 1925. Serial No. 74,255. 5 Claims. (Cl. 251—11.)



1. In a butterfly valve structure, a body member, a disk pivotally mounted therein, a ring detachably carried by the periphery of the disk and provided on its own periphery with a pair of circumferential seats bevelled in opposite directions, and a seat ring removably positioned within the body, said seat ring consisting of duplicate portions extending one on each side of the valve axis in end to end relation, said portions provided with a disk ring seating face, the faces of the respective portions being disposed in parallel relation.

1,682,076. PROCESS OF PROTECTING ELECTRIC AND OTHER CABLES. JEAN OCTAVE GOGRY, Vincennes, France. Filed Nov. 14, 1925, Serial No. 69,062, and in France Nov. 27, 1924. 7 Claims. (Cl. 91—70.)

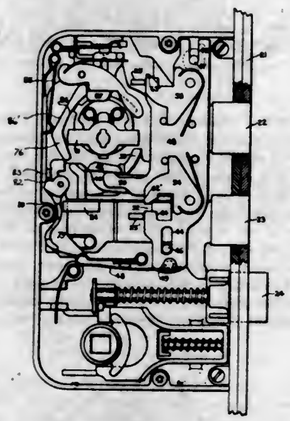


1. A process of treating insulated electric and other cables, comprising the steps of passing the cable through a hot drying-oil bath and then subjecting it to a drawing action, so as to leave merely a thin film of coating on the surface of the insulation; drying the coated cable; passing it through a hot gum bath and then subjecting it to a second drawing action; and then subjecting the cable, after having undergone the second drawing action, to a drawing action in the presence of heat to cause the constituent materials of the two baths to combine and to force them into the interstices of the insulation.

1,682,077. AIR-COOLED MUFFLER. EMMET P. GRAY, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 8, 1926. Serial No. 107,546. 12 Claims. (Cl. 257—16.)

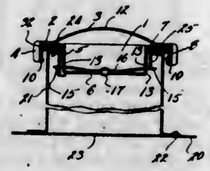
1. A muffler comprising a substantially cylindrical head having a central cylindrical chamber, a cylindrical shell surrounding the central chamber and spaced therefrom providing a ring like outer chamber, passageways leading from the central chamber to the exterior of the outer shell, said passageways being formed by walls extending from the wall of the inner chamber to the wall of the outer chamber, ribs provided on opposite sides of the inner shell member separating the outer chamber into two parts, the said ribs being in continuation of the walls for said passageways from the central chamber and the said walls of the said passageways terminating short of the end of the said head and thus providing for communication between the two halves of the outer chamber, an inlet channel for one of the said halves at the forward end and a discharge channel for the other half and located at the said forward end, the said channels and outer chamber providing an air channel, a shell about the said head and into which the said passageways from the central chamber open, and a discharge conduit through which the gases flow from the interior of the said shell.

1,682,078. ELEVATING-TRANSFER-STORAGE RACK. CLIFFORD F. HANLEN, Phoenix, Ariz. Filed May 31, 1927. Serial No. 195,530. 2 Claims. (Cl. 187—11.)



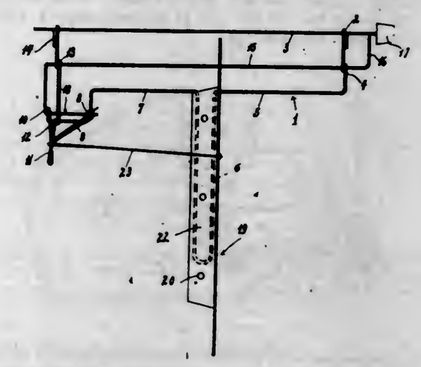
1. In combination, a frame structure including vertical corner bars, cross bars connecting the corner bars together and arch bars extending over the frame and connected together centrally of the frame, a carriage slidably supported by the corner bars and a lifting device secured to the carriage and to said arch bars at their central connections.

1,682,079. WINDOW-SHADE AND LACE-CURTAIN SUPPORT. JEFFERSON DIXON HANNAH, Fayetteville, Ark. Filed July 22, 1925. Serial No. 45,370. 5 Claims. (Cl. 156—23.)



5. A device of the character described comprising a flat bar, a curtain rod holder comprising a small rod with an eye at one end, and means for clamping said rod to the face of the bar, said clamping means comprising a member adapted to bear against the rear face of the bar and having at one end a flange with an opening for receiving the holder, and means connecting the other end of said member to said eye for mutually drawing said member and said holder into clamping relation to said bar.

1,682,080. LOCK. FREDERIC K. HEYER, Stamford, Conn., assignor to The Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company, Stamford, Conn. Filed Dec. 28, 1927. Serial No. 243,160. 38 Claims. (Cl. 70—93.)

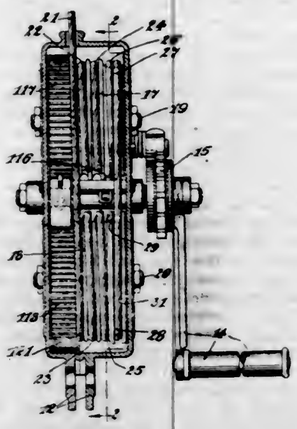


1. A lock comprising two bolts, a single selective mechanism for controlling the operation of said bolts, and a plurality of axially alined cams adapted to operate said selective mechanism.

1,682,081. CLOSURE. ALLEN A. HORTON, Plymouth, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Eaton Axle & Spring Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 6, 1926. Serial No. 139,896. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—40.)

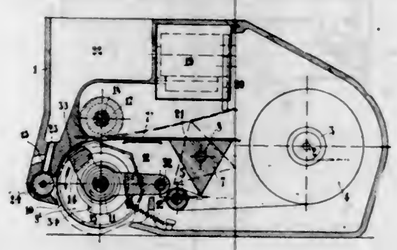
A closure for devices having opposed cam portions, comprising a one piece outer wall and a one piece inner wall, said inner wall including a depending cup-shaped portion, an outwardly extending annular portion at the top thereof, and a depending cylindrical axially corrugated skirt portion at the outer edge of said annular portion, said outer wall including a central portion and a depending cylindrical axially corrugated skirt portion at the outer edge thereof, said central portion of the outer wall overlying the cup-shaped and annular portions of the inner wall and contacting with the latter portion, whereby an air chamber is provided between the cup-shaped portion of the inner wall and the central portion of the outer wall, said central portion being provided with an aperture venting said chamber to the atmosphere, the skirt portions of the inner and outer walls being arranged in interlocking relation with the lower end of the skirt portion of the outer wall bent inwardly beneath the skirt portion of the inner wall so as to firmly maintain the two walls in assembled relation, the interlocking corrugations of the skirt portions of the two walls preventing relative rotary movement thereof, the cup-shaped portion of the inner wall being provided in its side with two opposed openings which vent the air chamber to the inside of the device to be closed when the closure is applied to said device, and an elongaed inherently resilient locking member arranged in said air chamber, said locking member intermediate its ends being secured to the bottom part of the cup-shaped portion of the inner wall and having its two end portions projecting outwardly through the opposed openings of said cup-shaped portion, whereby said projecting end portions of the locking member are free for engagement with the cam portions of the device to be closed when the closure is applied thereto.

1,682,082. KITE-STRING TRAVELER. CORTES JOHNSON, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Oct. 18, 1926. Serial No. 142,492. 4 Claims. (Cl. 244—24.)



1. A kite string traveler comprising a frame formed of a single strip of wire, loops formed on either end of said strip through which the kite string is adapted to extend, a trigger slidably mounted in said frame, a vane secured to and depending from the said frame, hinged wings on said vane, strings secured to said wings adapted to be attached to the trigger, said trigger being adapted to engage an obstruction on the kite string, thereby releasing said strings and permitting the wings to fold and returning the traveler.

1,682,083. LIFTING APPARATUS. FRANK B. JOHNSTON, Roselle Park, N. J., assignor to American Safety Device Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 6, 1927. Serial No. 159,273. 4 Claims. (Cl. 254—167.)



1. In a lifting apparatus as described, the combination of: a two shelled casing, two grooved pulleys mounted on parallel axes within the casing and each being provided with a gear, a manually operated pinion engaging with the gears of the pulleys, and a safety device consisting of a pair of levers pivotally supported by the casing in eccentric relation, and jaw members associated with the free ends of the levers, a cable encircling the pulleys and passing through said safety device, the jaw members being so disposed as to permit of the passing of the cable between them in one direction, but to grip the said cable and prevent the opposite movement thereof.

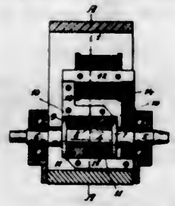
1,682,084. STAMP AND TICKET DELIVERING MACHINE. HENRI LEOPOLD, Paris, France. Filed Aug. 2, 1926, Serial No. 126,647, and in Belgium Aug. 14, 1925. 14 Claims. (Cl. 216—33.)

1. A stamp or ticket delivering machine utilizing a rolled-up strip of stamps or tickets, comprising a manually shiftable casing to contain the roll and having a delivery opening; a rotatable strip-feeding drum within the casing operated by the manual shifting movement thereof; perforating means operated automatically during the travel of the strip through the machine for forming tear lines therein; and means coacting with said drum for detaching the stamps one at a time from the strip during the said movement of the casing.



1,682,085. HYDRAULIC CLUTCH TRANSMISSION. EDWARD H. MCKINNEY, Salina, Kans., assignor to The Hydraulic Specialty Manufacturing Company, Topeka, Kans., a Corporation. Filed Mar. 23, 1925. Serial No. 17,768. 1 Claim. (Cl. 192—58.)

A hydraulic clutch mechanism comprising a drive shaft hollow towards the clutch end in its longitudinal axis; a second shaft co-axial with the drive shaft and operatively engaging for endwise sliding movements within the hollow end of the drive shaft and means for occasioning such endwise movements of the second shaft; a housing member in two sections as a fluid tight enclosure; a gear rigid with the drive shaft within the housing member and an end bearing for said second shaft also within the housing member; three spindles positioned at 120° apart with respect to each other around the second shaft element, and rotatably housed at their opposite ends within bearings in the side elements of the housing member, each spindle rotatably connected to and supporting a roller element with a gear element integral therewith in mesh with the first gear; a plurality of sectional cuts in each roller element; four quadrants rigidly affixed to said end bearing intermediate the first gear and the outer side element of the housing member and spaced apart to provide four slots radiating from the axis of the second shaft; a space F intermediate the quadrants and the housing member as a fluid container; the outer end of the second shaft having the cross-sectional character of a cross, a link pivotally attached to each rib element of said cross, a blade within each quadrant slot pivotally connected to its respective link element, endwise movements of the second shaft operating to transmit contracting or expanding movements to said blades and which under expansion thereof and under gear rotation cause said blades to register with the sectional cuts in the roller elements while serving to create a dam for fluid movements within the space F and correlated parts for clutch purposes.

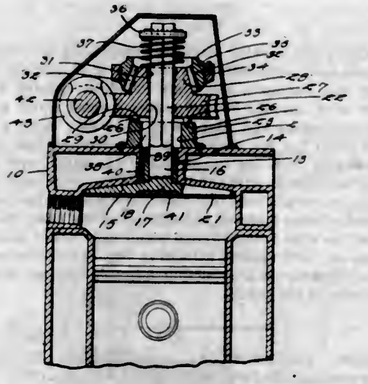
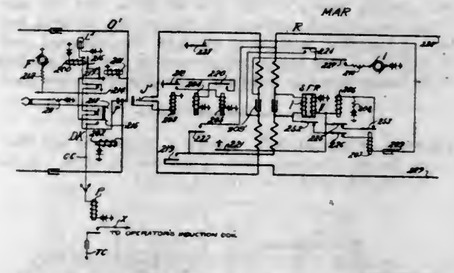
1,682,086. MAGNETO-ELECTRIC MACHINE. GINO MODIGLIANI, Ivrea, Italy, assignor to the Firm Ing. C. Olivetti & C., Ivrea, Italy. Filed June 1, 1927, Serial No. 195,755, and in Italy Sept. 27, 1926. 2 Claims. (Cl. 171—209.)



1. A magneto electric machine comprising a fixed armature, a fixed magnet, fixed core ends for the armature extending into two polar expansions provided so that one of them lies above the axis of rotation of the machine, the other below the same axis, and both expansions being formed in their inside so as to form a cylindrical cavity, a revolving part rotating in the cavities whose magnetic core consists of two circular segments connected mechanically together but insulated magnetically one from another, a nonmagnetic shaft for the revolving part, the parts forming the armature, that is the core expansion and its polar expansions, lie in the vertical axial plane of the machine, the expansion uniting the core of the armature to its lower end, and being provided with a large aperture allowing the shaft to go therethrough.

1,682,087. ROUND-KNITTING MACHINE. EMILIE ELSA MÜLLER, Chemnitz, Germany. Filed Feb. 7, 1925, Serial No. 7,596, and in Germany Feb. 14, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 66—14.)

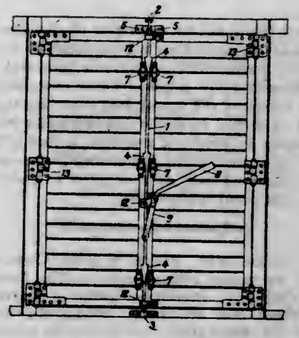


1. In a round knitting machine the combination with a needle bed of inclined guides on said bed and a plurality of angularly offset sinker jacks adapted to slide along said guides and a plurality of double-ended hooked needles in axial alignment with said jacks and engageable therewith.

1,682,088. ROTARY VALVE FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. EMIL T. NEUBAUER, Port Huron, Mich. Filed Mar. 19, 1927. Serial No. 176,722. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—190.)

1. A rotary valve for internal combustion engines having a stem extending from one wall thereof, said wall being adapted to confront and bear against a wall of the engine cylinder, the opposite face of the valve having a plate applied thereto and means connecting the plate and valve permitting relative movement thereof due to differences in expansion.

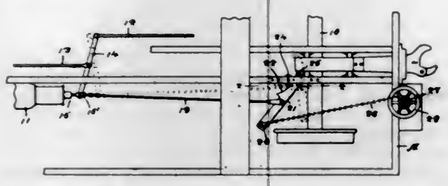
1,682,089. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. JOHN E. OSTLINE, Liverpool, England, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 2, 1925, Serial No. 20,035, and in Great Britain Apr. 24, 1924. 22 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



16. In a telephone system, a calling device, means including trunk lines for extending a connection in successive stages by operating said calling device, means for distinctively marking a trunk line at any stage, a signal, and means responsive to a trunk line being marked for operating said signal when said calling device is being operated.

1,682,090. MILK-BOTTLE COVER. CHARLES T. RASCHICK, St. Paul, Minn. Original application filed Feb. 25, 1925, Serial No. 11,453. Divided and this application filed Mar. 13, 1926. Serial No. 94,586. 2 Claims. (Cl. 215—38.)

1. A cover for a receptacle including, a body portion with a disk-like construction, spring fingers extending from said body portion, the free ends of which extend horizontally and approximately parallel to said body portion, and outwardly and downwardly extending lips formed on the free ends of said spring fingers.



1,682,091. HEAT-TIGHT AND AIR-TIGHT CLOSING DEVICE FOR DOORS. ALFRED CARL FRIEDRICH RATHKE, Leipzig, Germany, assignor to Kühl-Transit-Verkehrs-Aktiengesellschaft, Leipzig, Germany. Filed July 12, 1926, Serial No. 121,995, and in Germany July 29, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—161.)

1. A device for latching doors heat-tightly or air-tightly, comprising in combination a latching rod shiftable in longitudinal direction, pushing wedges on said latching rod, pushing means fixed on each door wing in the range of action of said pushing wedges, hinges of oval cross section on the door wings the oval of all hinges being inclined at the same acute angle towards the door plane, and a hand lever for lowering or raising said latching rod said pushing wedges acting at the lowering of the latching rod upon said pushing means on the door wings so that the door wings are pressed towards the hinges the packing surface of the door being thus enlarged, the sideward push of each door wing being transformed by the oval guiding in the hinges into a lateral push and into a transverse push.

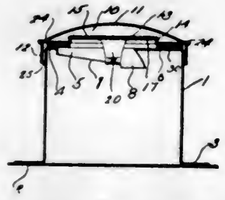
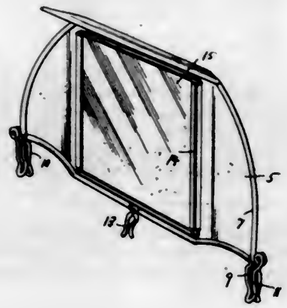
1,682,092. CAR BRAKE. JULIUS H. REBSTOCK and WALTER MEYER, Centralia, Ill. Filed Oct. 9, 1926. Serial No. 140,498. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—110.)

1. In a car brake mechanism, an arm connected with the brake rods, means for operating said arm including a rotatable shaft, a lever mounted on the frame of the car for both pivotal and sliding movement, a connection between the lever and said arm, a flexible element connected with one end of the lever and adapted to be wound about and unwound from said shaft, and means for rotating said shaft.



1,682,093. ADVERTISEMENT HOLDER. JACOB A. REDMAN, Portland, Oreg. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 118,926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—36.)

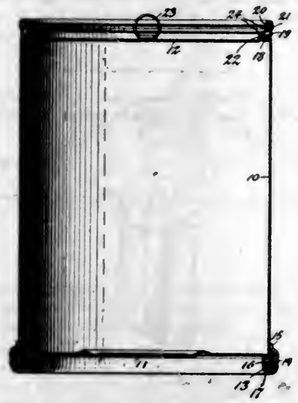


An advertisement holder consisting of an outer container having means for attaching advertisements to the outer sides thereof; a removable container within said outer container; a hinged cover for said outer container; a semi-cylindrical frame at the top of said cover having an opening therein; a curved rotatable door normally held in front of said opening by means of a spring; a foot pedal mounted on said outer container; and connecting means between said foot pedal and said door adapted to open said door when said foot pedal is depressed.

1,682,094. CLOSURE. JAMES S. REID, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Eaton Axle & Spring Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 13, 1926. Serial No. 141,342. 9 Claims. (Cl. 220—40.)

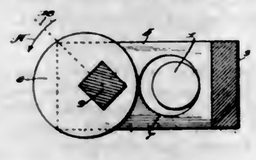
1. A closure for receptacle necks, comprising inner and outer walls having portions separated to provide an air chamber therebetween, securing means associated with the inner wall, vent means in said inner wall providing communication, when the closure is applied to the neck, between said air chamber and the outside atmosphere, and other vent means in said inner wall providing communication between said air chamber and the inside of the neck, when the closure is applied to the neck, said securing means being so arranged as to provide a baffle for one of the vent means of the inner wall.

1,682,095. PAN SHIELD. JOHN REYTHER, Ennis, Tex. Filed June 20, 1927. Serial No. 200,133. 1 Claim. (Cl. 53—7.)



A shield for cooking utensils comprising a shield section arranged substantially vertically with respect to the utensil and having a relatively enlarged opening formed therein with channel shaped guides formed about its side and bottom edges and adapted to removably carry a transparent cover for the opening, a horizontal section extending inwardly from the upper end of the shield over a portion of the utensil, said shield having its lower edge turned inwardly to form a tube separated intermediate its ends and a strand of wire inserted in each end of the tube, the inner ends of the wire being twisted about each other combining to form an intermediate attaching clip and the outer ends thereof forming end attaching clips depending from the lower edge of the shield.

1,682,096. SHEET-METAL CONTAINER. WILLIAM F. SCHWEIGERT, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Feb. 21, 1925. Serial No. 10,950. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—61.)



A sheet metal container comprising a tubular body which is provided near its upper end with a inwardly projecting pleat forming an internal outwardly facing annular shoulder, and at its upper end with an inwardly projecting flange forming an internal inwardly facing annular shoulder, a packing engaging its inner side with said outwardly facing shoulder, a cover having an annular flange at its periphery which engages its inner side with the outer side of said packing and a split resilient fastening ring which is wedge shaped in cross section and provided with two annular flanges converging outwardly and engaging respectively with the outer side of said cover flange and the inwardly facing shoulder of the end flange on the body.

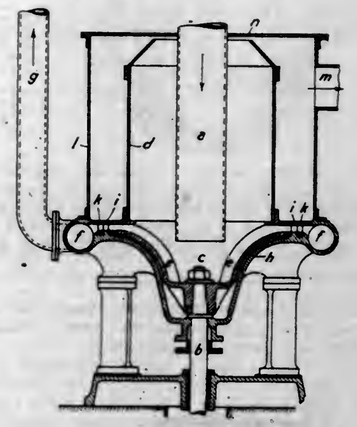
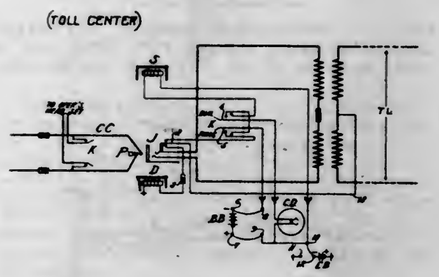
1,682,097. SEATING AND UNSEATING TOOL. RUDOLPH A. SHEFVELAND, Spokane, Wash., assignor of one-half to M. M. Kelliher, Spokane, Wash. Filed Aug. 28, 1926. Serial No. 132,246. 2 Claims. (Cl. 81—53.)



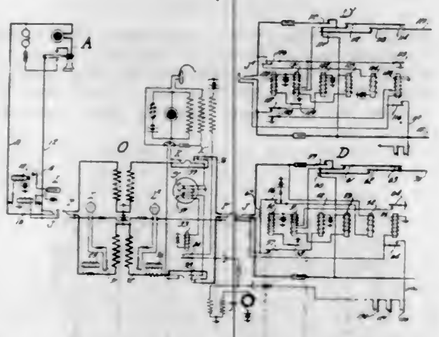
1. A frictionally acting tool for seating and unseating cylindrical members, comprising, a U-shaped frame having substantially alined openings in the limbs thereof adjacent the bight of said frame for receiving the member to be turned, an actuating shaft rotatively mounted in end portions of the limbs of said frame, and a cylindrical gripper disposed between said limbs and eccentrically and non-rotatively connected with said shaft for actuation thereby to impinge the member to be turned between a peripheral portion of said gripper and portions of the perimeters of said openings.

1,682,098. ELECTRIC CIRCUIT-CONTROLLING MEANS. PIERRE FRANK SONNEK, Woodhaven, N. Y. Filed Apr. 6, 1921. Serial No. 459,021. 9 Claims. (Cl. 200—52.)



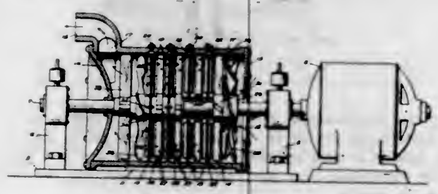
1. A means for opening and closing an electric circuit, including a constantly driven element, fixed and movable contacts connected in said circuit, a normally inactive element associated with said driven element and means capable of movement with relation to each of said elements for connecting them and simultaneously effecting the opening of said circuit, the disconnection of said elements effecting the closing of the circuit.

1,682,099. CENTRIFUGAL SORTING APPARATUS. FRIEDRICH SOÏEZ, Mannheim, Germany, assignor to Zellstoffabrik Waldhof, Mannheim-Waldhof, Germany, a Joint Stock Company. Filed Aug. 3, 1927, Serial No. 210,406, and in Germany Aug. 11, 1926. 11 Claims. (Cl. 92—35.)



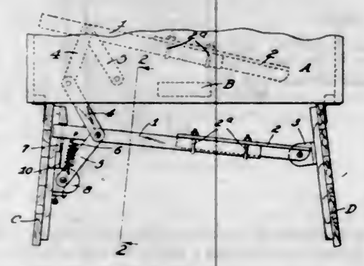
1. In combination with a vertical centrifugal screen, a centrifugal device by means of which knots and the like having greater specific gravity than pulp are substantially separated from the pulp before admitting the pulp into the screen.

1,682,100. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. JOHN WICKS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 2, 1925. Serial No. 12,472. 36 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



33. In a telephone system, a line, an operator's switchboard, means for extending a call from said switchboard to said line, a signal at said switchboard, means for operating said signal steadily when the call is answered, and means for operating said signal intermittently when the call is terminated.

1,682,101. TELEPHONE TRUNK CIRCUITS. BERNARD D. WILLIS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 19, 1922. Serial No. 562,191. 17 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

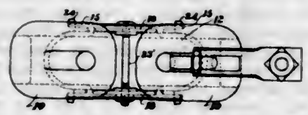


4. In a telephone system, a trunk line comprising two inductively connected sections, a line relay energized over the first section to close a bridge across the second section, and a relay included in the bridge and responsive to the initial closure thereof for closing said bridge at another point.

1,682,102. HOT-AIR GENERATOR. HENRY W. ALLEN, Seattle, Wash. Filed July 19, 1926. Serial No. 123,355. 3 Claims. (Cl. 126—247.)

1. A hot air generator comprising a casing having an air inlet and an air outlet therein, a driven shaft within said casing, a plurality of frictional means mounted within said casing, agitating means keyed to said shaft between said frictional means, and propeller fans keyed to said shaft at both ends of said casing for drawing air into and expelling it from said casing.

1,682,103. GARAGE-DOOR CONTROL APPARATUS. JOHN A. ANDERSON, Sherman, Calif. Filed June 24, 1926. Serial No. 118,187. 11 Claims. (Cl. 292—262.)

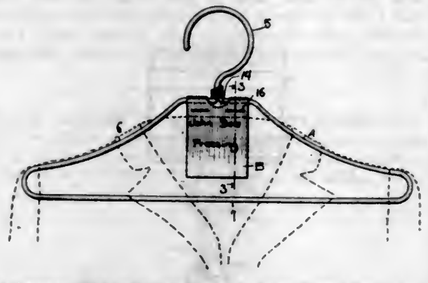


1. In a garage door control apparatus, a crossbar pivotally connected to one of the doors, a link pivotally connected near the free end of said crossbar and its other end pivotally connected to the garage, another link pivotally connected to said crossbar near its free end and its other end pivotally connected to the other door, a latch on the latter door adapted to receive the free end of said crossbar, a spring secured to said crossbar and to one of the doors, and means for releasing said crossbar from said latch.

1,682,104. PACKAGE. CHARLES H. ANDROS, Albany, N. Y. Filed June 25, 1923. Serial No. 647,597. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—51.)

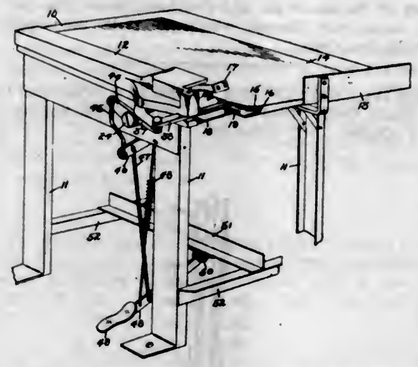
1. In a cigarette package, the combination with a wrapper having oppositely disposed portions thereof adjacent the ends of the cigarettes first infolded, and other oppositely disposed portions successively infolded over said first portions to form a closure for the end of said package, of a strip of flexible material, folded over the edge of one of said first mentioned portions and permanently associated therewith to form a tab extending to the exterior of the package where it may be grasped and pulled to remove the triangular part of said first mentioned portion which is visible when the package is sealed.

1,682,105. INSULATOR FITTING. ARTHUR O. AUSTIN, Barberton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Ohio Brass Company, Mansfield, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 1, 1923. Serial No. 621,975. 8 Claims. (Cl. 173—366.)



1. Connectors for insulators comprising a pair of yokes arranged to extend through openings in a pair of insulators to be connected, the ends of said yokes being bent to form hooks and plates overlapping said insulators and having openings therein for engaging said hooks to join said insulators to each other.

6. Connecting means for a pair of insulators having perforations therethrough, said connecting means comprising a yoke member threaded through each of said perforations, said yoke members having inner curved faces for engaging the insulators and having substantially flat outward faces, the ends of said yoke member being bent outwardly and backwardly to form hooks, channel shaped links for engaging said hooks to connect said insulators to each other and retainer bars extending from side to side of said channel shaped links to hold said hooks from straightening.



1,682,106. GARMENT-HANGER ATTACHMENT. ROBERT W. BANKS, El Dorado, Ark. Filed Aug. 23, 1926. Serial No. 131,062. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—20.)

1. In comination, a coat hanger including a supporting body and a hook, of an advertising device including a rectangular blank of sheet material having a transverse line adjacent one end thereof defining an advertising portion and an attaching portion, the blank also having an opening at said transverse line for receiving the hook of the hanger, the attaching and advertising portions embracing the opposite sides of the hanger, and fasteners for connecting the said portions together.

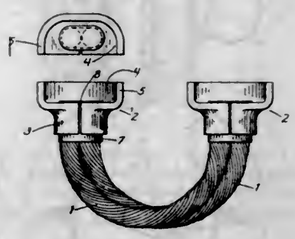
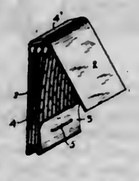
1,682,107. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR FOLDING VALVES IN BAGS. ADELMER M. BATES and GEORGE P. DORR, Chicago, Ill., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Bates Valve Bag Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 17, 1925. Serial No. 50,586. 21 Claims. (Cl. 93—8.)



1. In valving apparatus, means to hold collapsed the side of a length of bag tubing adjacent the corner thereof, means to spread apart the sides of the tube between the gripping means and the corner of the tube, and means to tuck in the corner of the tube between the spread sides.

1,682,108. LOOSE-LEAF BINDER. FREDERICK G. BEVANS, Kansas City, Mo., assignor to Irving-Pitt Manufacturing Company, Kansas City, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Sept. 11, 1926. Serial No. 134,878 4 Claims. (Cl. 129—4.)

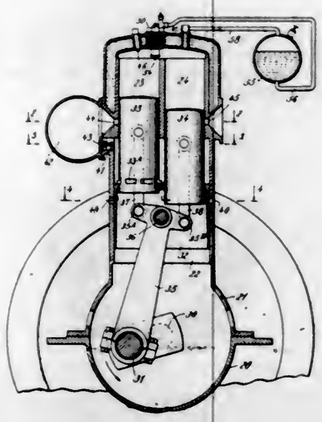


1. In a ring binder, of the character described, a pair of fly leaves carried by the rings of the binder, each having a curled back margin projecting within the rings, the edges of said fly leaves along the curled back margin abutting and engaging the binder metal when said binder is in the open position.

1,682,109. RAIL BONDING. WILLIAM P. BOYARD, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to The Ohio Brass Company, Mansfield, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 31, 1923, Serial No. 671,898. Renewed June 3, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—10.)

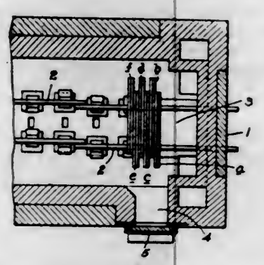
1. The method of attaching a rail bond to a rail, comprising the steps of applying to a lateral surface of a rail a copper conductor having a ferrous terminal member mechanically secured to one end thereof, the terminal member being provided with an upstanding flange projecting beyond the end of the copper conductor and forming with the surface of the rail a receptacle open at the top and surrounding on all sides, fusing a copper welding metal to the end face of said conductor, the inner surface of the upstanding portion of said terminal member and the face of said rail, and preventing escape of the molten welding metal at all sides of said receptacle by means of the ferrous walls of said receptacle to permit the filling of the receptacle with copper in a fused state and at a temperature within said receptacle sufficiently high to fuse the inner side walls of the receptacle and to unite the rail, terminal member and conductor each to the other without permitting escape of the welding metal.

1,682,110. MATCH PACKAGE. HOSEA T. BRADNER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Sept. 10, 1925. Serial No. 55,477. 3 Claims. (Cl. 206—29.)



1. In a folding match package, a match enclosing wrapper composed in seriatim of a match retaining flap, an end, a back, a hinge end and a hinged cover, a plurality of severable matches having unseverable butt ends secured between the flap and back and rigidly permanently spacing them apart; and an externally concave fold formed in the end between the flap and the back, provided with abrasive match striking material and maintained substantially of presclected shape by the rigidly spaced flap and back.

1,682,111. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. WILHELM B. BRONANDER, Montclair, N. J. Filed July 13, 1921, Serial No. 484,371. Renewed Jan. 24, 1928. 25 Claims. (Cl. 123—53.)



14. An internal combustion engine comprising a pair of intercommunicating cylinders, an inlet port in one cylinder and an exhaust port in the other cylinder, a port controlling piston in each cylinder, a cylinder surrounding said pistons, a piston therein having openings in the head thereof receiving the first mentioned pistons, a crank shaft and operative connections between said crank shaft and said pistons.

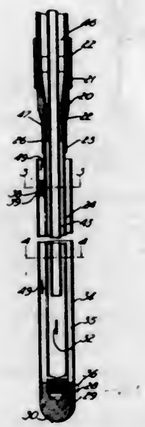
1,682,112. HEATING BAR. FRANK W. BROOKE, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed May 8, 1926. Serial No. 107,646. 1 Claim. (Cl. 214—152.)

The method of charging and feeding bars in heating furnaces which consists in arranging the bars in contiguous succession transversely of their line of travel with the ends of adjacent bars in transverse stepped relation to one another, pushing the bars through the heating chamber in such stepped relation, and withdrawing the bars from the furnace.



1,682,113. RHEOSTAT. HARRY D. BROWN, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Cinema Studios Supply Corporation, Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Apr. 8, 1926. Serial No. 100,502. 2 Claims. (Cl. 201—48.)

2. In combination with the supporting frame of a lamp which frame includes a base member having a substantially centrally arranged, vertical post; a rheostat embodying a pair of bus rings spaced apart longitudinally along and insulated from the post, and a plurality of angularly spaced resistance elements arranged about the post, each element embodying a wire-rack having non-conductive characteristics, terminal caps applied to opposite ends of the rack, said caps having conductive characteristics, and resistance wire wound about said rack between and terminally connected to said caps; and detachable means electrically connecting the caps, one to each of the bus rings, said detachable means also serving as connections through which the racks are supported by the bus rings.

1,682,114. GAS ANCHOR. CHARLES A. CARLSON, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Apr. 28, 1926. Serial No. 105,073. 4 Claims. (Cl. 103—220.)

1. In a gas anchor, the combination of; a tubular connector body adapted to be attached to a supporting member, said connector body providing a gas collecting chamber, there being openings connecting said gas collecting chamber to the exterior; an inner barrel having its upper end secured to the lower end of said connector body, there being openings formed near the lower end of said inner barrel for connecting the exterior of said inner barrel with the interior thereof; a guide plug secured to the lower end of said inner barrel, said guide plug closing the lower end of said inner barrel; an outer barrel secured at its lower end to said guide plug, said outer barrel being concentrical around said inner barrel, there being an annular separating space formed between said inner and said outer barrels, the upper end of said outer barrel terminating below said connector; centralizing fins formed near the upper end of said inner barrel, said centralizing fins being arranged to engage an inner face of said outer barrel; and an eduction tube extended through said member, said connector, into said inner barrel.

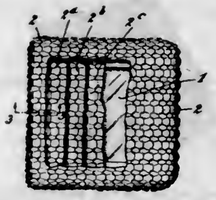
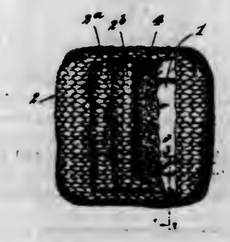
1,682,115. TOILET AND TISSUE PAPER PACKAGE. MAX M. COHN, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to National Paper Products Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Sept. 10, 1925. Serial No. 55,443. 2 Claims. (Cl. 206—57.)



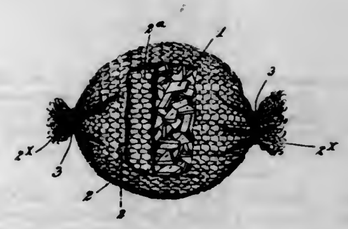
2. A toilet- or tissue-paper package comprising a stack of interleaved sheets folded longitudinally to form a compact bundle having a wedge-shaped conformation in cross-section, and a holder therefor conforming in shape to the bundle and arranged to exert yielding pressure inwardly on the sloping sides of the wedge-shaped bundle, said holder having a narrow slit at its apex through which the sheets may be withdrawn in successive order.

1,682,116. DOOR-CLAMPING MECHANISM. FORREST J. COUCH, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The American Laundry Machinery Company, Norwood, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 27, 1925. Serial No. 71,778. 10 Claims. (Cl. 220—55.)



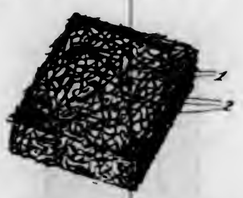
1. In a washing or like machine, a stationary cylindrical tub provided with an opening, a sliding door for said opening, and flexible clamping means engaging the side portions of said door, throughout the entire extent of the door sides for sealing the door against the tub at the sides of said opening.

1,682,117. SOAPING AND CLEANING DEVICE. CROSBY FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Brillo Manufacturing Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 8, 1925. Serial No. 61,186. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—122.)



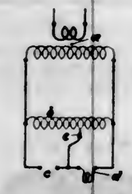
1. A cleaning device, comprising an open ended tube of metal fabric, a solid backing therein, the ends of said tube being folded over said backing toward each other, and means fastening the ends to each other to secure the solid backing therein.

1,682,118. CLEANING DEVICE. CROSBY FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Brillo Manufacturing Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 8, 1925. Serial No. 61,187. 6 Claims. (Cl. 15—122.)



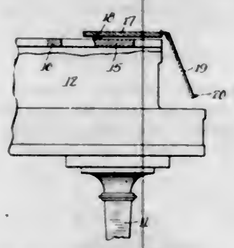
1. A cleaning pad, including a rectangular cake of soap having metal cushioning means on one face thereof the aforesaid parts being enclosed in a wrapper formed of knitted metallic ribbon.

1,682,119. CLEANING DEVICE. CROSBY FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Brillo Manufacturing Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 8, 1925. Serial No. 61,188. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—208.)



1. A cleaning device, comprising an open ended tube of abrasive metal fabric, a detergent therein, and means closing the open ends of said tube to secure the detergent within the tube, said means being spaced from said ends to provide tufts of abrasive metal fabric.

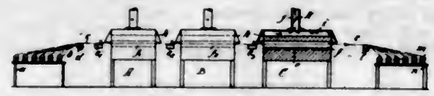
1,682,120. SCRUBBER SOAP. CROSBY FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Brillo Manufacturing Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 8, 1925. Serial No. 61,189. 3 Claims. (Cl. 87—23.)



2. An article of manufacture, comprising a cake of soap having embedded therein a mass of thin, flexible ribbons of relatively soft tinsel-like metal.

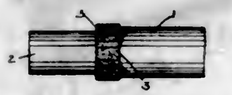
1,682,121. HIGH-FREQUENCY OSCILLATION SYSTEM FOR MEDICAL APPARATUS. ARTHUR GEBBERT, Erlangen, Germany. Filed Nov. 9, 1926, Serial No. 147,365, and in Germany Dec. 16, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 174—177.)

1. In an electrical system for the control of high frequency oscillations especially used in medical apparatus, the combination of a high frequency transformer, a variable self-induction connected thereto and including a regulating element, and a loading resistance and electrodes in circuit with said induction, said regulating element being connected to the circuit between said resistance and electrodes.



1,682,122. MUSIC RACK. IRVING W. GIESE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 16, 1926. Serial No. 129,381. 12 Claims. (Cl. 84—180.)

8. The combination with a music rack, of an auxiliary music rack, and a double hinge connecting said racks, said hinge comprising three members linked together, and means for limiting the movement of each end member of the hinge relative to the intermediate member of the hinge.



1,682,123. MEANS FOR PRODUCING VARNISHED WIRES. FERDINAND HANFF, Berlin-Charlottenburg, Germany, assignor to Siemens-Schuckertwerke Gesellschaft mit beschränkter Haftung, Siemensstadt, near Berlin, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Nov. 23, 1925, Serial No. 70,879, and in Germany Dec. 1, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 91—55.)

3. Machine for varnishing wires, having a plurality of separate baking ovens containing baking ducts, and varnishing devices alternately arranged with said ducts in a straight line, the length of the individual ducts increasing in the direction of the wire travel, successive baking ducts being disposed in separate baking ovens and means on said ovens for conducting the hot vapors issuing from said ducts around the outside thereof.

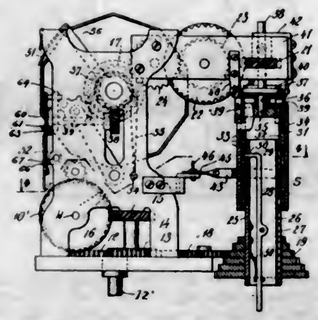
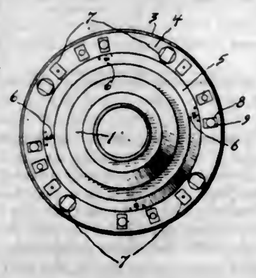
1,682,124. METHOD OF MANUFACTURING RUBBER TUBES. DANIEL E. HENNESSY, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Original application filed Apr. 28, 1922, Serial No. 557,206. Divided and this application filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,848. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)



1. The method of curing rubber tubes upon a mandrel which comprises interposing a film of cement between the ends of the tube and the mandrel and vulcanizing the tube.

1,682,125. METHOD OF MAKING RUBBER TUBES. DANIEL E. HENNESSY, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Original application filed Apr. 28, 1922, Serial No. 557,206. Divided and this application filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,849. 5 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

1. The method of treating rubber tubes upon a mandrel preparatory to vulcanization, which comprises heating the end portions of the tube to soften the rubber and clamping said portions to the mandrel.



1,682,126. FARE REGISTER. WILLIAM M. HOFFMAN, Roxbury, Mass. Filed Jan. 31, 1919. Serial No. 274,164. 19 Claims. (Cl. 235—44.)

1. In a fare register, a passenger indicator and a money indicator actuated from a common source and means including a change speed mechanism that can be set for different speeds for actuating said indicators at different predetermined, relative speeds, said change speed mechanism having gear wheels of different sizes to mesh with a common gear wheel.

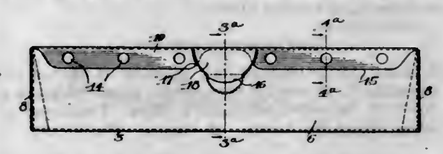
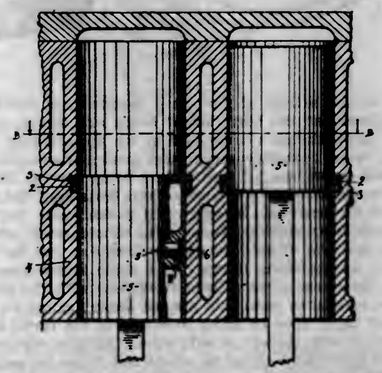
1,682,127. ADJUSTABLE PHOTOGRAPHIC VIGNETTER. ALBERT S. HOWELL, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Bell & Howell Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 6, 1927. Serial No. 203,788. 7 Claims. (Cl. 95—65.)

1. In an adjustable photographic vignetter the combination with two members one of which is movable with respect to the other in correspondence with adjustment of the vignetter, of index mark and scale means associated with said members and cooperating with said relative movement thereof to indicate predetermined adjustments of the vignetter and including graphic representations of the photographic field of a photographic lens, with which the vignetter is used, resulting from respective adjustments of the vignetter.



1,682,128. ATTRITION MILL. RICHARD S. IGLEHART, Springfield, Ohio, assignor to The Bauer Brothers Company, Springfield, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 23, 1927. Serial No. 177,755. 10 Claims. (Cl. 83—8.)

1. In an attrition mill, a rotatable grinding head, a drive shaft for said head, a rotatable ring secured to said head, a second stationary ring co-operating with said movable ring, a spout leading to the center of said head, said spout consisting in part of a removable portion divided vertically through which said shaft passes, the sections of said removable portion being extended to a point above the highest point of said rings so as to expose the entire rings when said sections are removed.



1,682,129. CONTAINER CONSTRUCTION. HARRY A. INMAN, Newark, N. Y. Filed May 16, 1925. Serial No. 30,851. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—43.)

1. In an article of the class described, a box made from a folded blank comprising a bottom, side and end walls and a folding cover attached at one edge to one of said side walls and having at its other edge a downturned flap adapted to be inserted inside the other side wall, the upper portion of said flap and first mentioned side wall being provided with ventilating openings and said other side wall being cut away at its upper portion opposite said flap openings.

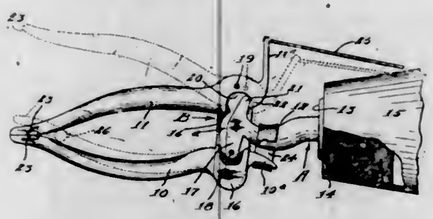
1,682,130. PACKING RING. THEODORE JOHNSTON, Topeka, Kans. Filed Jan. 7, 1926. Serial No. 79,848. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—108.)

In a packing ring, the combination of a cylinder being uniform in diameter longitudinally, and a piston having an uninterrupted periphery to slidably engage in said cylinder, a ring stationarily positioned and engaging in an annular groove in the cylinder so that the ends of the piston will enter the ring in its reciprocations so that the wear imposed on the piston will be uniformly distributed its entire length, the ring functioning as sealing means for the peripheral engagement of the piston and cylinder.



1,682,131. GRIDWORK FOR AIR HEATERS. HUGO KLEIN and PAUL KUHN, Niederscheiden-Sieg, Germany. Filed July 7, 1926, Serial No. 114,284, and in Germany Apr. 3, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 263—19.)

1. In an air heater for blast furnaces, a body divided into zones all of which are in superposed relation, and a gridwork in each zone and including heat absorbing plates, the plates of the gridwork in the zone of the highest temperature having large cross sections and small surfaces, and those in zones of lower temperatures having smaller cross sections and larger surfaces.

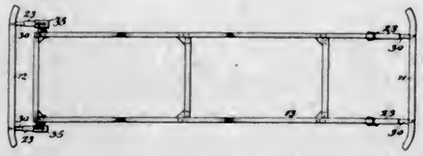
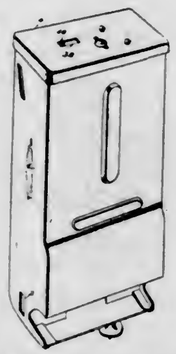
1,682,132. ARTIFICIAL LIMB. JOSEPH H. KOSEK and RAYMOND B. TRAUTMAN, Minneapolis, Minn., assignors to David W. Dorrance, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Sept. 10, 1925. Serial No. 55,503. 12 Claims. (Cl. 3—12.)



1. In an article of the class described, a shank for attachment at the butt thereof to an arm stump socket, said shank having a cross-head at its tip, a frame, oppositely bowed complementary fingers carried at opposite ends of said frame, one of said fingers being pivoted thereon and co-operating with one end of said cross-head, the other end of the cross-head being pivoted to the frame, the joint between cross-head and frame being substantially removed from the axis of said shank, tip members, one for each finger, said members meeting in a plane intersecting said axis, the co-operation of said cross-head with the pivoted finger serving to close said pivoted finger against its companion finger upon swinging movement of the frame in one direction with respect to said shank, yielding contracting means operating between the shank and frame for swinging the latter on the former in said finger closing direction, and a lever on said pivoted finger for imparting an opening swing thereto and for concurrently imparting a compensating finger freeing swing of the frame on said shank.

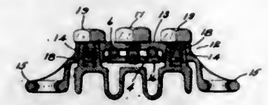
1,682,133. AUTOMATIC SKID. JAMES B. LADD, Ardmore, Pa., assignor to United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company, Burlington, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 14, 1926. Serial No. 122,490. 5 Claims. (Cl. 22—65.)



1. In combination with a centrifugal pipe casting machine having a longitudinally reciprocating mold carrying carrage, approximately horizontal pipe receiving skids longitudinally movable in a direction transverse to the line of movement of the carriage to and from a pipe receiving position and a retracted position in which they will be outside of the path of the carriage and means actuated by the carriage for shifting the skids to pipe receiving position as the carriage moves away from their path of movement and retracting them as the carriage moves in a reverse direction.

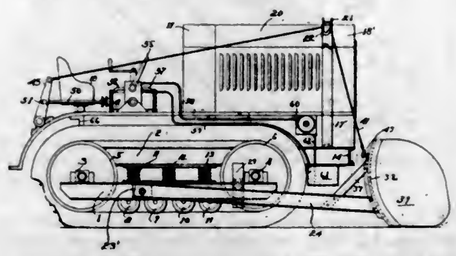
1,682,134. CIRCUIT CLOSER FOR COLLISION-INDICATING DEVICES. LOUIS LIFSCHUTZ, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Apr. 21, 1923. Serial No. 633,711. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—52.)

1. A collision indicating device for an automobile having a chassis, and a bumper movably mounted on said body, comprising a rear tubular fixed body adapted to be mounted on the chassis and provided with a rear head, a fixed electric contact mounted on said rear head, but insulated therefrom, a movable contact guided in said tubular body and adapted to move into and out of engagement with said fixed contact, a light spring arranged within said body and bearing at its opposite ends against the front side of said rear head and the rear side of said movable contact, a movable plunger guided lengthwise in the front part of said body and adapted to be moved rearwardly by said bumper, and a heavy spring arranged in said tubular body and interposed between said movable contact and said plunger.



1,682,135. MOUNTABLE AND DEMOUNTABLE CASING FOR COIN-CONTROLLED DEVICES. JAMES H. MANN, Jr., Monteagle, Tenn., assignor to Southwestern Sales Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 27, 1924. Serial No. 695,483. 6 Claims. (Cl. 70—14.)

1. In combination with a casing having a locking lug thereon, a cover plate comprising a bolt plate movably arranged thereon adapted for engagement with said locking lug, and a lock on said cover having its locking bolt when in locked position in the path of the normal line of action of said movable bolt plate, to lock the latter in position, and when said locking bolt is withdrawn leaving said bolt plate free to move in its normal path.



1,682,136. TROLLEY FROG. SAMUEL S. MATTHES, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to The Ohio Brass Company, Mansfield, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 12, 1927. Serial No. 225,715. 12 Claims. (Cl. 191—38.)

1. A trolley frog comprising a body member having a plurality of channeled members each to receive a trolley wire, a support member secured to the body member against relative longitudinal and lateral movement, means on the support member to receive the trolley wires and hold them against movement relative to the support member and a rotatable wedge pivotally secured to each channeled member to engage and clamp the trolley wires in fixed relation to the channeled members but permitting the removal of the body and channeled members at will without disturbing the connection of the wires at the support member.

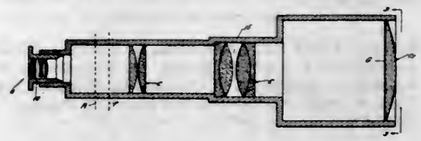
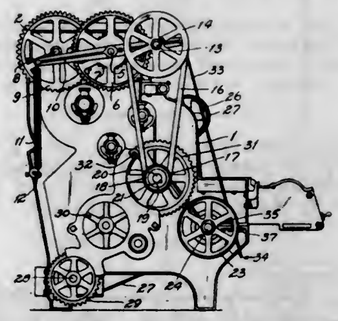
1,682,137. TRACTOR SCRAPER. WESLEY KENNETH MCMILLAN, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Feb. 9, 1927. Serial No. 166,824. 1 Claim. (Cl. 37—180.)

A scraper of the class described comprising an endless tread tractor having a supporting frame, a forwardly extending arm pivoted on each side of said frame, a scraper having a curved transverse back, plates on each side of said back, spaced connectors on said back, flexible supports extending from said connectors to pivoted arms, a hydraulic cylinder having a piston adapted to operate said arms, means to supply power to said cylinder, and means to admit said power to the cylinder to move said piston in either direction or to hold it in a certain position.



1,682,138. AIRPLANE LABORATORY. ALBERTA A. MERRILL, Pasadena, Calif. Filed Mar. 25, 1925. Serial No. 18,254. 10 Claims. (Cl. 73—51.)

1. In apparatus of the character described, the combination of an elongated overhead support, a carriage movable over the support longitudinally, a cable suspended from the carriage and adapted for attachment to an airplane, means for delivering an air blast, and means adapted to direct the air blast beneath said support towards the airplane.



1,682,139. VIEW FINDER. GEORGE A. MITCHELL, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Mitchell Camera Corporation, a Corporation of California. Filed May 22, 1926. Serial No. 110,865. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.5.)

1. In an optical instrument of the character described, an objective lens adapted to throw a real image in a given focal plane, a collective lens spaced behind said plane and at a distance less than its focal length from said plane, an eye lens arranged behind the collective lens adapted to view said image through said collective lens and to throw another real image to another fixed focal plane, and a ground glass at said last mentioned focal plane.

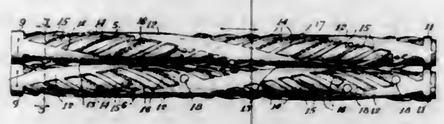
1,682,140. DRIVING MECHANISM. JOHN E. MITCHELL and ORVILLE MITCHELL, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Oct. 23, 1926. Serial No. 143,550. 9 Claims. (Cl. 192—125.)

3. In combination, a pair of rotary members mounted in geared relation, a driving gear secured on the shaft of one of said members, an arm pivotally mounted intermediate its ends in line with the axis of said driving gear, a pinion for driving said gear mounted toward one end of said arm, a pulley fast with said pinion for driving the same, a belt drive for said pulley, and means for exerting yielding pressure on the other end of said arm for holding the belt of said drive normally under tension.



1,682,141. VACUUM TANK. CHARLES S. NELSON, Sandpoint, Idaho. Filed June 4, 1927. Serial No. 196,591. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—236.)

1. The combination with a vacuum tank and means for automatically maintaining the liquid fuel level therein, of a filtering vessel and an outlet pipe from the tank to said vessel, a control valve in the outlet pipe, a filtering medium within the vessel, connections from said vessel to a carbureter, and a check valve in the connection to the carbureter.

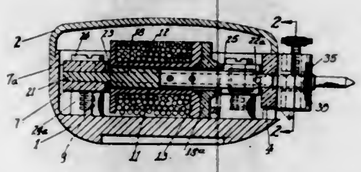
1,682,142. CORN-HUSKING ROLLS. LOUIS A. PARADISE and WILBUR J. COULTAS, Moline, Ill., assignors to Deere & Company, Moline, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 8, 1927. Serial No. 197,309. 10 Claims. (Cl. 130—5.)



1. A pair of cooperating corn husking rolls, both of which are provided with relatively long ribs coacting between the rolls and spiraled about the surfaces of the rolls in directions tending to retard the travel of the ears along said rolls.

1,682,143. CORN-PICKING ROLLS. LOUIS A. PARADISE, Moline, Ill., assignor to Deere & Company, Moline, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 8, 1927. Serial No. 197,310. 12 Claims. (Cl. 130—5.)

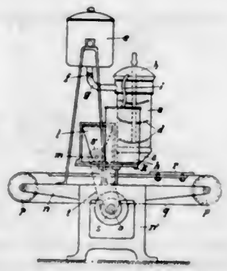
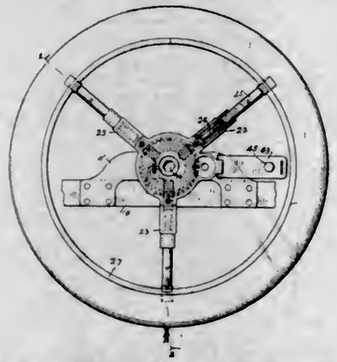
1,682,144. ELECTRICAL REPRODUCER. CHARLES W. PETERSON, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 24, 1927. Serial No. 193,935. 11 Claims. (Cl. 179—100.1.)



7. In an electrical reproducer, the combination of a pair of permanent magnets, pole shoes adjustably retained between them, an armature element passing between the pole shoes, and set between said two magnets at the neutral point thereof, a coil about the armature element, and stylus energized means for vibrating the armature, said armature element comprising a resilient paramagnetic strip, and a holder therefor, and said resilient strip having deadening means applied thereto, both above and below the point where the same passes between the pole shoes.

1,682,145. CONVERTIBLE AUTOMOBILE TABLE AND CABINET. NORMAN A. REINHARD, Rochester, N. Y. Filed June 16, 1926. Serial No. 116,445. 2 Claims. (Cl. 190—12.)

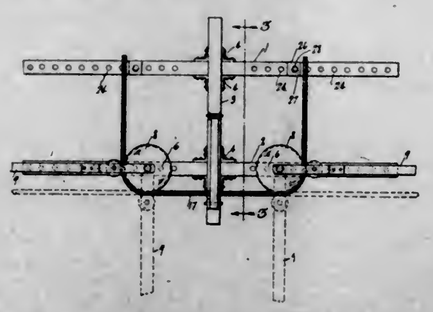


1. A combined cabinet and table having stationary ends and swinging sides, two pairs of hinges each comprising a pair of leaves of which one leaf is attached to the inside of said ends, legs pivoted to the other of said leaves of said hinges to enable said legs to swing up and down on said ends as well as swing in and out of said cabinet at right angles to the swinging motion of said hinges, and means for locking said legs in a parallel plane against the ends to which they are hinged.

1,682,146. DEVICE FOR PRODUCING CONFECTIONERY CONTAINING AN AROMATIC LIQUID. CARL RIEBE, Dresden-Neustadt, Germany. Filed Oct. 4, 1926, Serial No. 139,514, and in Germany Dec. 15, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 107—4.)

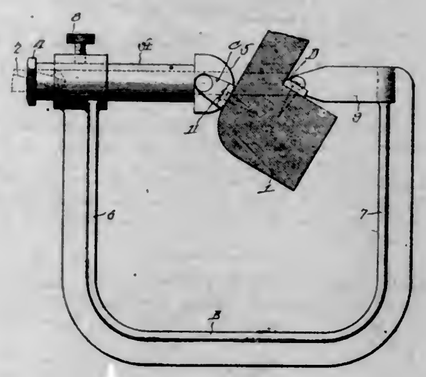
A device for producing confectionery containing aromatic liquids comprising, in combination, a mixing vessel with superimposed boiler, a condenser arranged near the said mixing vessel and being connected with same, the said mixing vessel being provided at its lower end with a discharge orifice for the mixture, a powder container arranged near the mixing vessel, and a conveyor travelling below the mixing vessel and the powder container for receiving the molds.

1,682,147. SPARE-TIRE CARRIER AND RIM SPREADER. CHARLES P. RIEGLE, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Sept. 28, 1923. Serial No. 665,283. 4 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)



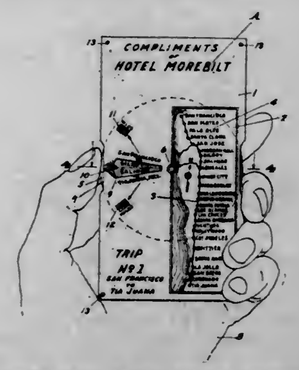
1. A spare tire carrier adapted to be mounted on the cross bar of an automobile frame, comprising a housing in which is journalled a gear having a worm on one face, radially movable connecting rods engaging the said worm gear at one end, and the tire rim at the other, the said gear being provided peripherally with gear teeth for rotating the worm at one speed, and at its axis with a wrench receiving socket for rotating at a different speed.

1,682,148. GAS BURNER. FRANK V. RISINGER, Lakewood, Ohio. Filed Mar. 17, 1924. Serial No. 699,896. 23 Claims. (Cl. 158—104.)



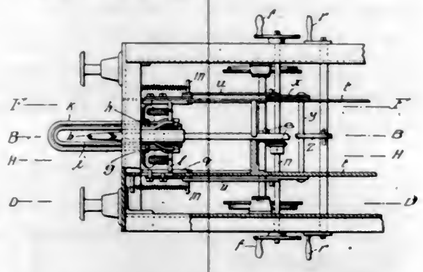
1. In a burner of the class described, a burner body having an elongated outlet forming a burner opening, and a grid comprising a length of metal bent and rebent to form the grid which is seated in said burner opening, the bent and rebent parts of the grid having contacting portions to brace the said parts.

1,682,149. PIPE-BENDING MACHINE. WILLIAM E. ROBERTSON, Berkeley, Calif. Filed July 24, 1926. Serial No. 124,699. 6 Claims. (Cl. 153—46.)



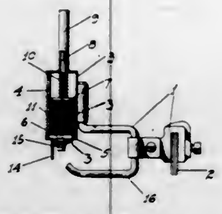
1. In a pipe bending device of the character described, two parallel bars, a cross-bar, means for clamping a pipe to the cross-bar so as to run parallel to the other bars, two pulleys adjustably pivoted on one of the parallel bars on opposite sides of the cross-bar so as to accommodate the pipe in grooves thereof, means for bending the pipe around the pulleys and stops adjustable in the second parallel bar for limiting the turning motion of the pipe.

1,682,150. DRILL-GUIDING JIG. CLIFFORD SKLAREK, Chicago, Ill., assignor to International Spotlight Corporation, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Dec. 31, 1923. Serial No. 683,543. 8 Claims. (Cl. 77—62.)



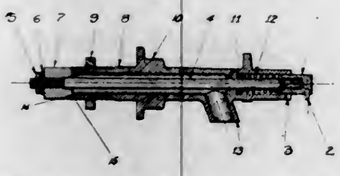
1. In a jig for guiding a drilling tool, the combination with a carrier yoke; of a drilling tool receiving and guiding member adjustably carried thereon and adapted to engage one face of the work; means swiveled on said yoke for detachable connection to the other face of the work; and means swiveled on the adjacent end of said guiding member for attachment to the first-mentioned face of the work.

1,682,151. MILEAGE ROUTE CHART. LLOYD A. T. SOLDANE, Grenada, Calif. Filed Oct. 6, 1925. Serial No. 60,845. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—70.)



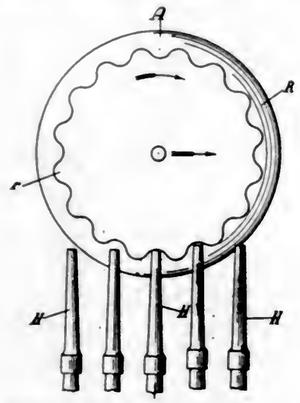
1. In a route chart a dial bearing consecutively the names of cities along the route, numerals indicating the miles between adjacent cities, and numerals indicating miles from the various cities to a terminal point of the route, means covering said dial adapted for successively exposing to view the names of two adjacent cities only and the indicated mileage separating them and the indicating mileage from one of the cities to the route terminal.

1,682,152. AUTOMATIC RAILWAY COUPLING. REINHOLD SZELINSKI, Rietberg, Germany. Filed June 20, 1927, Serial No. 200,255, and in Germany Dec. 7, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 213—83.)



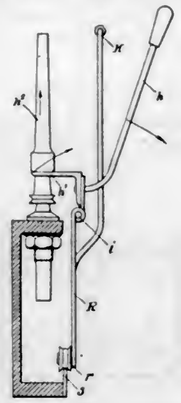
1. In an automatic railway coupling, the combination of a draw-bar, a heart-shaped double coupling hook, a slide on said draw-bar adapted to be adjusted thereon in longitudinal direction, pivotal coupling eyes on said slide having their ends extended beyond their pivots, and coil springs attached to said latter extensions and acting to keep said eyes in closed position.

1,682,153. MEANS FOR IDENTIFICATION. LESLIE J. TRACEY and HAROLD H. QUAIL, Stockton, Calif. Filed Nov. 12, 1927. Serial No. 232,882. 5 Claims. (Cl. 116—32.)



1. An attachment for a motor vehicle including a member arranged to be mounted on the vehicle in a position to be engaged by an obstruction in the path of movement of the vehicle, a plurality of identification means, a container for said means arranged to be mounted on the vehicle, and rearwardly movable means supporting said member and normally holding the identification means in the container.

1,682,154. PUSH-BUTTON FAUCET. ALANSON CLARK VAN HOUSE, Oakland, Calif. Filed Aug. 1, 1921. Serial No. 489,013. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—137.)

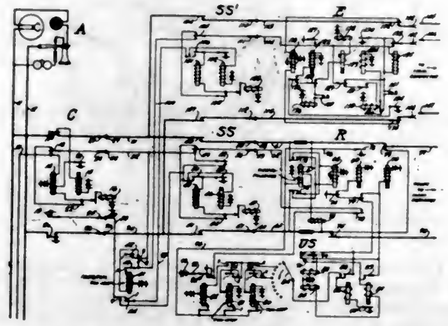


A device of the type described comprising a tubular-shaped casting, a partition disposed in the bore of said casting and having a guide opening therein, a valve guide disposed in said bore and being slidably received in said opening, a push button adapted to be slidably received in said bore, to be guided thereby, and being threaded onto said valve guide, a spring disposed between said partition and said button, said casting having a slot therein, a stop pin carried by said push button adapted to engage in said slot for limiting the movement of said valve guide and for preventing rotation of said guide with respect to said casting, said casting having an outlet pipe and having an inlet opening, and a concave seat surrounding said opening, a valve secured to said valve guide and having a convex portion adapted to be received in the concave seat of said casting, said valve being entirely exposed, and means for securing said valve to said valve guide.

1,682,155. WHEEL FOR PRESSING THE EMPTY TUBES UPON THE SPINDLES OF SPINNING AND DOUBLING FRAMES. ERNST TOENNIESSEN, Tubingen, Germany. Filed Jan. 8, 1927, Serial No. 159,978, and in Germany Jan. 11, 1926. 2 Claims. (Cl. 118—16.)

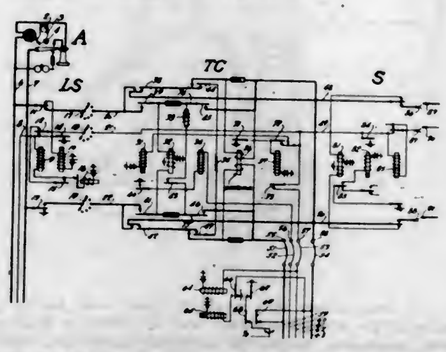
1. In a device for pressing empty tubes upon the spindles of spinning- and doubling frames, comprising in combination a wheel with a continuous circular running surface of rounded-off teeth, means fixed at the centre of the wheel for handling the same, the intervals of said teeth being so situated that they accurately fit the several tubes the one after the other when the wheel is rolled over the row of tubes.

1,682,156. PRESSING-OFF DEVICE FOR TUBES AND YARN BODIES OF SPINNING AND DOUBLING FRAMES. ERNST TOENNIESSEN, Tubingen, Germany. Filed Jan. 8, 1927, Serial No. 159,979, and in Germany Jan. 11, 1926. 2 Claims. (Cl. 118—16.)



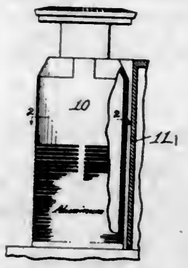
1. In a pressing-off device for spinning- and doubling frames, a spindle bearing plate, a guide rail fixed to said spindle bearing plate in combination with a rigid frame with means for rolling the frame on the guide rail, means for oscillating the frame on the guide rail, a pressing-off comb pivotally mounted on said frame and means for oscillating said pressing-off comb on the frame, substantially as described and shown and for the purpose set forth.

1,682,157. METHOD OF AND MEANS FOR POLISHING METAL SURFACES. WILLIAM L. WEBER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 23, 1927. Serial No. 170,411. 6 Claims. (Cl. 51—280.)



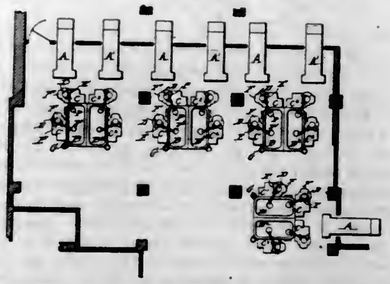
1. The method of polishing and hardening the contact surface of a commutator which consists in causing the surface to be treated to travel at a high speed, and applying against said traveling surface a composition of sulphur and an abrasive material under sufficient pressure and heat to polish said surface and cause the sulphur of said composition to unite with the metal of said surface whereby a hardened exterior is formed on said surface.

1,682,158. MULTIOFFICE TELEPHONE SYSTEM. BERNARD D. WILLIS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 24, 1923, Serial No. 664,374. Renewed July 23, 1927. 13 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



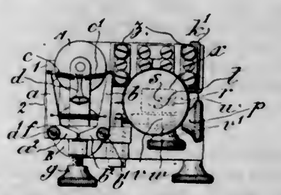
1. In a telephone system, a trunk, a first switch and a second switch individual to said trunk, two groups of trunks accessible to said switches, respectively, means responsive to a call over said trunk for operating said first switch to select a trunk in the associated group, and means for subsequently releasing said first switch and for causing said second switch to select an idle trunk in the associated group, the last named means being controlled from the trunk selected by said first switch, said control being exercised or not according to the called number.

1,682,159. MULTIOFFICE TELEPHONE SYSTEM. BERNARD D. WILLIS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 24, 1925. Serial No. 45,731. 15 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



12. In an automatic telephone system, in combination, a pay station line, means operated responsive to the initiation of a call for extending the line to an automatic switch, means for extending a branch from the switch to an operator's switch-board, means whereby the operator may further extend the line either over the automatic switch or by way of the switchboard at will, and means for indicating to the operator that a coin has been deposited.

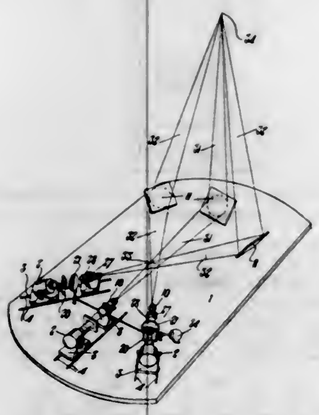
1,682,160. CORE FOR STEREOTYPE-PLATE-CASTING BOXES. HENRY A. WISE WOOD, New York, N. Y., assignor to Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed Dec. 26, 1922, Serial No. 609,046. Renewed Dec. 27, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 22—4.)



1. As an article of manufacture, an aluminum stereotype plate casting core for increasing the rapidity of cooling the casting.

1,682,161. STEREOTYPING PLANT. HENRY A. WISE WOOD, New York, N. Y., assignor to Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed Oct. 27, 1925, Serial No. 65,209. Renewed Jan. 5, 1928. 11 Claims. (Cl. 22—64.)

1. In a stereotype foundry plant, the combination with a melting furnace having two pumps therein for delivering metal, of a casting machine located at one end thereof, and a casting machine at one side thereof, said melting furnace being left free at the back so that another furnace and its casting machines can be placed back of it.



1,682,162. TELEGRAPHIC RECEIVING APPARATUS. JAMES ROLAND WORTHINGTON, East Croydon, England, assignor to said Worthington and Creed & Company Limited, Croydon, England. Filed Nov. 17, 1923, Serial No. 675,333, and in Great Britain Nov. 27, 1922. 12 Claims. (Cl. 178—91.)

1. In telegraphic receiving apparatus of the kind herein referred to, the combination with the polarized armature of such apparatus, of springs acting in opposition upon said armature to hold it in a definite position, separate movable anchorage points for the extremities of said opposed springs remote from the armature and adjusting means, operable by interdependent simultaneous separation or approximation of said movable anchorage points to vary the action of said opposed springs on said armature.

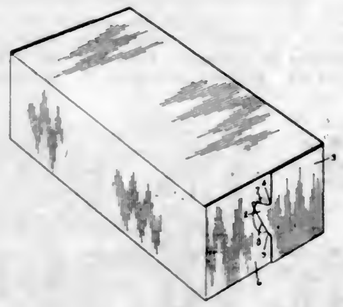
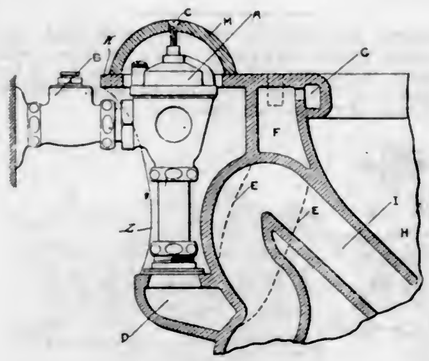
1,682,163. OPTICAL SIGN PROJECTOR. WILLIAM ARTHUR ALDER, Kennington, London, England, assignor, by mesne assignments, to International Skywriters Limited, Toronto, Canada, a Company of Ontario. Filed Dec. 23, 1926. Serial No. 156,646. 10 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)



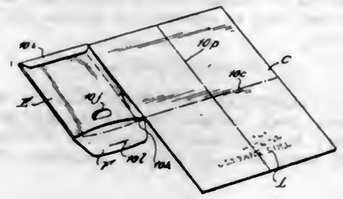
1. Sign projecting apparatus comprising an optical projector, a transparent sign and an objective lens located so that a beam of light will be projected through them and a reflector to direct the picture beam up toward the sky, a number of additional projectors, rotatable colour filters and objective lenses mounted in front of the projectors, means for driving the colour filters synchronously so that the varying colours of each beam will alternate with the colours of the other beams, each projector being arranged to project its beams of light at an angle to and across the picture beam, and a number of reflectors to deflect the additional beams upwardly so as to meet and register with the picture beam at a common position at which the picture will become visible.

1,682,164. COMBINATION LIGHT. WILLIAM G. BERRY, JOSEPH KLEIN, and CHARLES SCHMIDT, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Apr. 2, 1926. Serial No. 99,269. 12 Claims. (Cl. 240—8.2.)



4. An article of the character described having in combination a base, a lamp supported on said base, an ornamental casing rotatably supported on said base, means for rotating said casing, and electro-magnetic means for stopping the rotation of said casing at a predetermined point.

1,682,165. LOCK FOR FOLDING BOXES. LOUIS BOEPPLER, Oakland, Calif., assignor to The Paraffine Companies, Inc., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 12, 1924. Serial No. 719,474. 4 Claims. (Cl. 229—35.)

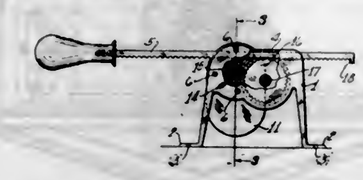


1. A lock for a paper box comprising a flap terminating in a tongue having a widened head portion, and a complementary flap having an angular slit, the distance from the apex of the angle to one end of the slit being greater than the width of the head and the ends of the slit being spaced apart a distance less than the width of the head.

1,682,166. WATER-CLOSET. RAYMOND E. CRANE and DAVID E. GULICK, Kittanning, Pa. Filed Apr. 28, 1927. Serial No. 187,303. 8 Claims. (Cl. 4—70.)

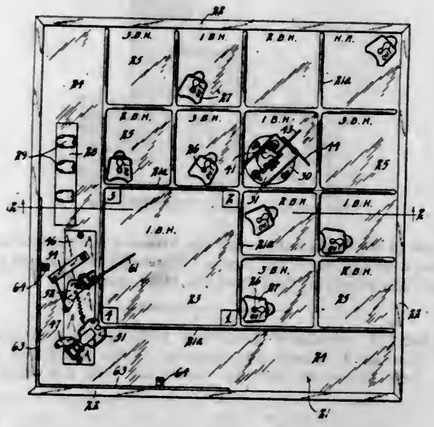
1. A combination with a water closet bowl having a recess in the rear of sufficient size to receive a flushing valve mechanism, means for supplying water to a valve mechanism located in said recess and an outlet leading upwardly from said recess to a flush rim for flushing said closet bowl and of a china shelf above said recess through which a portion of said valve projects, substantially as described.

1,682,167. ADVERTISEMENT CARRIER. ABRAHAM DEUTSCHMEISTER, Bronx, N. Y. Filed Apr. 5, 1927. Serial No. 181,069. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—68.)



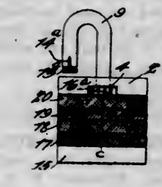
1. A device of the character described comprising an envelope having an opening to receive a filler, said envelope having a closure flap and a legend bearing extension of greater length than said envelope in the direction beyond said opening when unfolded, said extension being foldable to form a structure of multiple thickness overlying the envelope flap.

1,682,168. RECIPROCATING MOP. WALTER P. DORL, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 12, 1927. Serial No. 190,742. 8 Claims. (Cl. 15—98.)



1. In a reciprocating mop, the combination of a carriage movable back and forth, stops at the limits of travel of said carriage, shafts revolvable on said carriage, arms on said shafts adapted to carry mops and rotatable with said shafts, and means cooperating with said stops for imparting rotary movement to said shafts as said carriage approaches either end of its travel.

1,682,169. PENCIL SHARPENER. BRUCE DOUGAN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed June 21, 1926. Serial No. 117,411. 5 Claims. (Cl. 120—94.)

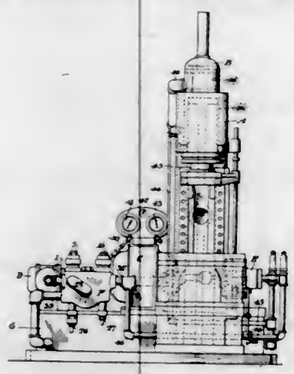


1. In a pencil sharpener, in combination, a supporting frame having a slide-way, a plurality of cooperating spiral cutters mounted for rotation on the frame, and means for effecting rotary movement in unison of the cutters, said means including a gear mounted for rotation on the frame and having driving connection with the cutters, and a rack-bar arranged for reciprocating movement in one direction in said slide-way and having meshing engagement with said gear to operate said cutters to sharpen a pencil inserted therebetween, and for reciprocation in the opposite direction to reverse the rotation of the spiral cutters to release or expel the pencil therefrom.

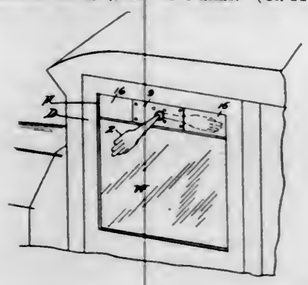
1,682,170. BALL GAME APPARATUS. JOHN A. EKELUND, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed June 10, 1927. Serial No. 197,859. 18 Claims. (Cl. 273—89.)

1. In a toy baseball game, a detachable batter comprising a pair of clamp arms pivoted together and a spring normally forcing said clamp arms towards each other to engage a fixed support, whereby said clamp arms can be detachably engaged from the support, and a bat carried by said clamp arms.

1,682,171. PERMUTATION LOCK. ALEXANDER ENOS, Seattle, Wash. Filed Dec. 23, 1926. Serial No. 156,681. 10 Claims. (Cl. 70—113.)



1. In a permutation lock, a shackle member, a main body in which the shackle member is slidably mounted, a plurality of disks for controlling movement of the shackle member, each of the disks being formed with recesses adapted, when the disks are aligned, to provide a passage for the movement of the shackle member, and guard rings carried by certain of the disks to determine which of the recesses of said disks shall be open to the passage of the shackle member.



1,682,172. AUTOMATIC HYDRAULIC PRESS. WALTER ERNST, Mount Gilead, Ohio, assignor to Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Company, Mount Gilead, Ohio. Filed Sept. 8, 1927. Serial No. 218,189. 7 Claims. (Cl. 138—17.)

1. In an automatic hydraulic press mechanism having a main cylinder, means for supplying fluid under low pressure thereto, and means for supplying fluid under high pressure thereto, a by-pass mechanism which compriaes a valve and means for opening the same at a predetermined pressure to allow the fluid under low pressure to circulate idly, and a second valve and means for opening the same to permit the return of fluid from the main cylinder.

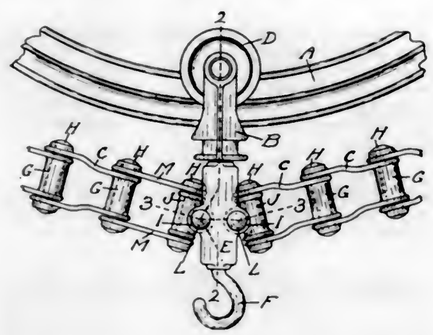
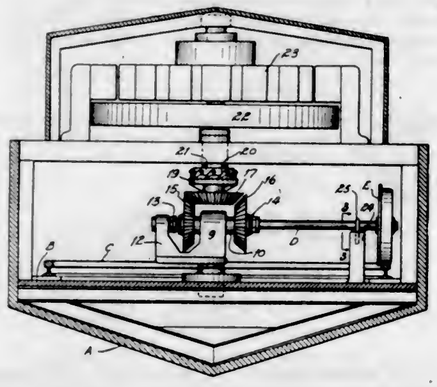
1,682,173. WINDOW-MOUNTED AUTOMOBILE SIGNAL. SAMUEL A. GAEDE, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Feb. 29, 1928. Serial No. 257,961. 10 Claims. (Cl. 116—52.)



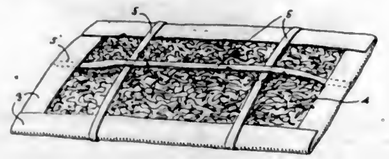
1. A manual automobile signal device including a ball and socket mechanism and a mount therefor, a signal hand secured to one side of the ball and an operating lever secured to the opposite side of the ball, and guideways for the lever whereby the said hand is guided to one of a series of selective effective signalling positions.

1,682,174. AIR PUMP FOR SPRAYING DEVICES. LAWRENCE V. HARE, Jersey City, N. J., assignor to Continental Can Company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 13, 1926. Serial No. 141,361. 4 Claims. (Cl. 230—238.)



1. An air pump for a spraying device comprising a cylinder, a piston in said cylinder, a piston rod connected to said piston and a head for closing said cylinder, said cylinder being formed of sheet metal and said head being formed of sheet metal and including a body portion extending across the end of the cylinder and having an inwardly projecting flange adapted to fit within the cylinder, said flange having an annular groove therein into which the cylinder wall may be extended for holding the head in the cylinder.

1,682,175. ELEVATED CONVEYER. PAUL M. HASSLER, Fairfield, Iowa, assignor to The Louden Machinery Company, Fairfield, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Oct. 21, 1927. Serial No. 227,735. 4 Claims. (Cl. 105—154.)

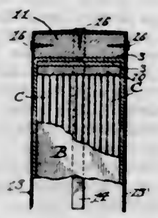


1. In elevated conveyers, a series of trolleys adapted to run on an elevated trackway, each trolley having a load supporting frame depending therefrom and laterally extended portions formed on the opposite edges of said frame below the trackway and in a substantially parallel line therewith, and conveying means horizontally pivoted to said extended portions of the trolley frame at substantially equal distances from the vertical center of the trolley frame.

1,682,176. WAVE MOTOR. FRANCIS HEGENBARTH, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Dec. 12, 1925. Serial No. 74,921. 3 Claims. (Cl. 185—30.)

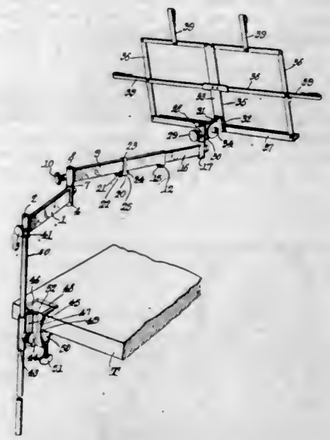
1. A wave motor comprising a circular track; a rotor arranged to travel on said track; a driven shaft; and means interposed between said rotor and shaft to drive said shaft in the same direction regardless of change of direction of the motion of said rotor.

1,682,177. PACKING PAD. BENJAMIN M. HOBLICK, Fresno, Calif., assignor to Blake, Moffitt & Towne, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed May 15, 1926. Serial No. 109,237. 2 Claims. (Cl. 154—54.)



1. As an article of manufacture, a portable packing pad adapted to be placed in a fruit shipping box, said pad comprising a sheet of paper with its margins turned over to form a retaining lip extending entirely around the edge of the pad, a layer of rumpled tissue paper shreds in pad formation arranged on the sheet and retained at the edges of the pad by said lip, a relatively narrow tape passing over the paper shreds and secured at its ends to the sheet, and with said shreds freely exposed between the tape and said lip.

1,682,178. TEETH-CLEANING DEVICE. FREDERICK T. HOPE, Seattle, Wash., assignor to Dental Cleanser Company, Seattle, Wash., a Corporation of Washington. Filed Sept. 28, 1926. Serial No. 138,185. 7 Claims. (Cl. 132—92.)

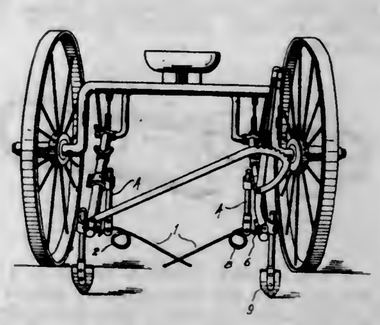


1. In a toilet article, the combination with a tubular casing having an open end and adapted to serve as a receptacle for dental-floss thread, said casing being provided in its periphery with a slot disposed helically of the casing, of a ferrule serving as a closure for the open end of said casing and having a stud engageable within the casing slot, said ferrule being provided with a slot extending from the central portion thereof into proximity of its periphery whereby the turning of the ferrule in one rotary direction will lead the thread into position to be clamped between the ferrule and the casing end through the action of said stud in the helical slot of the casing.

1,682,179. CONTAINER. OTTMAR M. KREMBS, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 20, 1927. Serial No. 192,934. 8 Claims. (Cl. 229—43.)

1. A package consisting of a container member of relatively light material, adapted to receive merchandise of relatively heavy weight to be closely fitted therein, movable protecting blocks at each end of the package, binding means extending longitudinally and across the ends, whereby the end blocks are drawn toward each other and against the ends of the merchandise to be packed, and a circumferentially arranged tie strip, whereby a solid, unitary structure of package and contents is produced.

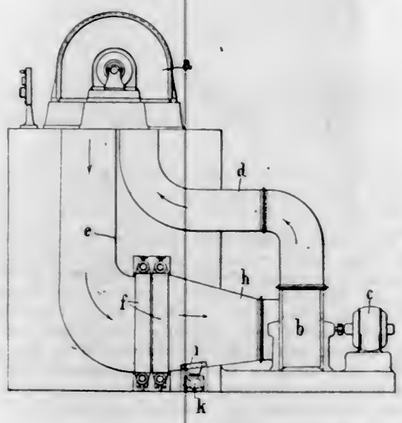
1,682,180. RACK. EARL S. MERRILL, Kansas City, Mo. Filed May 7, 1927. Serial No. 189,686. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—82.)



1. In a rack of the class described the combination with a head and a standard, of a jointed arm pivotally connected at its ends to the head and standard respectively, said arm including interfitting telescopically connected channeled members, a yoke connected to the inner end of the inner member and straddling and slidable on the outer member, anti-friction devices carried by the inner member and the yoke for rolling engagement with the edges of the outer member, and anti-friction means carried by the outer member for rolling engagement with the edges of the inner member.

1,682,181. DEPILATORY. CARL S. MINER and ELMER W. TROLANDER, Chicago, Ill., assignors, by mesne assignments, to The Delatone Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 2, 1924. Serial No. 735,500. 4 Claims. (Cl. 167—9.)

1. A depilatory paste comprising barium sulphide and barium sulphate.



1,682,182. CULTIVATOR ATTACHMENT. LUCIAN MORRISON and JAMES O. SIMMONS, Sr., Troy, Tex. Filed Sept. 22, 1927. Serial No. 221,189. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—193.)

An attachment for cultivators for destroying weeds and grass, comprising a pair of resilient rods adapted to be secured respectively to opposite cultivator beams, each of said rods having one end thereof substantially straight, the opposite ends slightly curved, and an intermediate portion bent in the form of a loop, said curved end adapted to be detachably secured to said beam, the curve on said end being adjustably positioned to vary the angle between said rods, said straight end adapted to travel under the soil for destroying weeds and grass, said intermediate portion having the plane of its loop positioned at an angle oblique to the surface of the ground, said rods crossing each other adjacent the lower ends thereof.

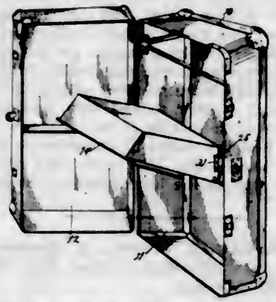
1,682,183. AIR-COOLING APPARATUS. CHARLES ALGERNON PARSONS and JESSEL ROSEN, Newcastle-on-Tyne, England; said Rosen assignor to said Parsons. Filed Sept. 3, 1925, Serial No. 54,291, and in Great Britain Oct. 21, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 257—244.)

1. Apparatus for treating a gaseous medium in which aqueous vapour is suspended, comprising in combination a substantially gas-tight endless duct, means for circulating through said duct said gaseous medium and disposed transversely of said duct and over substantially its full cross-sectional area, a main cooler for cooling said medium to a point not so low as the dew point of said vapour and also disposed transversely of said duct but over only a comparatively small part of its cross-sectional area, auxiliary means for drying said medium by condensing aqueous vapour therein suspended.

1,682,184. SHOE. LUIGI PIGNANELLI, Tacoma, Wash. Filed Aug. 17, 1926. Serial No. 129,703. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—18.)

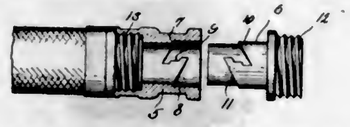


1. In a shoe, an upper shaped to provide in a single piece with the vamp side flaps which are adapted to be turned inwardly above the sole, the free ends of the flaps being secured together, said upper being sewed to the sole by means of stitches disposed in spaced apart relation to the respective flaps.

1,682,185. WINDSHIELD CONSTRUCTION. ALBERT T. POTTER, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Ainsworth Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed May 4, 1925. Serial No. 27,991. 10 Claims. (Cl. 296—84.)

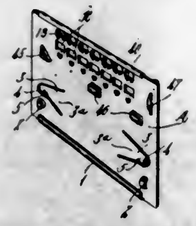
8. In a windshield construction, a channel shaped header, a windshield hingedly mounted upon the lower edge of said header, an operating member arranged within said header, a bar arranged within said header, and a member establishing a connection between said windshield, bar and operating member.

1,682,186. TRUNK. JULIUS RITTER, Jr., Racine, Wis., assignor to Hartmann Trunk Company, Racine, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Sept. 28, 1925. Serial No. 59,136. 1 Claim. (Cl. 190—13.)



In a trunk, a trunk section; hinge elements secured to opposite walls of said section, comprising relatively short angle members having inwardly projecting flanges provided with apertures; a drawer; companion hinge elements secured to said drawer, comprising members having portions adapted to be readily removably received in said apertures; and stop members carried by said drawer adapted to engage the inwardly projecting flanges of said first named hinge elements to limit the outward swing of said drawer, said stop members being disengageable from said flanges through vertical movement of said drawer to permit the detachment of the latter from the trunk section.

1,682,187. FIRE-HYDRANT COUPLING. HENRY C. SAUNDERS, Ontario, Calif. Filed July 13, 1926. Serial No. 122,201. 1 Claim. (Cl. 285—175.)



A hose coupling embodying cooperating tubular sections, one of the sections having its inner surface cut away defining inclined shoulders spaced from the outer end thereof, step-like shoulders connecting the lower ends of the inclined shoulders and the upper edges of the inclined shoulders, the outer surface of the opposite section being cut away defining inclined shoulders, step-like shoulders connecting the outer edge of one inclined shoulder with the inner edge of the opposite inclined shoulder, and the shoulders of the sections adapted to interlock to hold the sections together.

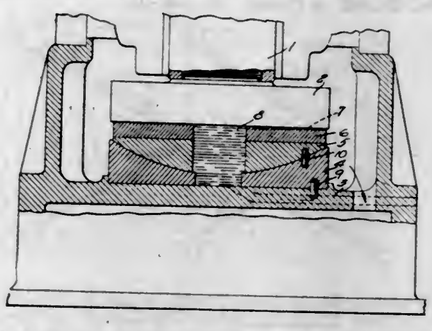
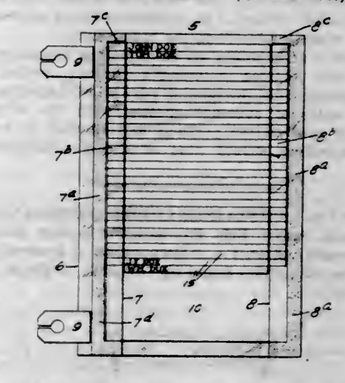
1,682,188. PRINTING AND INDEX DEVICE. GEORGE W. SCHAEFER, Quincy, Mass., assignor to Addressograph Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 1, 1925. Serial No. 59,825. 7 Claims. (Cl. 101—368.)

1. A frame of the class described for use in connection with printing plates of different widths, comprising lips struck out from the frame for retaining a plate against lateral or forward motion, a stop for preventing vertical motion of the plate in one direction, and yielding elements protruding from the face of the frame and adapted to be pushed rearwardly during the mounting of a plate and to snap through mating openings formed in the plate to prevent vertical motion of the plate in the other direction.



1,682,189. BABBITTED BEARING. ALEXANDER E. SCHEIN, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Sperry Gyroscope Company, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 20, 1922. Serial No. 537,709. 7 Claims. (Cl. 308—160.)

5. A thrust bearing comprising a stationary member, a plurality of circumferentially grouped stationary bearing shoes directly supported on said member and adapted to support a rotatable member, said shoes being of a more easily compressible metal than the metal of said member, and each of said shoes being of graduated thickness so as to yield unequally under compression to present inclined surfaces.



1,682,190. THRUST BEARING. ALEXANDER E. SCHEIN, Flushing, N. Y., assignor to The Sperry Gyroscope Company, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 4, 1924, Serial No. 741,541. Renewed July 7, 1928. 4 Claims. (Cl. 308—168.)

1. In a thrust bearing of the type in which means are provided at intervals for drawing oil in between the bearing surfaces dividing the plate into sections and a given pressure is maintained upon the bearing, a member located to transmit the thrust pressure through it, said member having a relatively low modulus of elasticity and a substantially uniform relatively great thickness so that each section may be elastically deformed into a wedge shape from end to end by unequal distribution of pressure generated by the wedging action of the oil film as it enters the bearing between said sections.

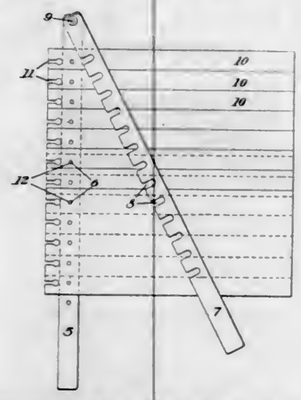
1,682,191. VISIBLE CARD-INDEX RECORD. HENRY SCHOOLBERG, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Nov. 30, 1926. Serial No. 151,620. 9 Claims. (Cl. 129—34.)



6. A card for use in a card index sheet, comprising a card member adapted at its ends to engage guideways of a sheet, and a thickened portion on the card of less length than the distance between said guideways, whereby the thickened portions of adjacent cards will contact to position the cards on the sheet.

1,682,192. VISIBLE LOOSE-LEAF INDEX AND RECORD. HENRY SCHOOLBERG, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Nov. 30, 1926. Serial No. 151,621. 10 Claims. (Cl. 129—1.)

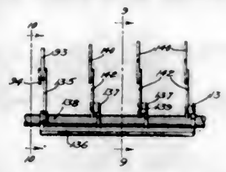
7. A series of sheets for a binder each sheet having a detachable index strip parallel and adjacent to a non-binding edge of the sheet whereby when the index strip is detached the corresponding area of another alined sheet underneath becomes visible.

1,682,193. LOOSE-LEAF BINDER SHEETS AND DEVICE FOR MANIPULATING THE SAME. HENRY SCHOOLBERG, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Oct. 8, 1927. Serial No. 224,872. 5 Claims. (Cl. 129—1.)

1. A device for manipulating the sheets of a loose leaf binder comprising a base member and a top member means for pivotally connecting said members at one end of the device to permit vertical and horizontal swing movements of the top member relative to the base member.

5. A loose leaf having a series of slotted post-attaching portions, said portions including a circular opening and a slit extending from the binding edge to said opening and a second series of openings parallel with the series of openings of said slotted portions and adapted to receive the corresponding spaced pins on a sheet-manipulating device.

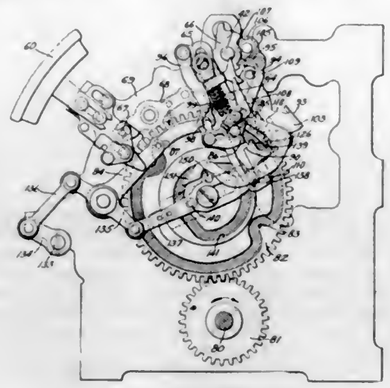
1,682,194. CONTAINER-COVER CONSTRUCTION. HOWARD A. SELAH, Erie, Pa., assignor to Erie Malleable Iron Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 12, 1924. Serial No. 755,383. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—55.)



A container cover construction comprising a cover having an opening therethrough adapted to receive a securing screw and a transverse slot extending from the edge of the cover, said slot being of less width than the thickness of the cover providing a part of the cover wall above and below the slot; and a perforated plate in the slot with its perforation in line with the opening in the cover and adapted to retain a screw in the opening.

1,682,195. FUEL BRIQUETTE. GEORGE F. SHEEHAN, Seattle, Wash. Filed Aug. 24, 1927. Serial No. 215,258. 3 Claims. (Cl. 44—23.)

1. A fuel briquette formed of coal, crude oil, sulphur and a suitable binder.



1,682,196. CASH REGISTER. BERNIS M. SHIPLEY, Dayton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Maryland. Filed May 7, 1923. Serial No. 637,217. 16 Claims. (Cl. 235—27.)

4. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a plurality of banks of transaction keys, a plurality of arms, one for each bank, adapted to be rocked by the depression of a key in its appropriate bank, a bank of control keys, a detent adapted to be differentially moved by the depression of any of said keys, and a yoke member connected to said detent and adapted to cooperate with said arms to permit a key to be depressed only in the bank of transaction keys appropriate to the key depressed in the control bank.

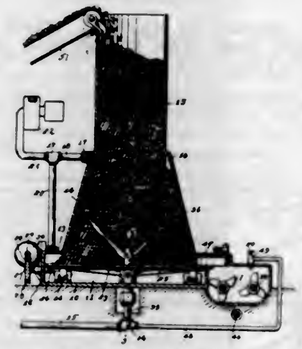
1,682,197. CASH REGISTER. BERNIS M. SHIPLEY, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Aug. 10, 1926. Serial No. 128,450. 15 Claims. (Cl. 235—130.)

1. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a release shaft, means for either returning said shaft to normal or past normal position, manipulative devices for determining the extent of movement of the release shaft, and means operated under control of said devices for preventing accidental movement past normal when said release shaft is to move only to its normal position.

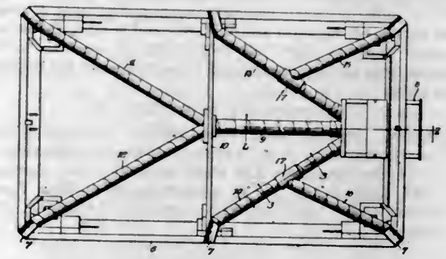
1,682,198. LAUNDRY BAG WITH IMPROVED SELVAGE AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. EUGENE N. SITTON, Autun, S. C., assignor to Pendleton Manufacturing Co., Autun, S. C. Filed June 27, 1927. Serial No. 201,841. 4 Claims. (Cl. 139—389.)



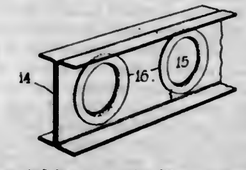
1. The combination, with an open mesh leno weave laundry bag, of a reinforced selvage edge having an extra warp thread and having the filling threads looped around this extra warp thread.

1,682,199. TENNIS RACKET. ROBERT H. SMILIE, Oakland, Calif. Filed Dec. 17, 1927. Serial No. 240,722. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—73.)

1. A racket comprising a frame, a plurality of interlaced strings supported by said frame and a plurality of deformed double concave discs interposed between said strings.



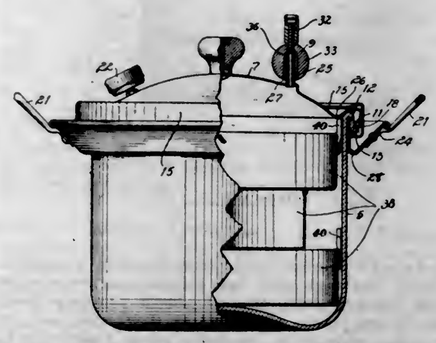
1,682,200. PROCESS FOR FORMING CERAMIC WARE. HALVER R. STRAIGHT, Adel, Iowa. Filed June 14, 1926. Serial No. 116,035. 3 Claims. (Cl. 83—73.)



1. The process of reducing shale and the like to a plastic condition, which consists in first reducing the shale to a granulated condition, then piling the same in an upright stack having its bottom and side edges sealed, then stirring the shale in the central and bottom portion of the pile, and introducing steam to said central and bottom portion under pressure in quantities in excess of its condensation.

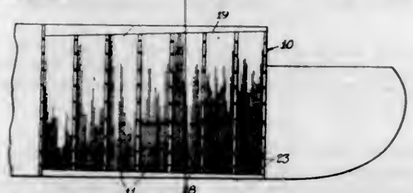
1,682,201. GULLEY FOR POCKET-BILLIARD TABLES. GEORGE L. THOMPSON, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 7, 1920. Serial No. 356,875. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—11.)

The combination of a pocket billiard table frame having a plurality of throats disposed at its corners and at its sides for the usual pockets of the table, a receptacle at one end of the table, and a plurality of tubular gulley members connecting the throats with the receptacle, said members comprising a centrally disposed member extending back from the receptacle and terminating at a point substantially at the middle of the table, a pair of members diverging from the central member to the throats at the corners of the table remote from the receptacle, a pair of members directly connecting the side throats with the receptacle, and a pair of members each of which directly connects one of the throats at the end of the table adjacent said receptacle to one of the members connected to the side throats.



1,682,202. BEAM. STANLEY I. VAUGHN, Hempstead, N. Y., assignor to Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 8, 1927. Serial No. 197,274. 2 Claims. (Cl. 189—37.)

2. A solid metal beam or the like of true I-section comprising two beam parts, each of channel section, and each including marginal flanges and a web portion, the web portions of the beam parts from one to the other of the marginal flanges thereof, bearing flatwise directly one against the other and having formed therein aligned lightening holes, and members engaging in and extending thru said aligned lightening holes and bearing respectively on the outside faces of the engaging flat webs, said means constituting the sole means of fastening and holding said beam parts and hence the I-beams together.



1,682,203. PRESSURE COOKER. ALFRED VISCHER, Jr., Floral Park, N. Y., assignor to Self Seal Pressure Cooker Co., Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 29, 1921. Serial No. 525,665. 3 Claims. (Cl. 53—1.)

1. A container combining a body and a closure, and means tending to retain the latter in position on the former, the body and closure having unequal thermal coefficients of expansion, the two parts being readily separable at normal or room temperatures, and the closure fitting snugly the mouth of the body and being adapted to form a sealing contact therewith by virtue of the unequal expansion coefficient of body and closure when the parts are at super-normal temperatures, a spring ring around the outside of the cover and the body and holding the cover against removal from the body; and an annular basin formed near said mouth adapted to receive water for cooling the body.

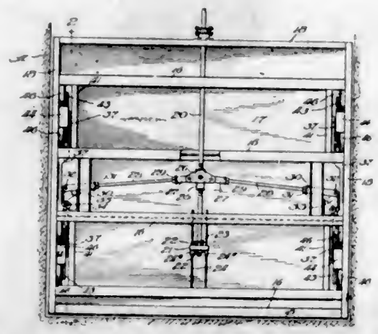
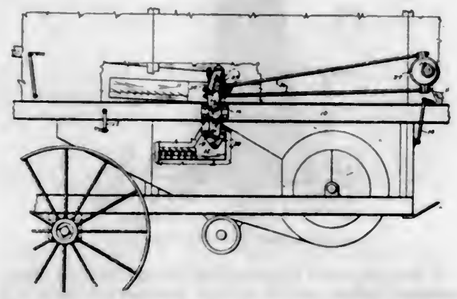
1,682,204. AEROPLANE RADIATOR. WILLIAM WAIT, Jr., Garden City, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, Inc., Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 26, 1922. Serial No. 597,073. 5 Claims. (Cl. 244—31.)



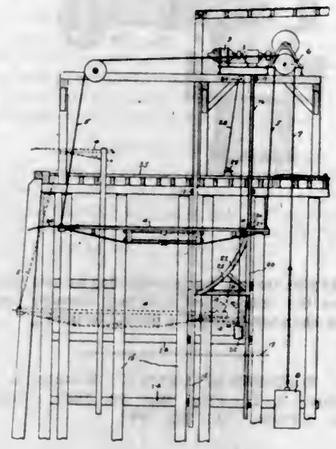
1. The combination with a structural element of an aeroplane, of a radiator fastened to said element and of a construction such that an outer skin-like covering therefor is provided, said radiator comprising a plurality of separately formed radiator sections placed edge to edge and fastened one to the other whereby one or more of said sections may be indepedently removed and replaced at will, each radiator section comprising juxtaposed corrugated metal plates in direct engagement one with the other along spaced lines of contact determined by the size of the corrugations of one of said plates, fastening means for uniting the two corrugated plates along said spaced lines of contact whereby each radiator section is subdivided into a plurality of separated water passages or cells, and headers common to a plural number of said radiator sections, said headers being likewise separately formed and substantially wedge-shaped in cross section and having their direction of greatest length at an angle to the direction of greatest length of said sections.

1,682,205. CASEMENT ADJUSTER. WILLIAM WASSENER, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Feb. 2, 1926. Serial No. 85,457. 8 Claims. (Cl. 268—83.)



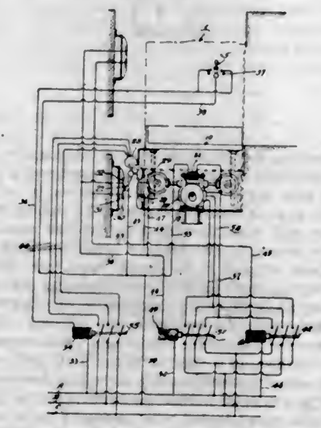
1. In a construction of the class described, a casement frame, a combined hinge and housing member attached to the casement frame including upper and lower hinge parts having lateral extensions at their lower and upper edges respectively, integrally joined together by a cylindrical housing, a window, a second hinge member attached to the window and pivotally connected to the first hinge member, a gear segment rigidly secured to the second hinge member and passing between the upper and lower parts of said combined hinge and housing member and said lateral extensions thereto and into said housing, a worm in engagement with said gear segment mounted in said housing, and a rod connected to the worm adapted to be turned to thereby swing the window with respect to the frame therefor.

1,682,206. HYDRAULIC GATE. LOUIS K. WHITCOMB, Jr., and NICHOLAS VANDERKIEFT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 20, 1926. Serial No. 82,475. 16 Claims. (Cl. 61—28.)



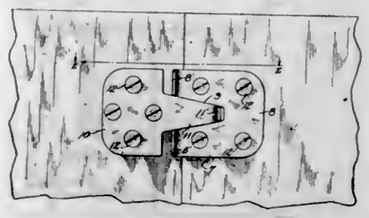
1. In combination with a seat, a sliding gate valve, a balanced mounting carried on the gate, means for shifting said mounting laterally of the gate, and anti-friction devices supported by said mounting adapted to bear against the seat, substantially as described.

1,682,207. THRASHING MACHINE. FRANZ J. WOOD, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Dec. 26, 1923. Serial No. 682,739. 1 Claim. (Cl. 130—24.)



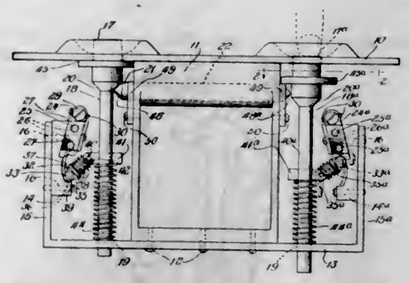
In a thrashing machine, the combination of a machine frame, a grain pan and a cleaner shoe, said pan and said shoe being mounted to reciprocate horizontally with their inner ends slightly spaced apart and overlapping, a lever fulcrumed between its ends to the frame at a point between the grain pan and the cleaner shoe, one end of the lever being extended downwardly and pivotally connected to the cleaner shoe, the other end of the lever being extended upwardly and laterally in a direction toward the receiving end of the grain pan, means for pivotally connecting the upper end of said lever to the inner end of said grain pan, eccentric rods for imparting oscillatory movement to said lever, means for pivotally connecting one end of said eccentric rods to said lever at a point between the pivotal center of said lever and its upper end, the pivotal points of said shoe and said eccentric rods being substantially in a line passing through the pivotal center of said lever, so that when the lever is in one position of its oscillatory movement, the weight of the pivotal end of the said eccentric rods will counterbalance the weight of said shoe, at which time the pivotal center of said grain pan will be substantially vertically above the pivotal center of said lever, and when said lever is in another position of its movement, the weight of said shoe will counterbalance the weight of said grain pan, at which time the pivotal connection of said eccentric rods will be substantially vertically above the pivot center of said lever.

1,682,208. MARINE ELEVATOR. HARRY BARLOW, Port Madison, Wash., assignor to Barlow Marine Elevator Co. Inc., Seattle, Wash., a Corporation of Washington. Filed Jan. 24, 1927. Serial No. 163,290. 5 Claims. (Cl. 14—72.)



1. A marine elevator embodying an elevator platform suspended at its four corners having a roller means operatively mounted on each side thereof; and adjustable throwout guide members operatively mounted with respect to said rollers whereby said platform may be moved in a direction at right angles to the vertical at any desired point intermediate its flight.

1,682,209. ELEVATOR. MILO A. BAKER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Sept. 16, 1926. Serial No. 135,870. 8 Claims. (Cl. 187—29.)

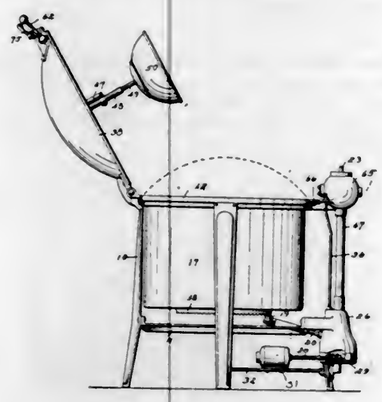


3. An elevator comprising an elevator car, a floor for the car, means for moving said floor relative to said car, a switch carried by the floor and movable into engagement with a member in the elevator hatchway and also movable into engagement with means rigid with the car, and circuits connected with said switch operative to level the floor with the landing when the car stops adjacent a landing and to return the floor to its normal position within the car when the car leaves a landing.

1,682,210. TABLE-LEAF-ALIGNING DEVICE. ALBERT J. BELROSE, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to The Kiel Furniture Co., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed June 12, 1926. Serial No. 115,558. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—9.)

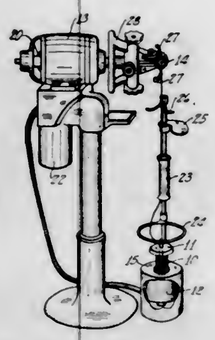
3. A table leaf aligning device consisting of a pair of plates having means for attachment to table leaves, one of said plates having a tapered edge recess and downwardly beveled edges on each side of said recess, and the other plate having a tapered projecting edge tongue with a downwardly beveled end portion.

1,682,211. SWITCH. JOSEPH W. BISHOP, Muskegon, Mich., assignor to The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 4, 1923. Serial No. 629,761. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—50.)



1. In a switch, the combination with a plurality of switch mechanisms each comprising a push button, a lever loosely pivoted to the push button, a roller carried by the lever, a track for the roller, yielding means for keeping the roller in engagement with the track, a terminal adapted to be engaged by the roller, and yielding means for holding the push button in a position wherein the roller is disengaged from the terminal, of means controlled by the push buttons for preventing simultaneous operation of the switch mechanisms.

1,682,212. WASHING MACHINE. HANS T. BORSHEIM, Charles City, Iowa, assignor to Hart-Parr Company, Charles City, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Sept. 21, 1925. Serial No. 57,697. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—19.)



1. A washing machine comprising a supporting frame, a tub rotatively mounted for movement about a vertical axis, a cover member for said tub pivotally mounted to said frame, an agitator carried by said cover member, an actuating mechanism for said agitator also carried by said cover member, means carried by said frame for imparting movement to said actuating means when the cover member is closed, means for imparting rotary movement to said tub, and means for simultaneously throwing said tub actuating means and said agitator actuating means into or out of operation.

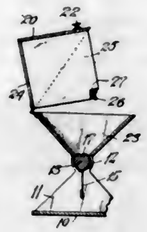
1,682,213. WINDING AND DEREELING DEVICE. PENROSE E. CHAPMAN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Nov. 4, 1926. Serial No. 146,146. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—13.)

1. In a winding device, the combination of an electrically driven winding lathe, a false head over which wire from a spool may pass a motor for driving said head and the connections of the armature of said head driving motor, in parallel with the armature of said winding lathe motor.



1,682,214. FLUID-PRESSURE BRAKE. ALFRED CHEVILLOT, Paris, France, assignor to The Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Wilmerding, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 19, 1927, Serial No. 176,686, and in France Sept. 20, 1926. 8 Claims. (Cl. 303—39.)

5. In a fluid pressure brake, the combination with a brake pipe and a triple valve device comprising a piston and slide valve operated upon a reduction in brake pipe pressure for applying the brakes, of a chamber adapted to be connected to the brake pipe through ports controlled by said slide valve in applying the brakes, and a second chamber connected to the first chamber through a restricted port.

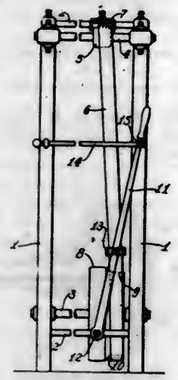
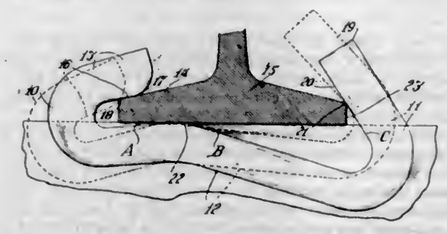
1,682,215. DISPENSING DEVICE. WARREN L. COLBY, Providence, R. I. Filed May 16, 1927. Serial No. 191,792. 1 Claim. (Cl. 312—84.)



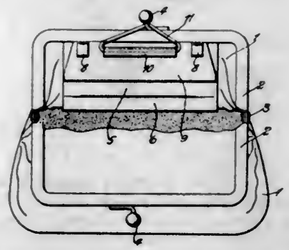
A dispensing device comprising a diagonally disposed hopper comprising a stationary lower part and a lid upper part with said parts of angular formation, a rectangular original package of straws adapted to be tightly fitted into the lid part and to be opened at its exposed corner for releasing the straws in the original container, said lid with the container adapted to be swung down into closed position for housing the container and disposing the open edge thereof lowermost, a roller mounted in the lower part of the enclosing body for engaging the released straws and having a groove therein for receiving a predetermined number of the straws at a time, a finger plate secured to the roller and extending downwardly therefrom for maintaining the roller in a definite normal position with the groove uppermost, said plate adapted to be swung by the hand to turn the roller when the hand is pushed into position beneath the roller, said roller in turning adapted to liberate said predetermined number of straws from the body portion and deposit the straws in the hand disposed beneath the roller.

1,682,216. WINDOW-CLEANING DEVICE. FRANK H. DELLAREE and JACOB BOMZE, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 9, 1926. Serial No. 80,183. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—97.)



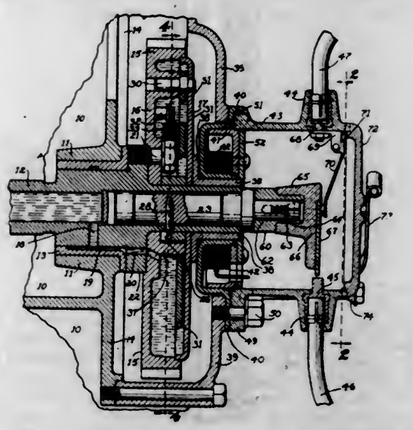
1. A cleaning device comprising a hollow holder, a housing at one end thereof, a driven shaft journaled in said holder, a head on said shaft within said housing, a support for a cleaning instrumentality in screwthreaded engagement with said head, and a cup shaped yieldable shield clamped on said head by and surrounding said support.

1,682,217. BELT-DRIVE MECHANISM. STEPHEN A. DOBYNE, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Champion Shoe Machinery Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Jan. 20, 1922. Serial No. 530,551. 6 Claims. (Cl. 64—4.)



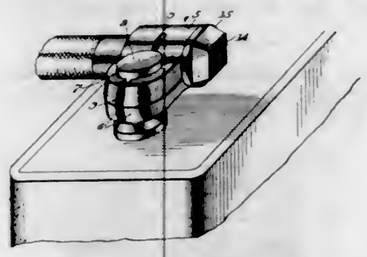
1. Belt drive mechanism, comprising, a driving pulley having integrally thereon a belt-driving face and a belt-receiving face adapted for non-driving engagement with the belt, a driven pulley, a belt-shifting guide at said driving pulley, and a stationary belt guide at said driven pulley.

1,682,218. RAIL ANCHOR. JOHN A. EVANS, Tyrone, Pa., assignor to The P & M Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Feb. 26, 1927. Serial No. 171,247. 15 Claims. (Cl. 238—330.)



1. A rail anchor consisting of a rail base embracing member provided with a bearing for engagement with the bottom surface of the rail base and provided with gripping portions for engaging the rail base at opposite sides of the rail; the said gripping portions being differentially disposed with relation to said bearing against the bottom and at different angles relative to the bottom surface of the rail, whereby movement of the rail embracing member transversely of the rail to its applied position so stresses the said member as to exert spring force lengthwise of said member tending to move the anchor in a direction to increae its grip on the rail.

1,682,219. CIGARETTE-ROLLING DEVICE. BENJAMIN K. FISHER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed July 21, 1927. Serial No. 207,362. 7 Claims. (Cl. 131—5.)

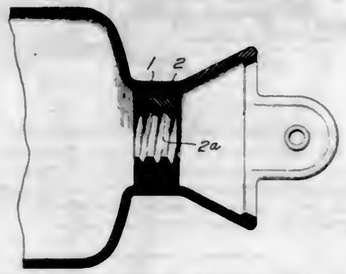


6. The combination with a tobacco pouch having a pivoted frame, of a device for rolling cigarettes including a plate extending inwardly into the pouch and supported in connection with the frame, a support in connection with said plate for holding the pouch, a second plate slidably operable across said first named plate, and a resilient connection between the frame and said second named plate whereby said second named plate is normally held in inclined position with respect to said first named plate, said resilient connection permitting forward sliding movement of said second named plate across the face of said first named plate.

1,682,220. IGNITION DEVICE. HENRY FORD, Dearborn, Mich. Filed Oct. 14, 1926. Serial No. 141,549. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—22.)

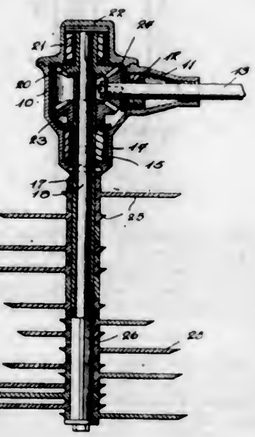
1. A combination with an internal combustion engine having a housing and cam shaft, a hollow timing gear mounted on the cam shaft, and an ignition device comprising an operating shaft, automatic advancing means for said operating shaft being mounted within said time gear and designed to vary the position of said operating shaft, and a circuit making and breaking device mounted outside the said housing in position to be operated by said operating shaft.

1,682,221. TERMINAL-POST CONNECTER. WALTER E. GOSSLING, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Prest-O-Lite Storage Battery Corporation, a Corporation of Indiana. Filed July 30, 1920. Serial No. 400,009. 1 Claim. (Cl. 173—259.1.)



A clamp terminal for binding a conductor to a storage battery terminal post, such clamp terminal comprising a body having a bore provided with oppositely tapering sockets adapted to receive tapering conductors, said bore having a slot extending partially through its wall transversely of its axis, separate relatively adjustable members extending laterally from adjacent said slot and adapted to clamp a storage battery terminal post, and tapering binding means fitting one socket of said bore and adapted to secure a tapering conductor in the other socket of said bore and cooperating with such conductor and sockets to adjust said members to clamp a terminal post.

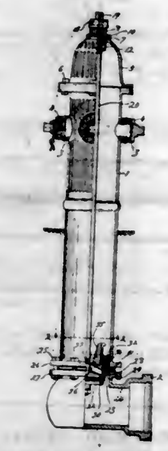
1,682,222. PACKING FOR PISTONS AND THE LIKE. SAMUEL M. GREENIDGE, Dallas, Tex. Filed May 6, 1926. Serial No. 107,293. 4 Claims. (Cl. 286—30.)



2. In a mechanism having relatively movable parts, a substantially cylindrical packing element, means for anchoring one end of said element to one of said parts, and means including oppositely disposed springs of unequal strength for feeding and guiding the other end of said element against the other of said parts.

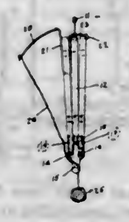
1,682,223. MEANS RELATING TO THE MANUFACTURE OF RUBBER WATER BOTTLES. HOWARD A. HANDS, Watertown, Mass., assignor to Hood Rubber Company, Watertown, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Original application filed Mar. 21, 1927, Serial No. 177,010. Divided and this application filed Aug. 22, 1927. Serial No. 214,676. 1 Claim. (Cl. 18—2.)

Means for effecting the vulcanization of the cement between the necks of water bottles and the hard rubber ferrules therein, having threaded bores, comprising a tip member of heat conducting material having an exteriorly threaded portion adapted to screw into the ferrule and having an interiorly threaded portion adapted to screw onto the end of the ordinary electric soldering iron.



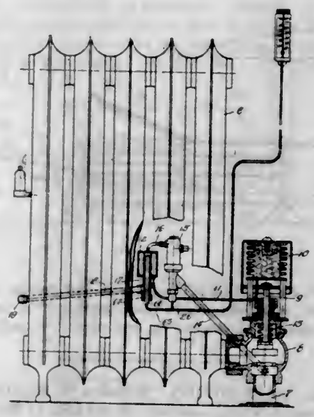
1,682,224. TILLER. THOMAS W. HICKS, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,044. 6 Claims. (Cl. 97—43.)

1. In a tillage implement, a substantially vertical two-part tiller shaft, disintegrator blades mounted on each part of said tiller shaft, a driving shaft common to the two parts of the tiller shaft, and gear means connecting the driving shaft and the two parts of the tiller shaft.



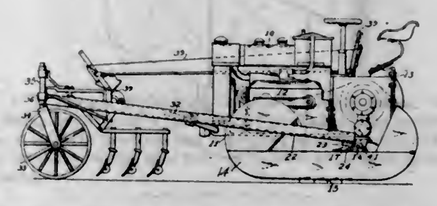
6. In a tillage implement, a tiller mounted to rotate on a substantially vertical axis comprising a shaft on which the lower portion of the tiller is mounted to rotate, a sleeve enclosing the upper portion of the shaft and rotatable with relation to the shaft, bevel gears carried on the upper ends of said shaft and said sleeve with the gear faces confronting but spaced apart from each other, a substantially horizontal driving shaft, and a bevel pinion carried by the driving shaft and meshing with both of said bevel gears to thereby drive the shaft and the sleeve.

1,682,225. HYDRANT. CHARLES HOLDER, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Michigan Valve & Foundry Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed July 27, 1925. Serial No. 46,442. 5 Claims. (Cl. 137—13.)



1. In a hydrant, the combination of an outer casing having a valve seat therein provided with a drain conduit, a hydrant valve movable longitudinally of said casing, a yoke pivotally mounted on said valve seat and adapted to seal said drain conduit, a shoulder on said valve engaging and unseating said yoke when said hydrant valve is closed, a rod extending longitudinally of said casing, a rotatable member engaging said rod and threadedly engaging said casing with a loose fit to provide an air vent for the latter, and a seat for receiving said rotatable member forming a seal therewith for closing said vent when said hydrant valve is opened.

1,682,226. TRAP. TOKUJIRO HORIKOSHI, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,837. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—89.)

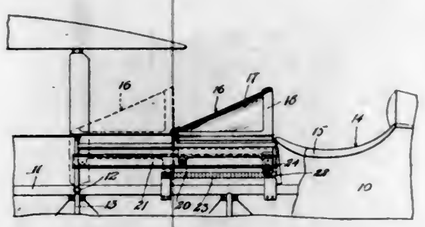


1. A snap trap having a loop-shaped vertically extending main frame, a pair of clamping frames substantially similar in shape and size to said main frame, pivots mounted at the lower end of the main frame on opposite sides thereof and on which the corresponding ends of the clamping frames are pivoted side by side so that when the clamping frames are folded up into setting position they will be on opposite sides of the main frame and substantially parallel therewith and extend to the top of said main frame, a releasable catch engaging the upper ends of said three frames for holding the clamping frames in setting position, means connected with said catch for supporting the bait in position under the lower end of the main frame, and a spring coil on each of said pivots and engaging the main frame and the clamping frames for forcibly turning the clamping frames away from the main frame when released to a downward position beside the bait so that the two frames will clamp together in their downward position.

1,682,227. TEMPERATURE-CONTROLLING APPARATUS. EMIL T. JOHNSSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 19, 1926. Serial No. 95,910. 10 Claims. (Cl. 236—42.)

1. In an apparatus of the character set forth, the combination of a heat exchange member, a supply for said member, a supply valve, an expansion member for opening said valve, a chamber connected with said expansion member but remote therefrom, liquid in said chamber and expansion member, a passageway from the supply through the chamber to the heat exchange member for supplying heat to said chamber, a valve for controlling said heat supply to the chamber, and thermostatic means for actuating said valve.

1,682,228. TRACTOR-PROPELLED IMPLEMENT. GEORGE DOUGLAS JONES, Sacramento, Calif., assignor to The Cleveland Tractor Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Continuation of application Serial No. 542,107, filed Mar. 8, 1922. This application filed Apr. 27, 1927. Serial No. 189,464. 6 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.13.)



1. In combination, a tractor, an implement carrying frame positioned in advance of said tractor, said frame having rearwardly extending beams pivoted to the rear end of said tractor, each of said beams being provided with a stirrup pivotally secured thereto, and links pivotally connected to said tractor and connected with the stirrups pivoted to the rearwardly extending beams of said implement frame.

1,682,229. ADJUSTABLE WINDSHIELD. TEMPLE N. JOYCE, Arnold, Md., assignor to Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 10, 1926. Serial No. 153,845. 6 Claims. (Cl. 244—30.)

1. The combination, in an aeroplane, of a fuselage having formed therein a cockpit opening, an adjustable wind shield

slidable lengthwise the fuselage to cover and uncover a substantial portion of said opening, said wind shield, in its forward position of adjustment, being adapted to occupy a position forward of said opening, and means operable to lock said wind shield, in any position of adjustment, against sliding movement in one direction only.

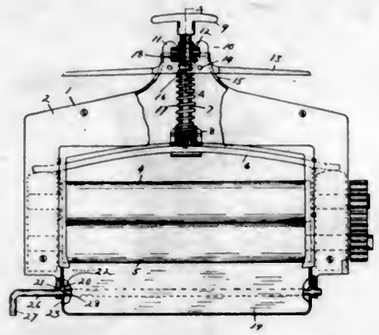
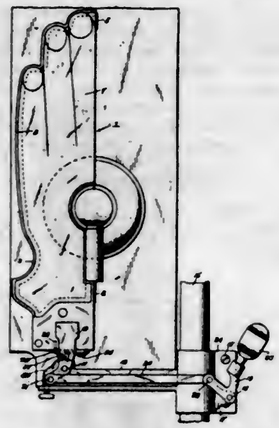
1,682,230. HAIR LOTION. MARLETA M. MCDANELD, Johnson County, Kans., assignor of one-half to Esie M. Hereford, Johnson County, Kans. Filed Jan. 18, 1928. Serial No. 247,749. 3 Claims. (Cl. 132—36.2.)

1. A liquid composition adapted to be used on the hair as a permanent wave lotion, comprising borax, bicarbonate of soda, starch and linseed oil, mixed with water.



1,682,231. VEHICLE-BODY CONSTRUCTION. NUGENT MILNER, Evansville, Ind., assignor to Graham Brothers, Evansville, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,740. 5 Claims. (Cl. 296—29.)

1. In combination, a frame member having recesses therein, and a web between said recesses, frame members secured in said recesses, said web and last mentioned members having aligned slots, and panels secured to the members aforesaid having flanges received in said slots.



1,682,232. WRINGER. EDGAR D. MISNER, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Lovell Manufacturing Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 9, 1922. Serial No. 593,268. 3 Claims. (Cl. 68—32.)

1. In a wringer, the combination with a frame, of upper and lower rolls within said frame, a post extending transversely of said upper roll, said post being longitudinally movable inward to press said rolls into contact with each other, a coil spring surrounding said post, means conveying movement from said post to the upper roll and operatively connected to said spring and upper roll for resiliently moving the upper roll away from said lower roll, a nut threaded upon said post, a releasing lever pivoted upon said frame and extending thereabove, and a catch actuated by said lever and engageable with said nut to hold said post in an inwardly adjusted position.

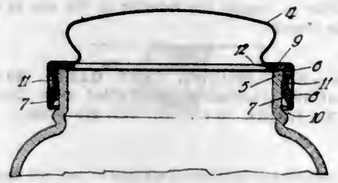
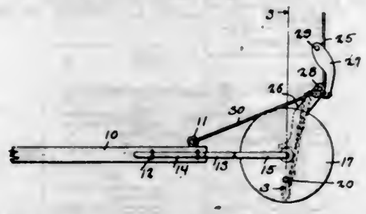
1,682,233. HAND-SYMBOL SIGNAL. ALBERT GEORGE MOLNIAR, Albion, Mich. Filed May 18, 1927. Serial No. 192,410. 13 Claims. (Cl. 116—41.)



1. An automobile signal of the class described, including a signal element divided longitudinally to form two sections, said sections being hinged together at their inner longitudinal edges to permit one of the sections to swing transversely and fold against the other section, means for moving the signal bodily to and from a signalling position, and means for folding and unfolding the sections of the signal element during the movement of the same to and from the said signalling position.

1,682,234. CLOSURE. PAUL S. MOYER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Aridor Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 3, 1924. Serial No. 723,930. 9 Claims. (Cl. 215—40.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a container and removable cap having walls surrounding one the other and spaced apart a substantial distance, and a gasket of resilient yieldable material such as rubber or the like fitted to and in retained engagement with the cap; said gasket comprising a resilient wall of concavo-convex cross-section squeezed between said walls of the container and cap and bulging against and releasably clasping the container wall, and a flange extending laterally from the upper end of said concavo-convex wall of the gasket, said flange stiffening the gasket and adapted to seat on the mouth of the container.

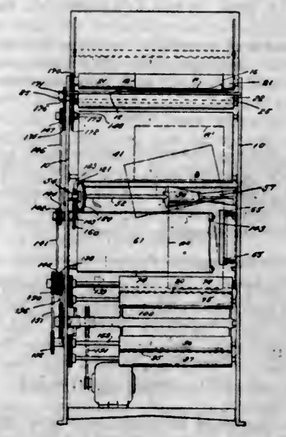
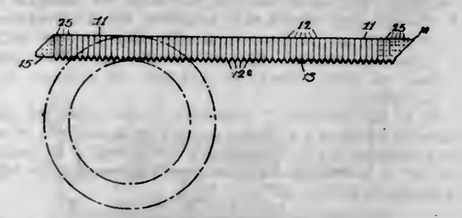
1,682,235. FIGURE WHEEL TOY. RAYMOND R. NORDSTROM, Litchfield, Minn. Filed Dec. 2, 1926. Serial No. 152,196. 1 Claim. (Cl. 46—45.)



A toy of the character described, comprising a draw bar, a pair of spaced rearwardly directed members attached to said bar and extending beyond one end thereof, a pair of wheel members carried by and supporting said rearwardly extending bars, a shaft eccentrically connecting said wheels, a supporting brace bar having one end pivotally connected with the central portion of said shaft, said bar being designed to normally maintain a substantially upright position and having its upper end extending at an angle rearwardly, a figure carried upon said rearwardly extending portion of the brace bar, means to provide an elongated slot at the upper end of said brace bar, and a connecting link having one end freely and slidably engaging through said slot for movement longitudinally of the brace bar and having the other end freely connected with said draw bar, substantially as described.

1,682,236. ROTATABLE WINDOW. CARL W. OLSON, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to American Safety Equipment Corporation, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 29, 1924. Serial No. 703,004. 7 Claims. (Cl. 20—40.5.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a disk rotatably supported, a pivoted lever carrying on one arm a motor, the shaft of said motor havin a driving wheel in engagement with the periphery of the disk, and cushioning means engaging with the opposite arm of the lever.

1,682,237. FOLDING MACHINE. HENRY C. OSBORN, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The American Multigraph Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 14, 1923. Serial No. 680,759. 37 Claims. (Cl. 270—62.)

1. In a folding machine, the combination of mechanism for folding a sheet and propelling it in a plane along a guideway without binding it, and mechanism for then giving the sheet a quarter turn in the same plane.

1,682,238. PROCESS FOR FORMING PNEUMATIC TIRES. JOHN F. PALMER, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed May 23, 1924. Serial No. 715,362. 7 Claims. (Cl. 154—14.)

1. A process of forming pneumatic tire carcasses comprising building up a plurality of plies of carcass material on a straight mandrel, and thereafter bending said mandrel to properly modify said plies to conform to annular carcass shape.

1,682,239. GEL AND METHOD OF PREPARING THE SAME. WALTER A. PATRICK, Baltimore, Md., assignor to The Silica Gel Corporation, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Feb. 18, 1921. Serial No. 446,108. 22 Claims. (Cl. 23—140.)

1. In the process of preparing tungstic oxide gel, the step of adding a 3 to 7% solution of sodium tungstate to an acid with thorough stirring until the amount of sodium tungstate added results in a final concentration of hydrogen ions resulting from the acid in the mixture of from one-tenth to five tenths mols per litre.

12. The process of preparing a plural oxide gel including tungstic oxide consisting in the steps of adding a solution of a soluble tungstate salt and soluble salts of the acids of the other oxides, to an acid with thorough stirring, said acid solution being in excess of the quantity required to react with said salt solution, and said solutions being of such concentrations and amounts that the mixture will set to a hydrogel without removal of any of the excess acid and salt, thereafter washing out the excess acid and salt and drying the resulting product.

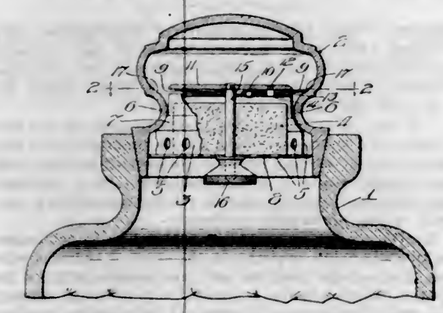
1,682,240. METHOD OF PREPARING STANNIC-OXIDE GELS. WALTER A. PATRICK, Baltimore, Md., assignor to The Silica Gel Corporation, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Original application filed Feb. 18, 1921, Serial No. 446,108. Divided and this application filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,862. 12 Claims. (Cl. 23—144.)

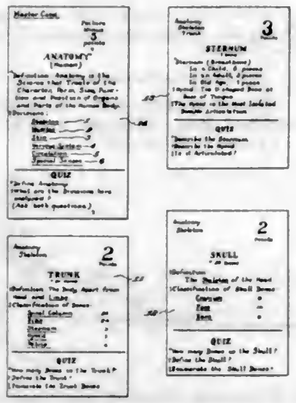
5. The process of preparing stannic oxide gel consisting in adding with thorough stirring a soluble stannate solution to an acid solution, said solutions being of such amounts and concentrations that the final concentration of H ions resulting from acid in the mixture is from one-tenth to five-tenths mols per litre whereupon, after a time, the mixture sets to a hydrogel, washing said hydrogel to remove acid and salt, drying the hydrogel at a temperature of 75° to 120° C. to drive off a part of the moisture and then slowly increase the temperature to drive off the greater part of the remaining moisture.



1,682,241. METHOD OF MAKING ALUMINUM-OXIDE GELS. WALTER A. PATRICK, Baltimore, Md., assignor to The Silica Gel Corporation, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Original application filed Feb. 18, 1921, Serial No. 446,108. Divided and this application filed May 24, 1924. Serial No. 715,729. 12 Claims. (Cl. 23—141.)

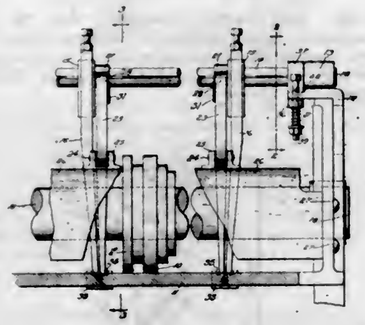
1. In the process of preparing aluminum oxide gel, the step of adding with thorough stirring a 3% to 7% solution of a soluble aluminate to an acid solution, the amounts of the aluminate and acid solutions and the concentration of the acid solution being such that the final concentration of the H ions resulting from the acid in the mixture is from one-tenth to five-tenths mols per litre.

1,682,242. METHOD OF MAKING TITANIUM-OXIDE GELS. WALTER A. PATRICK, Baltimore, Md., assignor to The Silica Gel Corporation, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Original application filed Feb. 18, 1921, Serial No. 446,108. Divided and this application filed May 24, 1924. Serial No. 715,730. 12 Claims. (Cl. 23—202.)



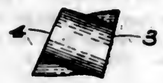
9. In the process of preparing titanic oxide gel, the steps of allowing a colloidal solution of titanic acid to set to a hydrogel, drying the hydrogel in a current of air heated to 75° C. to 120° C. and then slowly increasing the temperature to 300° to 400° C.

1,682,243. CANDY JAR. ROBERT G. PECK and ALBERT BROWN, Chicago, Ill., assignors to The Aridor Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 30, 1923. Serial No. 677,835. 8 Claims. (Cl. 215—48.)



1. A candy jar cap having a hygroscopic pad holder removably mounted therein, said holder having on its upper side a plurality of devices arranged and operating in a horizontal plane and operable from the lower end of the holder, said devices adapted to be retracted to clear a constriction in the cap and to be projected from the upper end of the holder to engage the interior of the cap to support the holder therein.

1,682,244. EDUCATIONAL CARD GAME. ELIZABETH M. PHILLIPS, Clarendon, Va. Filed Sept. 29, 1926. Serial No. 138,378. 6 Claims. (Cl. 273—152.)

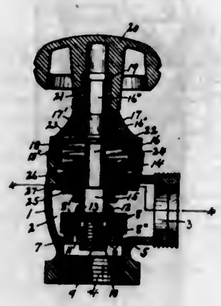


1. An educational game, comprising a series of cards having questions and answers on the same card, relating to different subjects, each of said cards indicating a certain value, and marks identifying the questions with the answers.

1,682,245. FINGER-GAUGE TRUING DEVICE. JAMES PICKERELL, Hoopeston, Ill., assignor to American Can Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 2, 1921. Serial No. 466,316. 21 Claims. (Cl. 164—59.)

9. Means for aligning or truing the edges of moving articles with respect to a given line, comprising aligned finger gauges disposed in the path of the articles and removable therefrom by the pressure of said articles and independently releasable locking devices associated with each of said gauges and requiring simultaneous release to permit further advance of said articles.

1,682,246. SLUG FOR CLEANING CASTINGS. CLYDE M. READ, Hollywood, Fla. Filed Mar. 3, 1926. Serial No. 92,018. 4 Claims. (Cl. 51—279.)



2. Slugs for use in cleaning castings consisting of pieces severed from a twisted bar having an angular cross-section, the severed faces of said slugs being disposed at an angle to each other and at an angle other than 90° to the longitudinal axis of the slug.

1,682,247. CONTAINER. GEORGE CLAYTON REID, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Can Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 14, 1924. Serial No. 725,811. 4 Claims. (Cl. 220/48.)

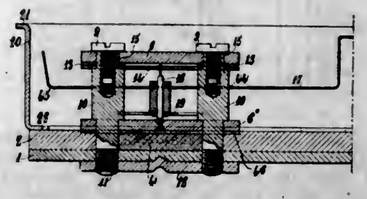
4. A sheet metal container a wall of which is formed with a deep continuous score line leaving a thin integral connection between the parts of the wall and adapted to be ruptured to release a part of the wall for opening the container, said score line being filled with a relatively soft metal and not having associated therewith any wire or ripping instrumentality, said wall being formed with a depression at said score line whereby an instrument is guided to the line to begin the rupture of the wall along said line.

1,682,248. VALVE COCK. JAMES REID and GEORGE R. WELCH, Syracuse, N. Y., assignors to Pierce, Butler & Pierce Manufacturing Corporation, Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 3, 1925. Serial No. 66,548. 7 Claims. (Cl. 251—48.)

1. In a valve of the character described, a case having a valve seat and axially spaced shoulders, a nut having a limited axial movement in the case between said shoulders and toward and from the valve seat and spring pressed toward said seat, a valve movable into and out of engagement with said seat, and a screw engaged with the nut for closing the valve and for moving the nut against the action of its spring for yieldingly holding the valve in its closed position, and means for rotating the screw, said screw having an independent axial movement relatively to its rotating means.

1,682,249. REFRACTORY WARE. FRANK H. RIDDLE, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Champion Porcelain Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Nov. 29, 1920. Serial No. 427,137. 20 Claims. (Cl. 106—10.)

1. A raw batch for refractory bodies, comprising a mixture of refractory granules, clay and a sufficient amount of alumina to combine with substantially all of the silica of the clay to form sillimanite of the clay and alumina.



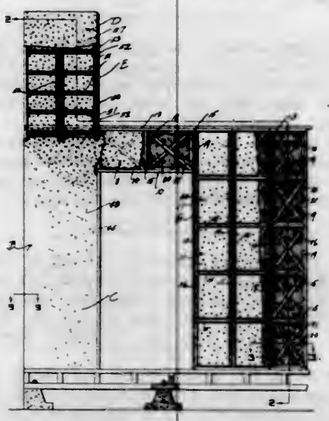
1,682,250. CERAMIC MATERIAL. FRANK H. RIDDLE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Champion Porcelain Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Original application filed June 1, 1920, Serial No. 385,512. Divided and this application filed Jan. 3, 1921. Serial No. 434,703. 19 Claims. (Cl. 106—11.)

1. A raw batch for ceramic bodies comprising uncombined alumina, clay and a flux, the alumina being in such condition and amount that it will combine with the other materials to form aluminum silicate, upon firing.

1,682,251. CERAMIC MATERIAL. FRANK H. RIDDLE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Champion Porcelain Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Sept. 9, 1922. Serial No. 587,223. 17 Claims. (Cl. 106—11.)

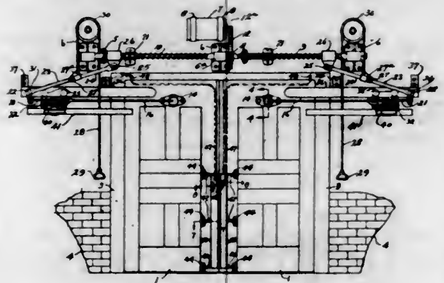
1. A raw batch for ceramic bodies containing andalusite, zirconium silicate, clay and fluxing compounds.

1,682,252. ELECTRICAL MEASURING INSTRUMENT. CHARLES HILAIRE HENRI RODANET, Versailles, France, assignor to Societe Anonyme Etablissements Ed. Jaeger, Levallois, France, a French Company. Filed July 25, 1927, Serial No. 208,364, and in France Aug. 2, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—95.)



3. In an ammeter, a metallic stirrup piece conducting the current to be measured, a flat magnet parallel to the bridge portion of the said stirrup piece, a vane subject to the action of the magnetic fields, a vertical shaft for the said vane, an indicating needle mounted on the said shaft, vertical pillars fixed to the base of the apparatus to support the said stirrup piece and the said shaft, a lower cross bar connecting the said vertical pillars to form a frame and a magnetizable bar placed below the said cross bar positioned perpendicularly to the permanent magnet and maintained by the said vertical pillars.

1,682,253. FORM AND SECTION FOR BUILDING WALLS. IGENEO ROMERO and ANTONIO COSTINI, Calexico, Calif. Filed July 14, 1925. Serial No. 43,552. 16 Claims. (Cl. 72—16.)



1. In a frame for building sections the combination of a framework providing a compartment therein, narrow retaining ribs formed rigid with the framework extending into said compartment inwardly of the outer edges of said framework at opposite sides of the ribs, and a retaining brace extending across said compartment and disposed therein and affixed at its ends to said framework.

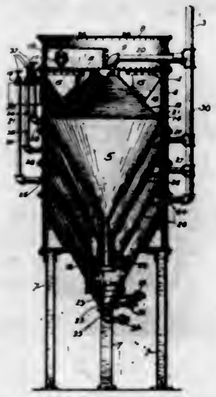
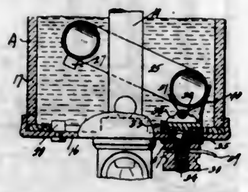
1,682,254. AUTOMATIC ELECTRICALLY-OPERATED DOOR. CLAUDE RORABACHER, Detroit, Mich. Filed July 15, 1925. Serial No. 43,840. 12 Claims. (Cl. 268—67.)



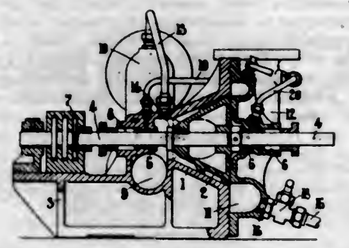
1. In a door operating mechanism, the combination of a door, an electric motor, a screw threaded shaft suitably mounted above the door, driving means connecting the said electric motor and the said screw threaded shaft, a threaded nut adapted to travel longitudinally on the said screw threaded shaft, a tubular guide suitably mounted adjacent the said door, the said tubular guide having a longitudinal slot, a plurality of balls adapted to roll within the said tubular guide, a ball retainer suitably mounted around each of the said balls, a depending stud suitably attached to the said ball retainer, the said depending stud extending through the longitudinal slot in the said tubular guide, a bracket suitably attached to the said depending studs, a stud suitably mounted in the said bracket, a roller suitably mounted on the said stud and adapted to rotate thereon, a guide bar suitably mounted adjacent the door, the said guide bar being adapted to contact with and form a track for the said roller, a bell crank suitably mounted on the said stud and adapted to oscillate thereon, ball studs suitably mounted on the said threaded nut and said bell crank, a drag link mounted on the said ball studs and adapted to swivel thereon, a bearing bracket suitably attached to the said door, a shaft slidably mounted in the said bearing bracket, oppositely disposed springs suitably mounted on the said shaft, a connecting arm suitably attached to the said bell crank and the said shaft, slidably mounted, and means for automatically controlling the opening and closing of the door operating mechanism.

1,682,255. STRIPPING MACHINE. IRVING WILLIAM ROSS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,607. 11 Claims. (Cl. 17—43.)



1. A machine of the kind set forth including a pair of stripping cylinders arranged to operate on a casing passing between them; means for moving one cylinder at an angle to the other during the stripping operation, and means for automatically returning said moving cylinder to position after being moved, said means being adjustably regulated by instrumentalities connected therewith substantially as described.

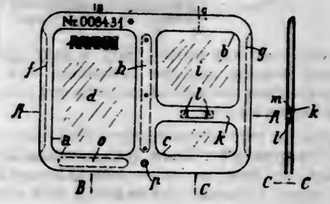
1,682,256. CLARIFIER AND THICKENER. HENRY G. SCHWARZ, Denver, Colo. Filed Mar. 23, 1926. Serial No. 96,713. 9 Claims. (Cl. 209—210.)



1. Apparatus of the character described comprising an upright shell, a funnel shaped settling chamber in the shell, having a bottom outlet for settling solids, a hood spaced from the wall of the chamber to provide a passage for rising liquid and having a central feed opening, a partition around the feed opening of the hood, dividing the shell into upper and lower compartments each having an outlet, and a weir in the upper compartment for the passage of floating matter to the outlet in the upper compartment.

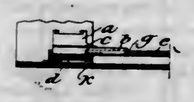
1,682,257. SAFETY DEVICE FOR LUBRICATING SYSTEMS. EUGENE H. STRONG, Pearsall, Tex. Filed Feb. 18, 1927. Serial No. 169,365. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—84.)

1. In a circuit maker and breaker for lubricators the combination of a lubricator having a housing with a metal bottom and a compartment therein, a float operable in the compartment with rise and fall of lubricant therein, and a pair of contacts directly carried by said bottom for engagement by the float to bridge the contact at a predetermined low level of lubricant in the compartment, one of said contacts being grounded on the metal bottom and the other contact being insulated upon said bottom, and the float being of metal.



1,682,258. ROTARY PUMP. EDWARD BERRY TAIT, Colchester, England. Filed Nov. 26, 1926, Serial No. 150,961, and in Great Britain Dec. 15, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—89.)

1. The combination in a rotary pump of the screw type, of a cone-shaped chamber provided at its smaller end with an inlet and at its larger end with an outlet, a cone-shaped screw mounted to rotate in said pump chamber, an inlet suction chamber at the smaller end of the pump chamber an inlet branch to said suction chamber which rises above the highest part of the pump chamber, a discharge chamber at the larger end of the pump chamber having a delivery outlet, a pipe connecting the highest part of the suction chamber with the highest point in the inlet branch, and a pipe connecting the discharge chamber below the level of the water in same when the pump is stopped and any convenient part of the inlet branch contiguous to the suction chamber.



1,682,259. IDENTITY-CARD HOLDER. ALBERT WILDEN, Cologne, Germany. Filed May 18, 1925, Serial No. 31,206, and in Germany Nov. 6, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—154.)

An identity card holder, comprising a one piece frame of sheet metal of a brittle character bent to a U-form, a flap at each end of one half of the frame, said flaps being adapted to fold over the other half of the frame, the halves of said frame having coinciding inspection apertures in them, two photo inspection apertures being arranged one above the other and side by side with a ticket inspection aperture in each half of the frame, an impressed groove in one of the strips of metal dividing the said apertures from one another, means for permanently securing in said frame a photograph to be displayed through the said photo inspection apertures consisting of tongues formed integrally on one half of said frame and adapted to be passed through said photograph and the other half of the frame and bent over, the material of such tongues being of low pliability such as to insure fracture upon being bent a second time, identification matter, agreeing with corresponding matter on the period ticket, impressed in the metal of the frame, and means for detachably securing in the frame the ticket to be displayed comprising an impressed groove in that part of the frame adjacent to the aperture for the ticket.

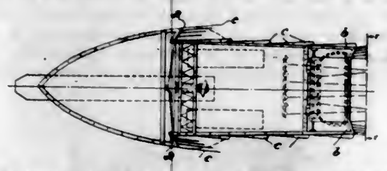
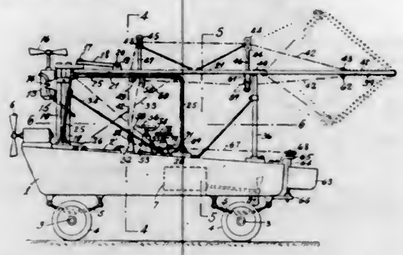
1,682,260. PHOTOGRAPHIC CAMERA. GUSTAV ZIEGLER, Munich, Germany, assignor to A. Hch. Rietzschel G. m. b. H., Munich, Germany. Filed May 14, 1925, Serial No. 30,317, and in Germany June 26, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 95—40.)



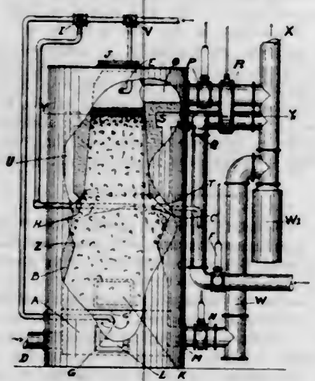
1. A camera of the type including a hinged side, providing a folding bed, a lens carrier, a fixed guide therefor permitting movement of the lens carrier at right angle to the hinge connection of the side, a guide on the hinged side and defining substantially a continuation of the fixed guide when the hinged side is entirely open and a member pivotally connected with the lens carrier, characterized by the fact that said member carries at its outer end laterally extending and transversely alined projection and the guide on said hinged side has the form of laterally disposed slideways for receiving said projections.

1,682,261. PRODUCTION OF IMITATION PAINTINGS. HUGO GABLER-ADLERSFELD, Vienna, Austria. Filed Mar. 19, 1924, Serial No. 700,437, and in Germany Mar. 29, 1923. 8 Claims. (Cl. 41—27.)



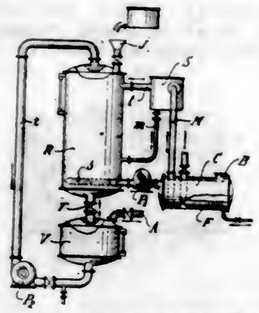
1. A process of producing imitation paintings consisting in coating a transparent support with a layer of a transparent substance supplying this coating with a layer of chromated gelatine that does not contain any solid particles of pigment, exposing the latter to the action of light under a photographic negative, developing the image, drying, applying paint to the diapositive obtained by the said developing, securing after drying of the paint a sheet of tough flexible material on the layer of paint and finally pulling off the picture from the transparent support.

1,682,262. BODY STRUCTURE FOR AERIAL AND LAND VEHICLES AND MARINE CRAFT. UGO ANTONI, Viareggio, Italy. Filed Feb. 8, 1927, Serial No. 166,755, and in Italy May 5, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 244—30.)



1. In aerial, land and marine craft, a body having external offsets defining step-like formations, and flexible plates arranged along the sides of the body, and also located at the step-like formations.

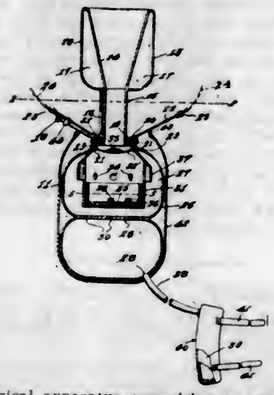
1,682,263. AIRCRAFT. JOSÉ BILBAO, Habana, Cuba. Filed Sept. 17, 1926, Serial No. 136,137, and in Cuba Aug. 28, 1926. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—2.)



1. An aircraft having a wing rotatably mounted upon a transverse horizontal shaft, a yoke shaped support that holds said horizontal shaft in position and is in turn rotatable upon a vertical shaft located in the middle longitudinal line of the craft, a mounting arising in the forward end of the aircraft, and supporting said vertical shaft and lateral demountable holding means for said wing.

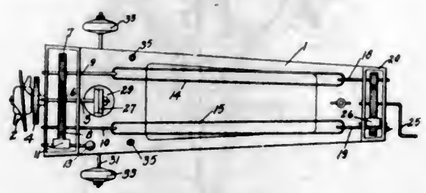
1,682,264. METHOD OF GENERATING GAS. CLAUDE W. BOTSFORD, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to William W. Odell, Pittsburgh, Pa. Original application filed Dec. 26, 1919, Serial No. 347,566. Divided and this application filed Aug. 30, 1923. Serial No. 660,203. 16 Claims. (Cl. 48—208.)

9. A method of making water gas from solid fuel in a single generator, consisting in first air blasting an ignited fuel bed alternately up and down from substantially midway the ends of the fuel bed, then shutting off said air blast and making a straight up steam run, introducing the steam from beneath the fuel bed, and removing the finished gas from above the fuel bed.



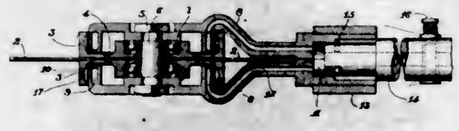
1,682,265. PROCESS AND DEVICE FOR CONCENTRATING INCRUSTING OR CORROSIVE SOLUTIONS. PLINIO BRINGHENTI, Milan, Italy. Filed Jan. 15, 1926, Serial No. 81,599, and in Italy Oct. 26, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 159—2.)

1. In the process of concentrating solutions wherein the solution is directly treated with a liquid heat transmitting medium, heating the solution to be concentrated at a temperature lower than its boiling point by continuously introducing therein a stream of finely divided heat transmitting liquid lighter than the soluton and insoluble therein; floating off the said liquid, separating entrained solution therefrom, heating the separated liquid by direct contact with a hot gaseous medium so as to restore heat thereto lost to the solution; spraying the heated solution into a vessel whereby it is partly evaporated, carrying off the vapours evolved from the evaporation, returning the partly concentrated solution to the cycle for further concentration by treatment with the finely divided heated liquid repeating the cycle as often as desired and running off the concentrated solution.



2. Apparatus for concentrating solutions comprising a vessel to contain the solution, a second vessel to contain the heat transmitting liquid, means for heating the said liquid, a pump adapted to transfer the said heated liquid to the first mentioned vessel, spraying means within said first vessel, an evaporating vessel in communication with said first vessel, spraying means within said evaporating vessel, a pump adapted to return partly concentrated solution from the evaporating vessel to the first vessel, an outlet for the heat transmitting liquid from said first vessel, a separator connected to said outlet adapted to separate entrained solution from the heat transmitting liquid, and return same to said first vessel, and adapted to return the heat transmitting liquid to the second vessel.

1,682,266. SURGICAL APPARATUS. BENJAMIN THOMAS DAGGY, Richmond, Ind. Filed July 13, 1927. Serial No. 205,462. 7 Claims. (Cl. 128—285.)

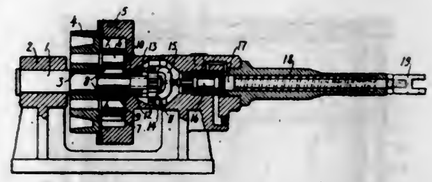


1. A surgical apparatus comprising an expansible head portion open at its end and adapted to be expanded to fill the inner vaginal cavity, a non-expansible passage extending through the head portion, a body, a hollow neck connecting the head portion and body, a container within the body, a transforming cup interposed between and communicating with the neck and container, transforming chemicals within the transforming cup and means to secure the apparatus in position for use.

1,682,267. TOY AEROPLANE. WILLIAM H. DANIEL, Spokane, Wash. Filed June 18, 1927. Serial No. 199,829. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—48.)

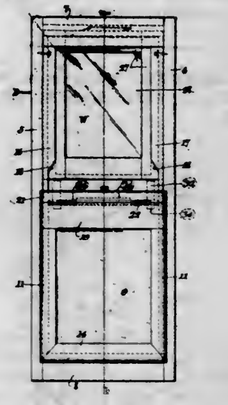
1. The combination in a wheeled toy with a propeller shaft having a pinion thereon, a pair of spaced driving shafts and driving gears for the pinion, of a crank shaft having a gear thereon, a pair of power shafts having pinions meshing with the gear, and a pair of endless rubber bands suspended between the respective driving and power shafts.

1,682,268. WOOD-CUTTING APPARATUS. JAMES A. DAVEY, Sound Beach, Conn., and PAUL H. DAVEY and CHARLES L. GAUGLER, Kent, Ohio; said Gaugler assignor of his one-third to The Davey Tree Expert Company, Kent, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,264. 18 Claims. (Cl. 30—11.)



1. A wood cutting apparatus including a single rotary cutting tool having a bucketed turbine rotor on each side thereof, the turbine rotors having a bucket circle of at least as large diameter as the nozzle circles, and the tool describing a circle of larger diameter than the bucket circles, substantially as described.

1,682,269. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF PRIMARY STIBINIC ACIDS. FITZGERALD DUNNING and EBENEZER EMMET REID, Baltimore, Md., assignors to Hynson, Westcott & Dunning, Baltimore, Md., a Firm. Filed Jan. 6, 1927. Serial No. 159,499. 6 Claims. (Cl. 260—11.)

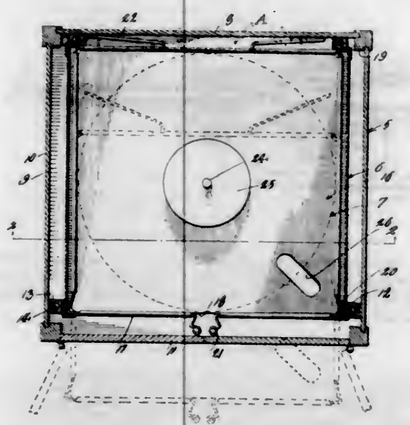


1. Process for the production of primary stibinic acids of the general formula $R—SbO_3H_2$ in which R stands for an aromatic residue, substituted or not, which comprises diazotizing a primary amine and combining the diazo compound with an antimony salt in an acid reaction medium, and decomposing the diazo antimony compound so formed by treating it with a hot caustic alkali solution.

1,682,270. APPARATUS FOR REGULATING SPEED VARIATIONS IN POWER ENGINES EXPOSED TO VARYING LOAD. JOHAN EMIL ERIKSEN, Oslo, Norway. Filed Oct. 29, 1926. Serial No. 145,081. 5 Claims. (Cl. 137—140.)

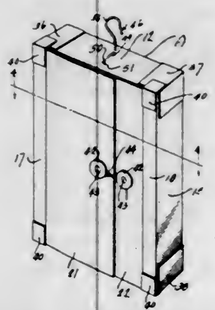
1. In an apparatus for regulating the speed in power engines exposed to varying load, a rotatable sleeve, a driving pulley connected to the same, a flywheel mounted loosely on the said sleeve, and having a recess taking up pins for supporting centrifugal bodies, a hub on the flywheel provided with notches coacting with the said centrifugal bodies, and means for transferring the relative adjustment of the said parts to a device controlling the admission of pressure fluid to the power engine.

1,682,271. DOOR WITH COMBINED SCREEN AND ADJUSTABLE WINDOW. GEORGE L. EVELETH, Arcadia, Calif. Filed Mar. 12, 1927. Serial No. 174,959. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—36.)



1. In a door with combined screen and adjustable window, the combination of a door, lower spaced panels mounted on the lower portion of the door, a window slidably mounted on the upper portion of the door and slidable to a concealed position between the aforesaid spaced panels, a screen mounted in the upper portion of the door, manually operated means carried by the screen sash to permit of quickly mounting the screen on the door and readily removing it therefrom without the use of tools, said means comprising a latch pivotally attached to a recessed portion of the screen sash and metal strips affixed to the lower portion of the screen sash and having projecting ends adapted to engage a retaining element carried by the door, and said retaining element.

1,682,272. RECORD HOLDER. WILLIAM B. FRANKENSTEIN, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Oct. 29, 1923. Serial No. 671,552. 3 Claims. (Cl. 312—15.)



1. In a phonograph disk record cabinet, a sheet metal tray including a flat body, means formed on the body for supporting the record, rolled beads formed on the front, rear and side edges of the body, resilient wire rods mounted in said beads, outwardly extending resilient corner latches formed in said rods arranged to extend beyond the front corners of the tray, handles formed on the forward ends of the rods for operating said latches, and rearwardly extending resilient arms formed on the rear ends of said rods, as and for the purpose specified.

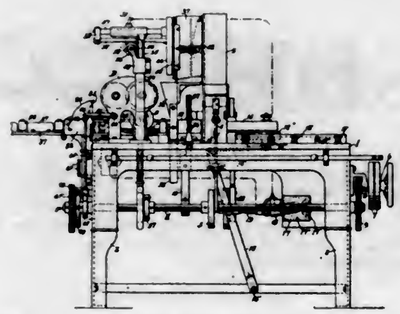
1,682,273. WARDROBE. WILLIAM A. FULLER, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Dec. 16, 1924. Serial No. 756,299. 3 Claims. (Cl. 206—7.)

1. A receptacle of the class described providing a top wall and defining a compartment therein having an opening therein, closure means for said opening, said top wall having a slot therein, and a wire member bent intermediate its ends and doubled upon itself to provide a pair of spring arms, said spring arms at the bight connection thereof extending through the slot of said top wall so that the spring arms engage the top wall at the outer and inner sides thereof to clamp said member on said top wall, said member including a handle formed on the arm at the outer side of said top wall and including a supporting hook at the inner side of said top wall, said last mentioned hook extending into said compartment.



1,682,274. GRATER AND REAMER FOR CITRUS FRUITS. OTTO C. GUSSNER, Mandan, N. Dak. Filed Oct. 8, 1927. Serial No. 224,937. 2 Claims. (Cl. 146—3.)

1. A grater for citrus fruits comprising a metallic yoke, a pair of rotatable cone shaped devices journaled adjacent the upper ends of said yoke, means for imparting rotative movement to one of said cone shaped devices, means for shifting the ends of said yoke toward each other for clamping a citrus fruit between said cone shaped devices, and a grater comprising a strip having various sizes of grating teeth thereon, and means for varying the position of said grater with respect to the citrus fruit clamped between said cone shaped devices for subjecting the rind of the citrus fruit to abrasive action for the removal of selected sizes of particles of the rind.

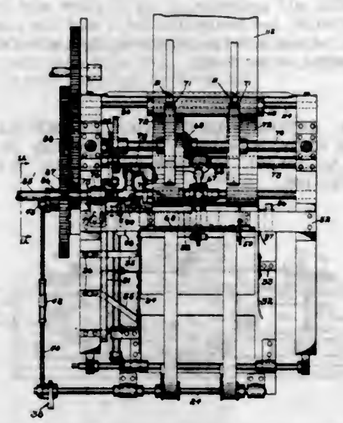
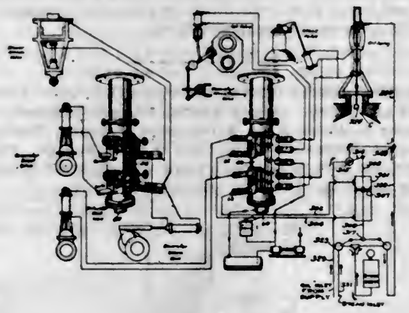
1,682,275. PACKING MACHINE. ROMAN NAVARRO Y GONZALEZ, Habana, Cuba. Filed Dec. 23, 1924, Serial No. 757,746, and in Cuba Nov. 7, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 93—2.)



1. In cigarette packing machines, compressor elements for compressing a bunch of cigarettes prior to wrapping the same, comprising, an open ended casing to receive a bunch of cigarettes, a compressor operable within the casing, means for giving the casing a movement transverse to the direction of subsequent travel of the bunch and means to operate the compressor for effecting a light compression of the bunch of cigarettes while within the casing.

1,682,276. BAG-SEPARATING APPARATUS. CARL H. HARTMAN and LOUIS H. HARTMAN, Toledo, Ohio, assignors, by mesne assignments, to Bates Valve Bag Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 12, 1926. Serial No. 115,483. 11 Claims. (Cl. 271—29.)



1. In apparatus of the character described, a conveyor belt having approximately horizontal run, guides adapted to support a bundle of bags standing on end on said belt, a flat support over which the belt runs, means to separate one of the upper corners of each successive bag, one at a time, from the other bags of the bundle, a member movable transversely from said corner across the path of the bags between the separated bag and the bundle, and means to feed forward at regular intervals the separated bags.

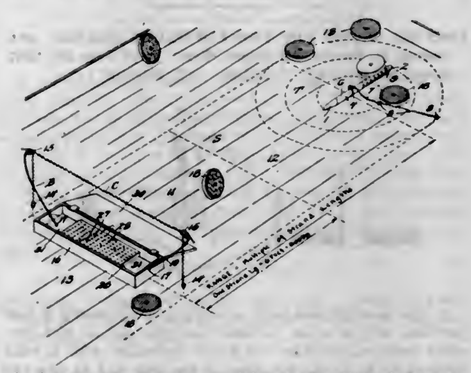
1,682,277. OIL-SPRAY PURGE MECHANISM FOR WATER-GAS APPARATUS. FRED B. HAYES, Fort Wayne, Ind., assignor to Western Gas Construction Company, Fort Wayne, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Aug. 11, 1924. Serial No. 731,426. 7 Claims. (Cl. 48—87.)

5. An automatic oil spray purge mechanism for gas making apparatus, comprising in combination: an oil spray, means for supplying oil to said spray, means for supplying steam to said spray, and automatic means for controlling the supply of oil to said spray, said means being further operative to control the supply of steam to said spray.



1,682,278. BOILER CLEANER. HERMAN C. HEATON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Diamond Power Specialty Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed June 30, 1924. Serial No. 723,220. 2 Claims. (Cl. 122—392.)

1. In a boiler cleaner, the combination with a blower element, of a casing into which said element extends, a pair of enmeshed gears within said casing, one of which has driving engagement with said element, said gears forming with said casing an inlet chamber for an energizing fluid at one side of the common center line of said gears and an outlet chamber for said fluid at the other side of said center line, and means for delivering an energizing fluid to said inlet chamber and for exhausting said fluid from the outlet chamber.

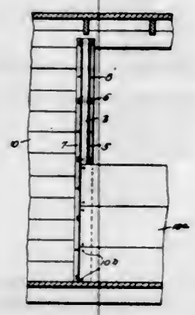
1,682,279. GAME APPARATUS. MEIER GEORGE HILPERT, Bethlehem, Pa. Filed Nov. 28, 1923. Serial No. 677,540. 11 Claims. (Cl. 273—126.)

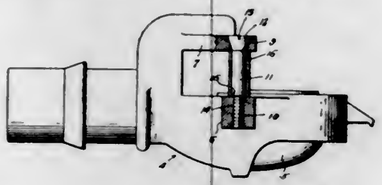
1. A game apparatus comprising a plurality of discs, a goal having a measuring device divided into sections and adapted to be swung around the goal to measure the distance of the discs therefrom, and a pair of standards connected by a strand attached to their upper ends, said standards adapted to be set vertically at a distance a multiple of the length of the strand from said goal, and with the strand parallel to and spaced from the ground.



1,682,280. PROCESS OF PREPARING ALKYL ESTERS OF ABIETIC ACID. ALAN C. JOHNSTON, Mine Hill, N. J., assignor to Hercules Powder Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 29, 1926. Serial No. 125,833. 11 Claims. (Cl. 260—98.)

1. The process of preparing an alkyl ester of abietic acid which comprises the step of treating wood rosin with an alkyl sulfate in the presence of an alkali.

1,682,281. COMBINED GRAIN-DOOR STRIP AND SIDE-DOOR-POST PROTECTOR. SYLVESTER L. JOINER, McGregor, Tex. Filed Mar. 5, 1927. Serial No. 173,126. 2 Claims. (Cl. 20—27.)



2. A combined grain door strip and side door post protector located interiorly of the car at the side of the door opening and comprising a sectional metallic housing composed of spaced relatively heavy angle bars having angularly related webs, a wood filler strip arranged between and filling the space between the angle bars and adapted to receive the fastening devices for securing a grain door to the car, and means carried by the webs of the angle bars for securing the latter to the car and for holding the filler strip in position between the angle bars, the sectional metallic housing permitting the ready removal and replacement of the wood filler strip, said angle bars being rounded exteriorly at the outer edges to present rounded surfaces at the corners of the combined grain door strip and side door post protector.

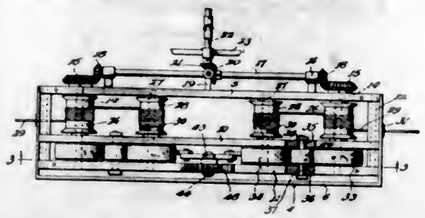
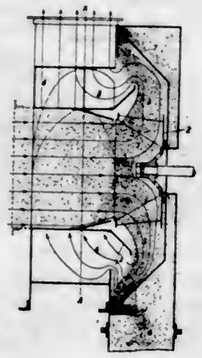
1,682,282. STOP PIN FOR COUPLING HEADS. SYLVESTER L. JOINER, McGregor, Tex. Filed July 28, 1927. Serial No. 208,945. 2 Claims. (Cl. 285—62.)



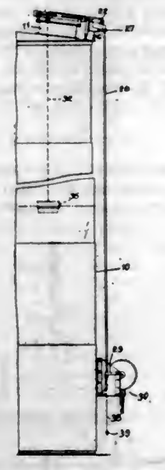
1. The combination with a coupling head having a boss provided with a screw threaded aperture and an arm provided with an aperture, of a bolt provided with a head adapted to fit in the aperture of the arm and at one end reduced to provide a shoulder to bear against one face of said boss, the reduced end of the bolt being screw threaded for threaded engagement in the screw threaded aperture of the boss, whereby to prevent contraction of said arm toward the coupling head or expansion therefrom incident to jars.

1,682,283. COIN-CONTROLLED ELECTRICITY METER. RICHARD WARD JOLLY, Wimbledon, England, assignor of one-half to Meters, Limited, Manchester, England. Filed Dec. 8, 1926, Serial No. 153,418, and in Great Britain Feb. 6, 1926. 2 Claims. (Cl. 194—72.)



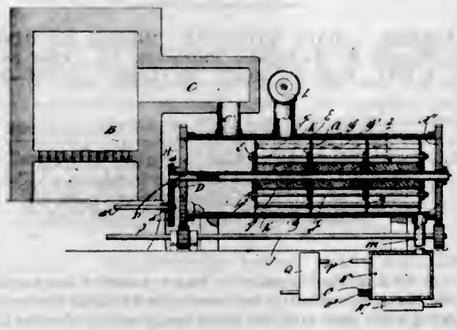
1. In a coin-controlled electric meter, the combination comprising a frame, a price-change plate rotatably mounted on said frame and having a coin insertion slot therein, means for securing said plate in varying angular positions with respect to said frame, a coin pocket rotatably mounted upon said price-change plate, a lever rotatably mounted within said coin pocket and having a projection thereon, two pin members mounted upon said coin pocket and coacting with said projection so as to allow said lever to slide and rotate, and means attached to said coin pocket for retaining the coin in the pocket during the required rotation of said pocket, as set forth.

1,682,284. AUTOMOBILE EXTRICATING MECHANISM. ROBERT JONES, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed July 29, 1926, Serial No. 125,801. Renewed July 3, 1928. 6 Claims. (Cl. 254—166.)



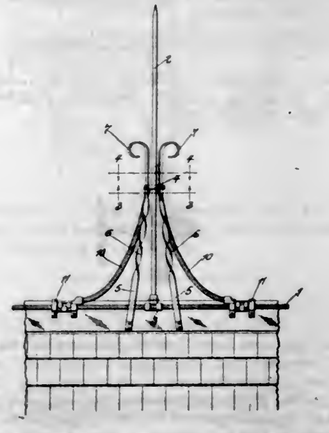
1. In mechanism of the class described, the combination with the propeller shaft of an automobile, of a countershaft mounted for rotation and longitudinal shifting movement, a gear upon the propeller shaft, a gear upon the countershaft, means yieldably holding the said last mentioned shaft shifted to position to disengage the last mentioned gear from the gear upon the propeller shaft, manually operable means for shifting the last mentioned shaft to bring the gear thereon into mesh with the gear upon the propeller shaft, a drum shaft driven from the said countershaft, a drum fixed upon the said shaft, a second drum shaft, a drum fixed to the last mentioned shaft, a cable wound about the first mentioned drum and connected to the second mentioned drum and having connecting means at its free end, a gear upon each of the drum shafts, and a gear movable into and out of mesh with the drum gears for transmitting motion to the second mentioned drum.

1,682,285. CENTRIFUGAL APPARATUS FOR DUST SEPARATION. GEORGE KEITH, London, England, assignor to James Keith & Blackman Company, Limited, London, England, a Corporation of Great Britain. Filed Mar. 26, 1926, Serial No. 97,524, and in Great Britain Mar. 27, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 183—77.)



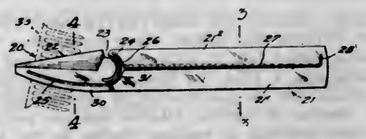
1. A centrifugal apparatus for dust separation comprising a fan impeller and a fan casing comprising an impeller chamber of non-volute form in which the heavily dust-laden fraction of fluid being treated is separated from the relatively dust-free fraction, and a spiral chamber coaxial with the impeller chamber, into which spiral chamber the impeller chamber opens axially to permit the passage of the relatively dust-free fraction to the spiral chamber.

1,682,286. TANK-GAUGING APPARATUS. ALFRED KINZBACH, Sour Lake, Tex. Filed Sept. 16, 1924. Serial No. 737,996. 4 Claims. (Cl. 73—82.)



1. In combination with a tank having a hatch and a cover therefor, a packing member mounted on said cover, an adjustable bracket secured on said cover with one end thereof projecting beyond the edge of said tank, a gauge line mounted on said bracket, one end thereof extending through said packing member into said tank, a float on one end of said line, a reel secured outside said tank and to which the other end of said gauge line is secured, a second reel operatively connected to the first named reel, and an independent weighted line attached to said second reel and adapted to reel up any slack in the gauge line.

1,682,287. PROCESS OF AND APPARATUS FOR DISTILLATION OF OIL FROM OIL SHALE. HERMAN B. KIPPER, Muskegon, Mich. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,168. 5 Claims. (Cl. 202—16.)



1. In a process of distillation of the oil constituents from oil shale in a closed chamber, the step of passing heated gases through the finely ground oil shale to produce distillation of the organic constituents of the shale, the step of simultaneous mixing and further subdividing of the shale and the step of removing the material from the walls of the distillation chamber.

1,682,288. LIGHTNING-ROD CONSTRUCTION. SIDNEY D. KRETZER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 22, 1921. Serial No. 502,380. 2 Claims. (Cl. 173—31.)

1. In a lightning rod construction, the combination of a main cable, an approximately vertical rod having its lower end attached to said cable, a plate through which said rod extends above said cable and having openings spaced from said rod, a plurality of uprights having their upper ends attached to said plate and their lower ends attached to a roof, and a pair of cables having their upper ends attached in said openings in said plate and their lower ends attached to said main cable at opposite sides of and spaced from said rod.

1,682,289. HAIR-CUTTING DEVICE. PAUL KVIST, Seattle, Wash. Filed Oct. 7, 1926. Serial No. 139,994. 4 Claims. (Cl. 30—9.)

1. A hair cutting device comprising a contractile handle, a blade disposed in the plane of the handle, and spring elements connecting both ends of the blade with one end of the handle.

1,682,290. CONNECTION DEVICE SPECIALLY FOR JEWELRY. ADOLF KUHNLE, Neuenburg, Germany. Filed Sept. 6, 1927, Serial No. 217,844, and in Germany Sept. 13, 1926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—230.)

A connecting device specially for jewelry purposes, consisting of a capsule composed of two separate halves, a pivot axle in said capsule halves, two halves of a knob fixed on the outer surface of said capsule halves one at each of two opposite points close to the edge of the capsule half, and a spiral spring in said capsule halves one end of said spring attached to one capsule half the other end attached to the other capsule half and making said capsule halves rotate around said pivot axle to move one half of each knob away from the corresponding other knob half so that said capsule halves have to be rotated in opposition to the action of said spring to bring the two halves of the knobs together to insert the whole knob into a corresponding hole of the element to be connected.

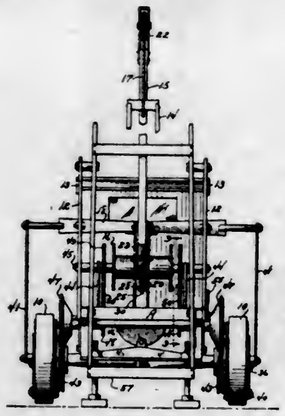
1,682,291. GLAZING SYSTEM. LOUIS LANE, Habana, Cuba. Filed Aug. 1, 1925. Serial No. 47,617. 4 Claims. (Cl. 108—16.)

1. An improved metal joint supporting bar for flat sheets of the class described, comprising a solid metal section having a web portion disposed at right angles to the plane of the supported sheets and between their edges, opposite basal flanges at the inner edge of the web of the bar for secondary sheet support and attachment, a pair of direct lateral sheet seating flanges extending at right angles either side from the web of the bar and integral therewith, said flanges being of a lesser width than the basal flanges, a groove formed in each side of the web adjacent to the said flanges and outwardly therefrom of sufficient depth to receive a strip of sealing material between the edge of the supported sheet and the bottom of the groove, said groove terminating outwardly a distance inward from the outer edge of the bar, the outer thicker edge portion of the bar being rectangular in cross section with its sides parallel to the plane of the web, of a minimum metal thickness between the sheet edges necessary to receive the attaching screws of the cover strip to the joint.

1,682,292. CELLULOSE DERIVATIVE AND PROCESS FOR PRODUCING SAME. LEON LILIENFELD, Vienna, Austria. Filed July 23, 1924, Serial No. 727,803, and in Austria Apr. 4, 1924. 13 Claims. (Cl. 260—152.)

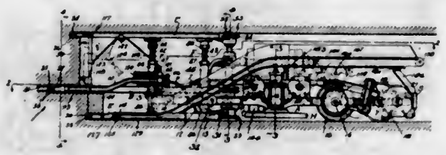
1. Process for the manufacture of cellulose derivatives which dissolve in aqueous alkalies and are precipitated from their solutions in aqueous alkalies by the addition of an agent which neutralises the alkali even when the reaction is still alkaline and certainly when it is neutral and by treatment of their solutions in alkalies with alcohol, and freeing the precipitates so obtained from free alkali by washing with aqueous alcohol, yield products which are insoluble in water, which process comprises treating cellulose in the presence of an alkali with a monohalogen fatty acid in the absence of more than substantially 20 parts by weight of absolute alcohol to every 100 parts by weight of water present.



1,682,293. ARTIFICIAL MATERIAL AND PROCESS FOR MAKING SAME. LEON LILIENFELD, Vienna, Austria. Filed July 23, 1924, Serial No. 727,801, and in Austria Apr. 4, 1924. Renewed July 16, 1928. 13 Claims. (Cl. 18—54.)

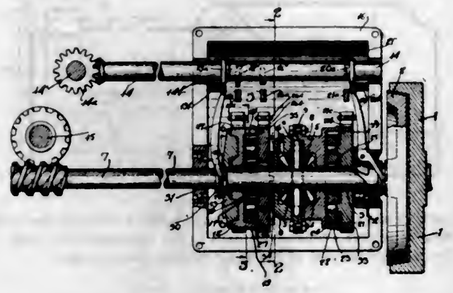
1. A process for the manufacture of artificial materials, which comprises bringing a solution in an alkali of a cellulose-hydroxy-paraffin-monocarboxylic acid insoluble in water into the form of an artificial material and then treating it with a suitable precipitating agent.

1,682,294. CELLULOSE DERIVATIVE AND PROCESS FOR PRODUCING SAME. LEON LILIENFELD, Vienna, Austria. Filed July 23, 1924, Serial No. 727,804, and in Austria Apr. 4, 1924. 6 Claims. (Cl. 260—152.)



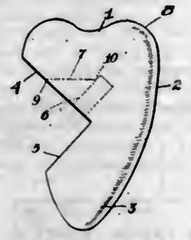
1. A process for the manufacture of cellulose derivatives, which dissolve in aqueous solutions of alkalies and are precipitated from such solutions by the addition of reagents which neutralize the alkali, even when the reaction is still alkaline but certainly when it is neutral, and which by mixing their alkali solutions with alcohol and freeing the precipitates so obtained from free alkali by washing with aqueous alcohol yield products which are insoluble in water, which process comprises treating cellulose with a compound containing the halogen containing radical of a monohalogen fatty acid in the presence of an alkali and of an alcohol, using not more than 0.5 molecular proportion of the monohalogen fatty acid radical for each molecular proportion of the caustic alkali.

1,682,295. WELL-DRILLING MACHINE. ADAM L. LITZNER, Allenville, Mich. Filed Oct. 1, 1926. Serial No. 138,916. 5 Claims. (Cl. 255—7.)



1. In a well drilling machine, a motor operated wheeled frame, a boom pivotally mounted thereon and adapted to be elevated for use, a reciprocating beam associated with said boom,, a pulley on said beam, a drum, a tool operating cable leading from the drum and trained over said pulley, means for operating said beam from the wheels of the frame, means for jacking said wheels above the ground, and means driven from said whels for rotating said drum for the purpose specified.

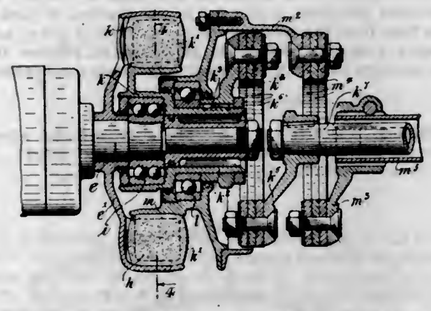
1,682,296. CHAIN HYDRAULIC MINING MACHINE. WALTER W. MACFARREN, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Nov. 3, 1915. Serial No. 59,377. 53 Claims. (Cl. 262—5.)



1. In a mining machine, a frame, a cutter bar carried thereby, a second cutter bar also carried by said frame and being wider than said first cutter bar, means for feeding the cutter bars into the coal, and dislodging means carried by said frame and operating in the kerf cut by the wider cutter bar for dislodging the coal between the kerfs cut by the two cutter bars.

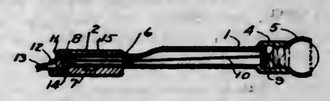
1,682,297. VEHICLE SPEED CONTROL. JAMES V. MARTIN, Garden City, N. Y. Filed Mar. 1, 1926. Serial No. 91,409. 13 Claims. (Cl. 74—34.)

1. In a gearing of the kind described, a main shaft, a tubular drive shaft mounted on the forward end of the main shaft, a differential gear casing connected to the main shaft to revolve therewith, a second tubular shaft mounted on the main shaft to the rear of the first tubular shaft, differential gearing in said casing including bevel gears on the adjacent ends of the tubular shafts and idler bevels carried by the casing and meshing with the first bevels, a friction disc revoluble on the first tubular shaft, planetary gearing connecting said first tubular shaft and the casing and including idler gears on the friction disc, a brake band surrounding said disc, a lever to operate the brake band, and means to connect the second tubular shaft and the main shaft.



1,682,298. PORCELAIN-ROOT TEETH. HARRY A. MARX, Bywood, Pa., assignor to The Columbus Dental Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation. Filed Aug. 3, 1922. Serial No. 579,379. 15 Claims. (Cl. 32—9.)

13. A tooth having an integral porcelain root and a porcelain masticating cusp and a recess in the lingual face of the tooth intersecting the body of the tooth and extending from the proximal side to the proximal side thereof, and toward the labial face of the tooth providing a wide flat bearing for a backing, the upper edge of which recess is disposed so as to be out of contact with the gum when the tooth is mounted in the mouth, and a post hole in one of the walls of said recess.



1,682,299. MULTIWHEEL DRIVE FOR VEHICLES. ALFRED F. MASURY and CHARLES FROESCH, New York, N. Y., assignors to International Motor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 29, 1925. Serial No. 46,695. 7 Claims. (Cl. 180—22.)

5. In a power apportioning means, a source of power including a shaft driven thereby, a plurality of driven members receiving divided power from the shaft, and yielding resilient means positioned between the source and driven members for apportioning power from the source between the driven members differentially, said apportioning means comprising a single unit.

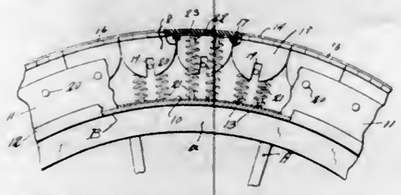
1,682,300. RAILWAY LAMP. FREDERICK E. MCLAUGHLIN, Everett, Wash. Filed Mar. 29, 1926. Serial No. 98,167. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—59.)

1. In a railway lamp, a detachable lamp casing, a socket in which the lamp casing may readily be held, a spring latch in the said socket for readily holding the end of the said lamp casing, suitable contact points in the said socket adaptable to engage corresponding contact points on the end of the said lamp casing, suitable wires extending from the contact points at the end of the said lamp casing through the said casing and connecting to the lamp socket to light the lamp, and a suitable two wire cable extending from the contact points in the said socket, means for attaching the socket to a part of the body, a battery, suitable connections between the two wire cable and the battery, means for attaching the battery to a part of the body, and a suitable switch for lighting the said lamp as desired.



1,682,301. BUTTON-ASSEMBLING DEVICE. MAX MENKIN, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 10, 1926. Serial No. 101,035. 6 Claims. (Cl. 79—5.)

1. In a device of the character described, a pair of lower die members, an axially movable rod, a head loosely mounted on said rod, means yieldingly resisting movement of the head relative to said rod, clutch means normally holding said head against rotative movement on the rod, spaced die members carried by said head, and means directly coacting with means on said head at the end of the axial movement of said rod in one direction to release the head from the holding action of the clutch means and impart a partial rotation to said head to position the die members thereon with respect to the lower die members.

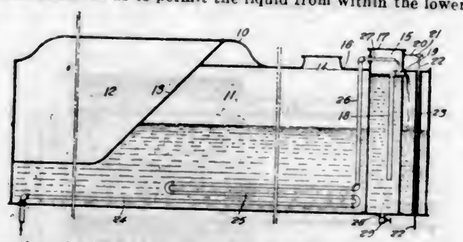
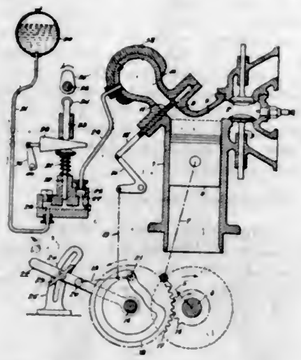
1,682,302. CUSHION TIRE. IRWIN W. MILLER, Allentown, Pa. Filed Feb. 18, 1928. Serial No. 255,471. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—S.)

1. A cushion tire of the character described comprising an annular base having side flanges, an annular rim formed of a plurality of interconnected hinged sections, each section having side members extending inward within the side flanges of the base portion and rockingly connected thereto, and compression springs disposed between the base and tread portion and urging the tread portion outward.



1,682,303. HYDRAULIC CHANGE-SPEED GEARING. STEFFEN MÖHL, Copenhagen, Denmark. Filed Mar. 31, 1922. Serial No. 548,553, and in Denmark Apr. 9, 1921. 3 Claims. (Cl. 60—53.)

2. Hydraulic gearing device, comprising a driving shaft, a gear case mounted for rotation with said driving shaft, a driven shaft, an eccentric disc carried by said driven shaft, a rotary pump of the gear wheel type having an outer member firmly connected to the gear case and an inner member journalled on said eccentric disc, a tubular shaft disposed in concentric relation with said driven shaft, an eccentric disc carried by said tubular shaft, a rotary motor of the gear wheel type having an outer member normally held stationary and an inner member journalled on said last eccentric disc, a second tubular shaft disposed in concentric relation to said driven shaft, a member secured to said last tubular shaft and disposed between said pump and motor and adapted to transfer pressure fluid from the pump to the motor, and means for altering the position of the inner member of the motor relatively to the transferring member and the position of the latter relatively to the inner member of the pump.



1,682,304. OIL SEPARATOR. OLAN H. NANCE, Baltimore, Md. Filed Oct. 8, 1927. Serial No. 224,984. 3 Claims. (Cl. 210—51.)

1. In an oil separator, the combination of a locomotive tender tank, having a main water compartment, a plurality of longitudinally extending coils located within the main water compartment for cooling the condensate, a pipe arranged to permit the liquid to flow into the condensate reservoir, and an overflow pipe arranged with respect to said reservoir as to permit the liquid from within the lower portion of said reservoir to pass upwardly through the overflow pipe and overflowing at a point substantially close to the uppermost end of the main water compartment.

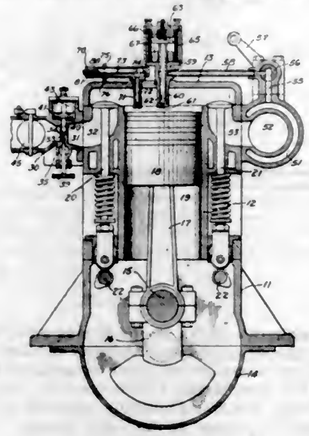
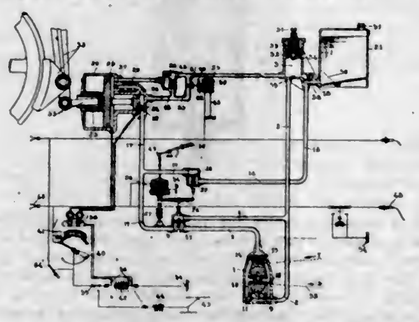
1,682,305. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE AND METHOD FOR OPERATING SAME. LARS G. NILSON, Hoboken, N. J. Filed Sept. 27, 1921. Serial No. 503,549. 5 Claims. (Cl. 123—1.)



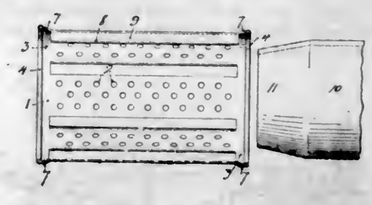
1. The combination with an internal combustion engine provided with a cylinder, piston, and means for supplying the fuel to and exhausting said cylinder, of a closed chamber connected with the engine cylinder adjacent the combustion space, a valve for closing said chamber from communication with said cylinder, and means for closing said valve just before the products of combustion are exhausted from said cylinder and for opening said valve just before ignition occurs.

1,682,306. TANK VALVE. ROBERT M. PIERSON, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The B. F. Goodrich Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 18, 1926. Serial No. 149,153. 2 Claims. (Cl. 4—56.)



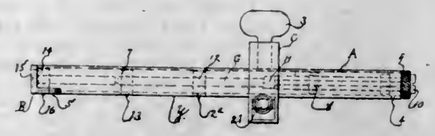
1. A hollow, buoyant tank valve comprising an upper portion, and a soft-rubber lower portion connected to the outer edge of said upper portion, said lower portion being highly flexible and elastic throughout and including a thickened reinforcing belt located in an intermediate zone of said lower portion and lying wholly below its region of greatest diameter at the junction with said upper portion.

1,682,307. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. LEWIS E. PORTER, Los Angeles, Calif.; Jessie Beryle Porter executrix of said Lewis E. Porter, deceased. Filed June 21, 1921. Serial No. 479,199. 8 Claims. (Cl. 60—16.)



8. In an engine, the combination of: a cylinder; a piston fitting and moving in said cylinder; adjustable and thermostatically controlled means for introducing an explosive charge into said cylinder; means for firing said charge; adjustable and thermostatically controlled means for introducing water into said cylinder at a predetermined temperature limit; a thermostat actuated by the heat of said engine; and timing means actuated by said thermostat to render said explosive charge introducing means and said water introducing means respectively effective and ineffective in alternate cycles of said engine, after said predetermined temperature limit has been reached.

1,682,308. HYDRAULIC BRAKE. HENRI SCHAEDE, Liege, Belgium. Filed July 28, 1926, Serial No. 125,531, and in Belgium Aug. 4, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 303—10.)

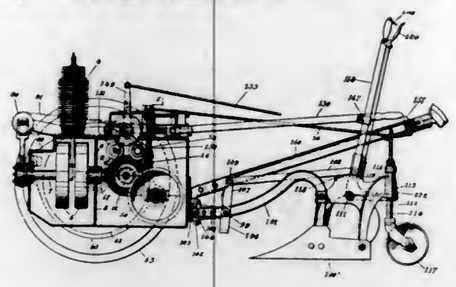


1. In a brake apparatus, the combination substantially as set forth of a pump to be operated continuously from a car-axle and to deliver liquid always in the same direction whatever may be the direction of rotation of the car, an exhaust pipe connecting said pump to a casing provided with a controlling valve, a supply and release pipe leading from said valve casing to two brake cylinders, pistons of different size fitted in said cylinders and associated together, a retracting spring bearing on said larger piston, connected to the rigging of the car, a reservoir at constant volume and a compensating reservoir supplying the brake liquid, a valve controlling the communication between said reservoirs, controlled means for connecting said brake cylinders and said pump to said reservoirs, means for driving electrically the controlling valve.

1,682,309. SPOOL. MORRIS SCHOENFELD, Zurich, Switzerland. Filed Jan. 22, 1926. Serial No. 83,166. 14 Claims. (Cl. 242—110.)

1. A spool on which thread or yarn may be wound and while on the spool subjected to dyeing or other treatment while in a slack condition on the spool, comprising a cylindrical body, a plurality of retractible members, adapted to be extended from said body to receive the thread or yarn thereon and to retract to permit the wound thread or yarn to slacken.

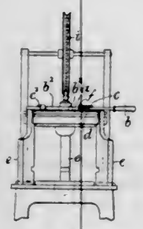
1,682,310. COMBINATION GAUGE FOR MECHANICS. FREDERICK W. SHAKESHAFT, Rochester, N. Y. Filed May 22, 1926. Serial No. 110,887. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—44.)



1. A combination gauge consisting of a slotted tubular stock having a marking point mounted thereon, a carrying frame longitudinally mounted within said stock, an adjustable point mounted on said carrying frame and projecting through the slot in the stock, an outer threaded spindle working within the tubular stock and having threaded connection with one end of the carrying frame, an inner spindle passing through and capable of rotation within the outer spindle, and having a threaded extension projecting beyond the outer spindle, the outer end of the inner spindle rotating within an end wall of the carrying frame, a cylindrical nut mounted on the inner spindle and having a marker thereon projecting through the slot in the stock, a marker upon the end wall of the tubular stock, and projecting through the slotted opening of the stock, a fence adjustably mounted on the stock, an arm slidably and adjustably mounted in the fence, transversely to the stock, and a marking disk pivotally mounted on the end of said arm.

1,682,311. TRACTOR FOR AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS. WILLIAM F. SMITH, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Herman A. Schatz, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Filed Dec. 7, 1921. Serial No. 520,704. 12 Claims. (Cl. 97—50.)

1. In combination, a tractor having a motor shaft and two wheels, means for connecting said wheels with said shaft to cause their rotation in a forward or backward direction, a three armed lever, a screw, a block mounted thereon and engaging one arm of said lever, connections between the other two arms of said lever and said wheels, another screw, a block, said block mounted on said other screw, an agricultural implement attached to said tractor, a lever for raising and lowering said implement connected to the last mentioned block, and driving means including a common connection interposed between said shaft and screws.



6. In a tractor having a casing, a motor shaft with one end mounted in the forward part of the casing, a bevelled gear carried by the other end of said shaft, two bevelled gears cooperating with said gear, a second shaft mounted back of the centre line of said casing at right angles to said motor shaft and carrying said two bevelled gears, an agricultural implement, a pivoted connection between said implement and the rear end of said casing, a lever for manually raising and lowering said implement, and means including gears through which said lever is operatively connected with said second shaft.

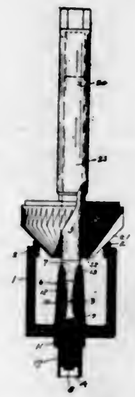
12. In combination, a motor driven tractor having oppositely revolving transmission gears and a pair of drive wheels, means for operatively interconnecting said drive wheels with either of said gears, an agricultural implement attached to said tractor, a shaft two friction wheels attached to said shaft, a collar freely rotatable on said shaft, two angularly displaced levers projecting from said collar, a freely rotating friction disc carried by each one of said levers, two screw threaded shafts having cooperating screw blocks, means actuated by said shaft for rotating said screw threaded shafts, means responsive to travelling of one of said screw blocks in one direction for raising one and lowering the other of said drive wheels and means responsive to travelling of the other of said screw blocks in one direction for raising said implement, said forementioned means being responsive to travelling of the said screw blocks in the opposite directions for reversing the above mentioned operation, means controllable at will for rocking said collar to interpose one or the other friction disc between a gear wheel and a friction wheel, movable stops for limiting the movement of one of said screw blocks and automatic means controlled by said stops for rocking said collar.

1,682,312. HYDRAULIC AND OTHER PRESSES. ERNEST SYDNEY, London, England, assignor to James Robinson & Sons (Romiley) Ltd., Stockport, England. Filed July 2, 1926. Serial No. 120,102, and in Great Britain Oct. 1, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 223—31.)

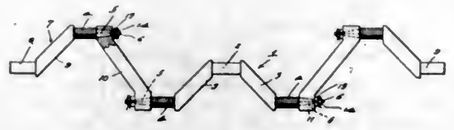


1. In hydraulic and other presses, the combination with the upper movable plate, guide pillars therefor and the operating lever, of brackets provided on the said plate for engaging the said lever and a spring carried by one of the said brackets, operatively related to the lever to admit of angular movement thereof and to automatically position the said lever on the upper end of said guide pillars upon the attendant releasing the same after effecting the opening of the press.

1,682,313. ATTACHMENT FOR TRACTORS. CHARLES H. TURNER, Statesville, N. C. Original application filed Dec. 6, 1924, Serial No. 754,373. Divided and this application filed Mar. 7, 1927. Serial No. 173,467. 9 Claims. (Cl. 280—150.)

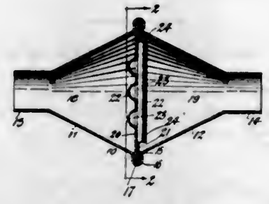
1. In combination with a tractor having a forwardly arranged radiator structure including upper and lower flanges, clamps directly secured to the upper flange, clamps directly secured to the lower flange, a table pivotally connected to the lower clamp, and braces pivotally connected to the table and detachably connected to the upper clamps.

1,682,314. CLAMPING DEVICE FOR VALVE-SEAT-REAMER PILOTS. ROBERT E. WALTON, Tacoma, Wash. Filed Oct. 31, 1927. Serial No. 229,951. 4 Claims. (Cl. 90—12.5.)



1. A clamping device for valve-seat reamer pilot comprising a pilot having a cylindrical upper portion and a reduced screw-threaded stem; with a tapered shoulder joining the said upper part to the said stem; an expanding bushing in contact with said shoulder and lying in the valve-stem-guide; a nut on the stem and engaging the valve-stem-guide to draw the said shoulder into the bushing to expand the bushing at the shoulder, whereby the top of the stem is centered in the valve-stem-guide and the pilot is clamped therein; and expanding means engaging the lower end of the valve-stem-guide whereby the lower end of said stem is centered therein.

1,682,315. ENGINE CRANK-SHAFT AND CONNECTING-ROD CONSTRUCTION. PHILIP H. WENZL, Valley Falls, Kans. Filed Mar. 12, 1927. Serial No. 174,944. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—38.)



1. In a crank shaft structure of the class described, an end section comprising an intermediate portion, an angularly disposed journal at one end thereof, a screw-threaded pin at the opposite end and also disposed at an angle to said intermediate portion, said pin having its outer end formed in a reduced and tapered extension of polygonal cross-section carrying a further reduced screw-threaded shank, and a connecting member having an offset end provided with a hole through which said extension extends, said hole being of a shape corresponding to said extension, said shank extending beyond one end of said hole, and a restraining nut carried by said shank.

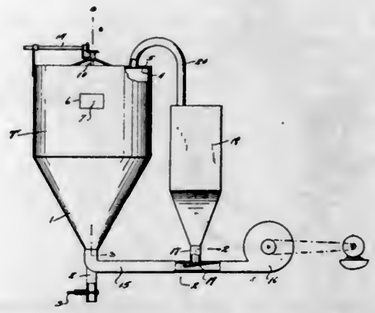
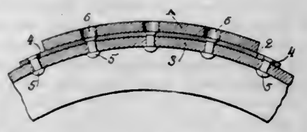
1,682,316. MUFFLER. JOHN WARD WILLIAMS, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Nov. 1, 1927. Serial No. 230,253. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—160.)



1. A muffler comprising a casing having an inlet and an outlet for the exhaust, and a baffle arranged within said casing between said inlet and outlet including two transverse plates having flat sides opposing each other and edges mounted on the wall of said casing and forming inlet and outlet chambers therein, and each of said plates being provided with a laterally projecting hollow bead, the bead of one plate being arranged at an angle relative to the bead of the other plate, and each bead opening at one end into one of said chambers and communicating between its ends with the other chamber.

1,682,317. TURBINE SUPPORT. ROBERT C. ALLEN, Swarthmore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 4, 1925. Serial No. 66,833. 13 Claims. (Cl. 253—39.)

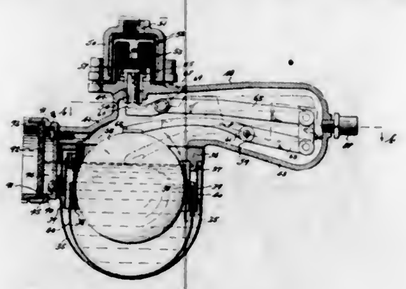


1. Means for supporting a turbine comprising spherically surfaced bearing members at each end of the turbine for supporting the weight thereof, a centrally located fixed retainer at one end of the turbine and a centrally located sliding connection between the turbine and the stationary member at the opposite end.

1,682,318. TREATMENT OF FOOD MATERIALS. FRANCIS C. BEARDSLEE, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to said Beardslee, B. M. Huffine, and J. I. Huffine, Joint Trustees, Los Angeles, Calif. Original application filed Oct. 14, 1926, Serial No. 141,618. Divided and this application filed Dec. 15, 1927. Serial No. 240,296. 6 Claims. (Cl. 99—2.)

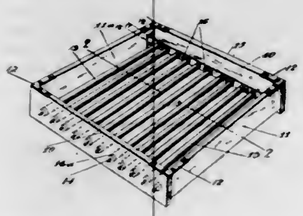
6. An apparatus for subjecting food material to irradiation by ultra violet rays comprising a tank to receive the material to be treated, a bin, a conduit leading from the upper portion of the tank and discharging within the bin, a conduit affording communication between the lower portion of the bin and the tank, means for forcing an air blast through the second conduit into the tank to draw the material within the bin into the tank and to maintain in suspension material in the tank, a window in a wall of the tank to permit discharge therethrough of ultra violet rays to within the tank, and a partition within the second conduit upon which the bin directly discharges, said partition extending on a downward and forward incline in the direction of travel of the air blast.

1,682,319. FACING MEMBER FOR BRAKES AND THE LIKE. ALEXANDRE BLUHM, Paris, France, assignor to Societe Anonyme Francaise du "Ferodo", Paris, France. Filed Dec. 31, 1926, Serial No. 158,375, and in France Jan. 13, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—249.)



3. A friction member comprising a metallic support and a friction facing which is secured to said support and whose composition comprises an artificial resin called synthetic resin the securing of the said facing on the support being obtained by the cementing process by means of the same resin.

1,682,320. ELECTRIC STEAM GENERATOR. CHARLES A. BREWER, Noroton Heights, Conn., assignor to Cannon Engineering Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 24, 1924. Serial No. 745,594. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—101.)



1. In a feed water reservoir for balanced communication with a steam boiler to be served thereby, a water admission valve at the upper end of said reservoir for delivering water into the latter from a source of supply, a free float member within said reservoir, and a lever mechanism engageable by said free float member and actuated by upward thrust thereof to close said water admission valve, said lever mechanism comprising a primary lever having a fixed fulcrum, one end of said primary lever being located in the path of movement of said float member, a secondary lever having an adjustable fulcrum, one end of said secondary lever operatively engaging said water admission valve, and the opposite ends of said primary and secondary levers being pivotally interconnected by a link.

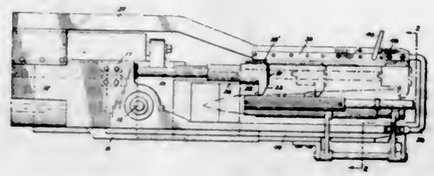
1,682,321. EGG-TURNING TRAY. MICHAEL CYRIL BYRNE, Revesby, via Bankstown, New South Wales, Australia. Filed Feb. 15, 1926. Serial No. 88,475. 1 Claim. (Cl. 119—44.)

An egg turning tray of the character described including, a rectangular frame composed of side and end members, the end members terminating short of the lower edge of the side members and the side members being provided with opposed longitudinal grooves, bearing plates secured to the side members over the grooves provided with a series of opposed openings, extensions integral with and projecting angularly from the ends of the bearing plates and anchored to the adjacent surface of the end members, a series of parallel rollers constituting the bottom of the tray and having trunnions engaged in the opposed openings in the bearing plates, the lower surfaces of the rollers being positioned in a plane above the lower edge of the side members and beneath the plane of the lower edge of the end members so that the under surfaces thereof may be readily engaged and rotated when it is desired to turn the eggs which are adapted to rest on the rollers.



1,682,322. LISTER CORN HARROW. JOHN H. CAMPBELL, Frankfort, Kans. Filed June 2, 1927. Serial No. 196,026. 1 Claim. (Cl. 55—84.)

A harrow of the class described comprising a cross beam, a pair of V-shaped frames, a U-shaped frame disposed between the V-shaped frames, links engaged with the apices of the V-shaped frame and engaged with the cross beam at spaced points, rods pivotally engaged with the apices of the V-shaped frames and the center of the beam, said U-shaped frame having its sides converging rearwardly toward each other, chains connecting the bight portion of the U-shaped frame with the cross beam, said U-shaped frame being shorter than either of said V-shaped frames, and a chain connecting the extremities of the inner legs of the V-shaped frames and extending across the rear of the U-shaped frame.

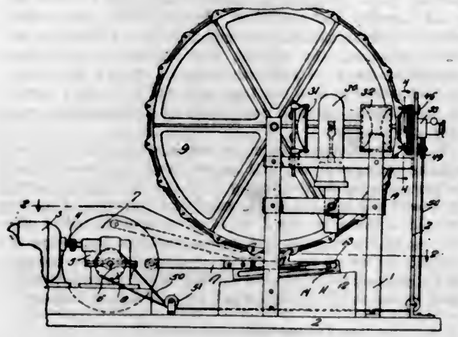
1,682,323. MECHANICAL LOADER FOR CANNON. THOMAS A. CONLON, Silver Spring, Md. Filed June 26, 1924. Serial No. 722,526. 16 Claims. (Cl. 89—47.) (Granted under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, as amended Apr. 30, 1928, 370 O. G. 757.)

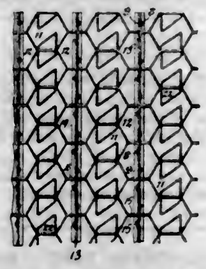
14. A loading mechanism for cannon including projectile engaging members, one of said members actuated by the other member.

1,682,324. AUTOMOTIVE VEHICLE. GLENN H. CURTISS, Hialeah, Fla. Filed Aug. 8, 1925. Serial No. 48,922. 9 Claims. (Cl. 180—22.)



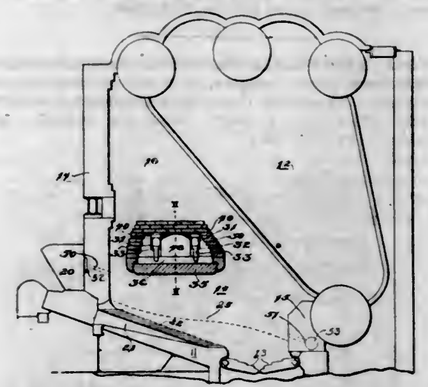
1. The combination, in a road vehicle, of a primary chassis, a secondary chassis including a chassis frame having three points of support, said points of support being substantially triangularly arranged, two forward and one behind, the two forward points of support being yieldable and disposed respectively at opposite sides of the longitudinal center line of said frame, and the single rear point of support being also yieldable and disposed in the longitudinal vertical plane of said center line.

1,682,325. TOOTHBRUSH. ANGELO D'AMICO and ABRAHAM L. GREENBERG, Stockton, Calif. Filed Apr. 29, 1927. Serial No. 187,551. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—176.)



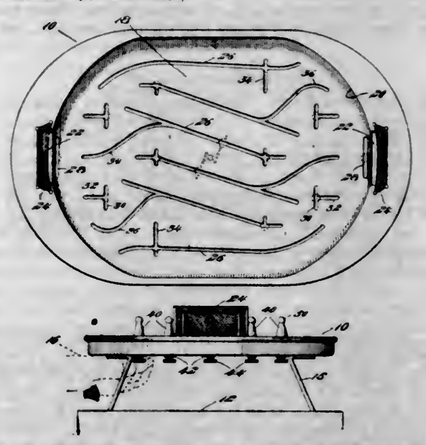
1. A tooth brush comprising a handle member, a tang on one end of the handle, a bristle holder, and a metal sleeve open on one end and extending longitudinally of the holder to removably receive the tang; the outer side edges of the sleeve being disposed at opposed slopes relative to each other and fitting into a similarly shaped groove cut in the back of the holder.

1,682,326. PROJECTION APPARATUS. SID H. ELIASON, Portland, Oreg. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,556. 9 Claims. (Cl. 88—27.)



6. In a projecting apparatus, and in combination, a projecting lens, an element carrying a subject to be projected, said element having spaced apertures in a series about the subject bearing portion thereof, light means, means carrying said element, and light obscuring means movable between the projecting lens and said element and adapted to momentarily cut off the light from the ens and by cooperation with the apertures of said element produce a flickering or light-chasing border about the subject projected.

1,682,327. RADIATOR CORE. JOHN M. FEDDERS, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to Fedders Manufacturing Company Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 16, 1926. Serial No. 155,267. 6 Claims. (Cl. 257—130.)



1. A radiator core having a plurality of water passages and a plurality of air tubes arranged between said water passages, each of said water passages having opposing walls formed between two strips of sheet metal which have their opposite longitudinal edges off-set to form flanges engaging one another and their intermediate walls spaced from each other, and each of said strips being provided at intervals with laterally projecting loops forming air tubes, and the air tubes of one of said strips being arranged in the space between similar air tubes of an adjacent strip, and the flanges of adjacent wall strips being provided with interlocking concavo-convex beads.

1,682,328. FURNACE STRUCTURE. ROBERT A. FORESMAN, Moore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 12, 1923. Serial No. 631,665. 4 Claims. (Cl. 110—44.)

1,682,329. GAME DEVICE. JOHN D. GLAVIN, Providence, R. I. Filed June 20, 1927. Serial No. 200,142. 15 Claims. (Cl. 273—85.)

1. A game apparatus, comprising, in combination, a board arranged to simulate a hockey rink having a surrounding fence, a goal with a goal net at each end thereof and irregular slots therein, one for each player, a plurality of pieces in simulation of players having the lower ends thereof projecting through said slots and loosely secured to each side of said board against vertical movement, capable of horizontal movement in said slots having means attached to the upper and the lower ends thereof to permit horizontal and rotary movement on manipulation thereof, a hockey stick projecting rigidly laterally from each player having the lower edge of the blade thereof abutting the rink, and a hockey puck adapted to be pushed by said pieces and shot on rotation thereof, the slots being so arranged as to substantially cover the normal course of each player's position during play and the slots, pieces and sticks being of a size, and so arranged as to permit at least one player to reach the puck on any portion of the rink.

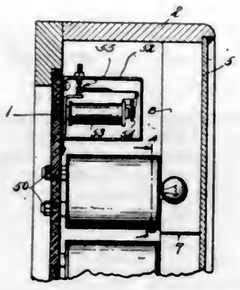
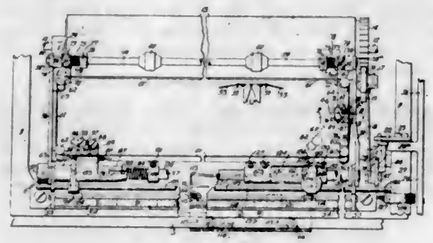
1,682,330. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. GEORGE G. GOING, Middletown, Conn., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Remington Typewriter Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 4, 1926. Serial No. 146,207. 16 Claims. (Cl. 197—82.)



1. In a typewriting machine, the combination of a power impelled carriage, escapement mechanism therefor, a universal bar which alone controls said escapement mechanism, a printing key, a space key which controls the universal bar, and means that enable said universal bar to be actuated by said printing key to cause an advance of the carriage when the space key is maintained depressed.

1,682,331. PUMP SYSTEM. CHARLES H. GOYNE, JOHN G. GOYNE, ALBERT F. GOYNE, and JOHN H. DOUGHERTY, Ashland, Pa., assignors to Goyne Steam Pump Company, Ashland, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 24, 1925. Serial No. 77,490. 22 Claims. (Cl. 103—25.)

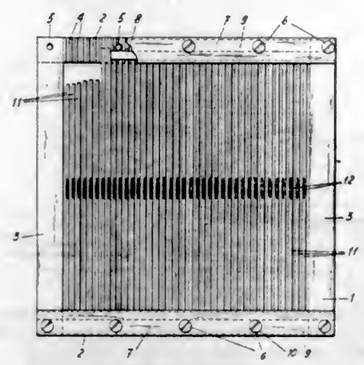
1. In a pumping system, a centrifugal pump, a suction priming pump therefor, means for starting the priming pump, suction operated means for starting the centrifugal pump, means for transferring the suction of the priming pump to said means when the centrifugal pump is primed, means for stopping the centrifugal pump after a predetermined period of operation and means operated by the generation of operating pressure in the centrifugal pump for rendering said stopping means inoperative.



1,682,332. ANNUNCIATOR. OTTO HAMLIN, Quincy, Mass. Filed July 22, 1924. Serial No. 727,439. 2 Claims. (Cl. 177—326.)

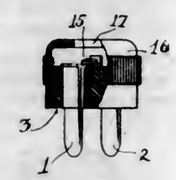
1. An annunciator device having a removable lamp supporting casing comprising spaced heads, and a frame disposed between the heads, the frame having an elongate member supporting an electromagnet and a housing partially embracing the magnet, said housing having spaced aligned bearings, an armature mounted upon a pivot member journalled in said bearings, and a stop member carried by the housing to limit movement of the armature away from the magnet.

2. An annunciator device having a removable lamp supporting casing provided with spaced heads, a frame disposed between the heads comprising a U-shaped support having its closed end secured to one head and the ends of its legs secured to the other head, an electromagnet mounted upon one leg of the support, a housing partially embracing the magnet, an armature pivotally supported by the housing, and oppositely directed ears carried by the housing for limiting movement of the armature away from the magnet.



1,682,333. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. FREDERICK A. HART, New Britain, Conn., assignor to Remington Typewriter Company, Ilion, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 8, 1925. Serial No. 48,992. 49 Claims. (Cl. 197—153.)

1. In a typewriting machine, the combination of a carriage, a platen thereon, a paper bail controlling the paper through the length of the platen, said bail being movably mounted on said carriage and co-operative with the platen, a carriage carried inking ribbon wholly supported on said movable paper bail, and a feeding device engaging directly with said ribbon and mounted on said bail.



1,682,334. NEEDLE-LEASE REED. KONRAD HAUSER, Horgen, Switzerland. Filed Aug. 20, 1927, Serial No. 214,331, and in Switzerland Aug. 21, 1926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 28—40.)

A needle-lease reed, comprising in combination a rigid frame consisting of two horizontal bars having in their outer surface a number of vertical grooves of semicircular cross section, vertical stays rigidly connecting said horizontal bars, two clamping bars having each a longitudinal groove in the inner surface, a strip of rubber in said longitudinal groove of each clamping bar, needles having each an eye at the middle inserted with the ends each in one vertical groove of said horizontal bars the needles at the left and right of the central needles being turned so that their eyes stand at a certain angle to the eyes of said central needles, and screws for removably fixing said clamping bars on said horizontal bars so that they securely hold said needles in the vertical grooves of said horizontal bars.

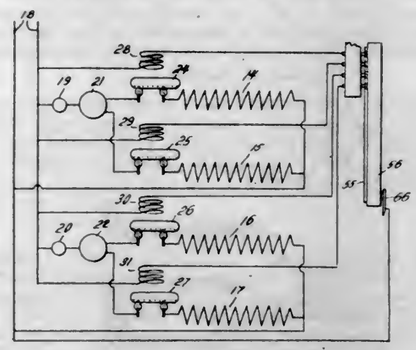
1,682,335. ATTACHMENT PLUG. WILLIAM F. HENDRY, Ossining, N. Y., assignor to Manhattan Electrical Supply Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 6, 1925. Serial No. 21,049. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—361.)

1. In an attachment plug, a block of insulating material having two holes, contact-making members of resilient material projecting through said holes, each of said members having a split tubular portion projecting beyond the lower surface of said block and having a rounded point with a continuous tip, a relatively large split tubular portion within said block, a shoulder separating said tubular portions forced against the block around the hole, a rim and a leg projecting from the last mentioned tubular portion and lying flat against the upper surface of said block, and a terminal screw passing through said leg and into said block.



1,682,336. SUCTION DEVICE FOR MULTISTAGE CENTRIFUGAL PUMPS. ROBERT HENTSCHEL, Bremen, Germany. Filed Mar. 18, 1926, Serial No. 95,591, and in Germany Apr. 11, 1925. 7 Claims. (Cl. 103—108.)

1. A multistage centrifugal pump having a suction stage, a compression stage provided with a valved outlet, a flow passage between said stages, a hydraulically operated jet air pump operative under water pressure produced in said pressure stage, conducting connections between said jet air pump and said suction and compression stages, means for opening or closing said connections for opening or closing communication between said jet air pump and said suction and pressure stages, and a valve normally closing said flow passage and adapted to open under a predetermined pressure in the suction stage.

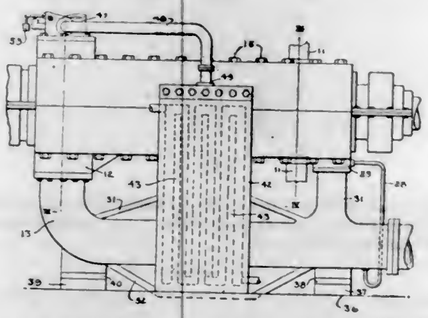
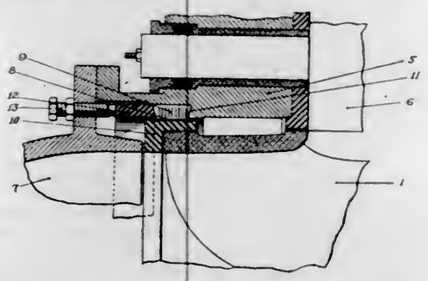
1,682,337. AUTOMATIC COOKING. FRANK W. HEWITT, Arlington, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Buckwalter Stove Company, Royersford, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 8, 1927. Serial No. 231,822. 6 Claims. (Cl. 219—20.)



5. In combination in electric cooking apparatus, a plurality of electric heating elements, independent relays for closing and opening the circuit through each of said heating elements independently of the temperatures thereof, a motor mechanism, a replaceable record of a specific cooking operation receivable and driven by said motor mechanism, and means cooperating with said record for independently actuating said several relays.

1,682,338. STEAM TURBINE. FRANCIS HODGKINSON, Swarthmore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 22, 1925. Serial No. 32,150. 27 Claims. (Cl. 60—64.)



12. An elastic fluid turbine having a casing, an exhaust pipe secured to the casing near one end thereof, said exhaust pipe being disposed beneath the casing and extending longitudinally of said casing, a sliding connection near the opposite end of the casing engaging with a supporting member extending upwardly from the exhaust pipe, said sliding connection permitting relative longitudinal movement between the casing and the supporting member and preventing relative transverse movement therebetween, means for subjecting the supporting member to the temperature of the exhaust motive fluid whereby the expansion of the exhaust pipe and supporting member in a vertical direction due to temperature changes is transmitted equally to both ends of the casing, a foundation, a pedestal at each side of the turbine intermediate its ends and resting on the foundation, hollow links secured to the pedestals and forming a cradle support for the exhaust pipe, said hollow links being rigid longitudinally and flexible transversely of the longitudinal axis of the turbine, means for passing motive fluid through the hollow links thereby compensating for the expansion of the exhaust pipe in a vertical direction and maintaining the longitudinal axis of the turbine in substantially the same horizontal plane, shoes provided on the exhaust pipe opposite each end of the turbine, and guideways carried by the foundation and cooperating with the shoes for permitting relative longitudinal movement between the exhaust pipe and the foundation and preventing relative transverse movement therebetween.

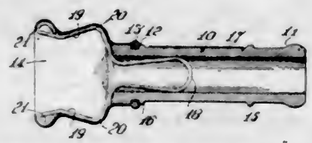
1,682,339. ADJUSTABLE SEAL RING. ELY C. HUTCHINSON, Oakland, Calif., assignor to The Pelton Water Wheel Co., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed July 1, 1924. Serial No. 723,546. 2 Claims. (Cl. 286—7.)

1. A turbine or like machine having relatively moving and stationary parts and sealing elements with closely adjacent surfaces forming running joints between said moving and stationary parts, one of said sealing elements characterized by having a relatively smooth sealing face when not under compression and further characterized by having embedded inserts falling short of intersecting its sealing face to control its movement under compression, and means for acting on said sealing element at substantially right angles to its sealing face whereby its normally smooth running joint forming surface is distorted to provide a plurality of parallel spaced corrugations.



1,682,340. BATCH METER FOR CONCRETE MIXERS. GEBHARD JAEGER, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Sept. 20, 1926. Serial No. 136,498. 17 Claims. (Cl. 83—73.)

1. In combination with a rotary and tilting mixing drum, a charging means and a discharging means therefor, means for latching the discharging means including an arm with a pin thereon, a signal means, a metering means for the rotations of the drum including a worm gear and a worm separable with respect thereto actuated by the mixing drum, means carried with the worm gear for causing the actuation of the signal means upon a predetermined number of revolutions of the mixing drum, means carried with the worm gear consisting of a hollow cam having a recess in its rim said cam adapted to engage said pin to hold the latching arm in drum latching position pending the operation of the signal means.

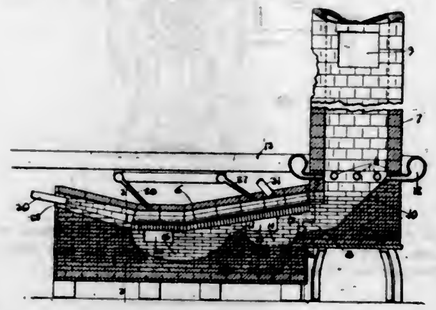
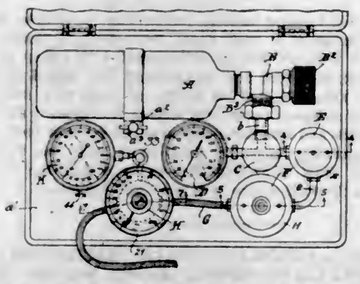
1,682,341. SIREN SQUAWKER. GEORGE B. KEPLINGER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 10, 1927. Serial No. 239,049. 12 Claims. (Cl. 46—46.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a tubular mouthpiece having a supporting member on the outer end thereof, of a piece of elastic flexible material stretched on said supporting member so as to produce a plane surface under tension extending in the direction of the air blown through the mouthpiece and beyond it.

1,682,342. LAMP. LUCAS KRAFT, Elizabeth, N. J. Filed Apr. 21, 1926. Serial No. 103,438. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—4.)

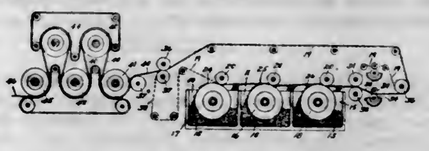


In combination with an adjustable lamp, including telescoping members and a table supported by one of said members, an adjustable shade support, associated with another of said members and comprising a hollow casing provided with a central slot, a rotary element lodged in the walls of said casing, a clamping member engaging said rotary element and passing through the slot of said casing, and adapted to engage the latter when said rotary element is at the desired position, shade supporting arms or frames extending from said rotary element and providing conduits, and lamp sockets provided at the ends of said arms.

1,682,343. SMELTING FURNACE. JAMES A. LANIGAN, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Aug. 15, 1927. Serial No. 212,891. 1 Claim. (Cl. 26—27.)

A smelting furnace comprising a structure of right angular shape consisting of a horizontal portion and a vertical portion, said horizontal portion containing hearths, said vertical portion containing the cupola, said cupola containing a fuel door above the bottom thereof and tuyères in its wall between the fuel door and the bottom, the bottom of the cupola sloping toward the horizontal hearth portion, a source of heat directed over the hearths from the end of the horizontal portion farthest from the cupola, and a source of heat directed over the region at the juncture of the horizontal and vertical portions, tuyères directed over the hearths and a strainer like wall affording communication between the cupola and the hearth portion.

1,682,344. APPARATUS FOR THE SUBCUTANEOUS INJECTION OF OXYGEN OR OTHER GASES. MAURICE LESIEUR, Paris, France. Filed Apr. 5, 1924, Serial No. 704,336, and in France Aug. 11, 1923. 3 Claims. (Cl. 128—184.)

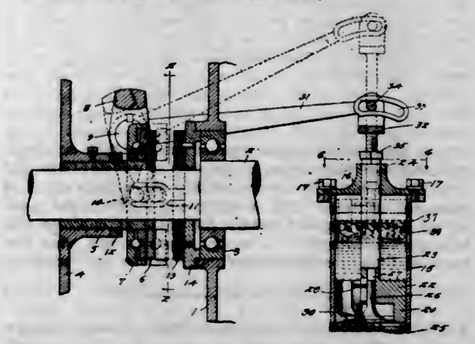


2. In an apparatus for subcutaneous injection of gas, a container adapted to contain a quantity of said gas under pressure, a hypodermic needle, connecting means leading from said container to said needle, said connecting means including a pressure reducer adapted to reduce the pressure of gas flowing to said needle to a predetermined low pressure, and a flexible tube interposed between said pressure reducer and said needle, the walls of said tube being of such strength that they will burst if the pressure of gas in the tube exceeds a predetermined amount.

1,682,345. HAIR-CURLING APPLIANCE. FRANCIS M. LITTLE, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed July 14, 1927. Serial No. 205,652. 22 Claims. (Cl. 132—32.)

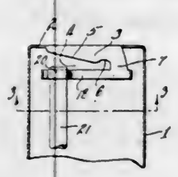
1. A device of the class described comprising a pair of hair engaging members, one of said hair engaging members having a fluid conduit provided with an outlet, means for supplying a fluid heating means to said conduit, and a casing for enclosing said hair engaging members.

1,682,346. PAPER FABRIC. WILLIAM A. LORENZ, Hartford, Conn., assignor to The Otaka Fabric Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Substitute for application Serial No. 699,791, filed Mar 17, 1924. This application filed Jan. 5, 1926, Serial No. 79,504. Renewed Jan. 23, 1928. 2 Claims. (Cl. 92—39.)



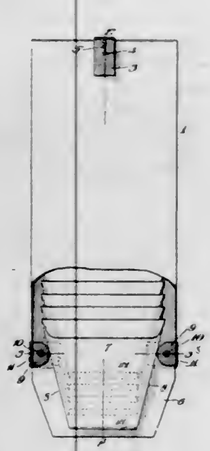
1. A paper fabric composed of a layer of sized pulp and one or more layers of unsized pulp, combined therewith, said combined web being roughened, by embossing or crinkling, thus forming a web of paper adapted for paper wash cloth purposes.

1,682,347. MANUFACTURE OF HYDROXY-ACID ESTERS. HOWARD W. MATHESON, Montreal, Quebec, and KENNETH G. BLAIKIE, Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, Canada, assignors to Canadian Electro Products Company, Limited, Montreal, Canada. Filed Jan. 11, 1926. Serial No. 80,625. 9 Claims. (Cl. 260—106.)



1. A process for the production of hydroxy acid esters with the exception of lactic acid esters in a single step, which comprises reacting together a cyanhydrin and an alcohol in presence of a mineral acid and water.

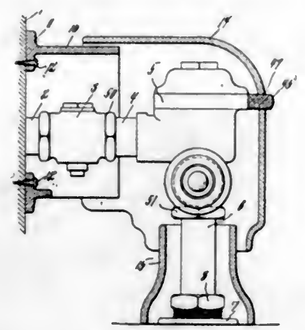
1,682,348. CLUTCH CONTROLLER. CLARENCE K. PORTER, Lansing, Kans., assignor of one-half to Catherine A. Porter, Tulsa, Okla. Filed Apr. 21, 1927. Serial No. 185,614. 3 Claims. (Cl. 192—109.)



2. A clutch controller including a cylinder containing mercury and oil, a hollow piston within the cylinder, and a ported valve for the piston.

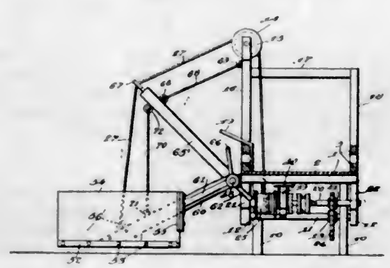
1,682,349. BRACING MEANS FOR TUBULAR FILLER MEMBERS. JAMES S. REID, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Eaton Axle & Spring Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 7, 1926, Serial No. 134,068. Renewed June 11, 1927. 6 Claims. (Cl. 220—40.)

1. In a tubular filler neck of the type having a flange portion provided with a cam surface and a stop projection and which is adapted to be closed by a closure having a locking projection for cooperation with said cam surface and limited in its movement by said stop projection, bracing means for said projection.



1,682,350. DISPENSING CARTON AND PAPER CUP THEREFOR. WILLIAM A. RINGLER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Individual Drinking Cup Company, Inc., Easton, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 18, 1924. Serial No. 707,355. 4 Claims. (Cl. 206—56.)

4. A dispenser for paper cups of substantially flat form, said dispenser comprising a container of substantially flat formation adapted to receive within the same a stack of cups and provided with yielding cup holding and separating means disposed within the same at opposite side edge portions thereon to engage opposite side edge portions of cups of substantially flat form in the container.



1,682,351. FLUSH-VALVE HOUSING. ALFRED ROGERS, Milton, Mass. Filed Apr. 13, 1925. Serial No. 22,886. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—111.)

3. In combination with a wall, a pipe projecting from said wall and having a shut off therein, a flush valve carried by said pipe, a closet, and a connection from said valve to said closet, of a non-corrodible housing for said pipe and valve extending from said wall to said closet and comprising a plurality of telescopically arranged sections, certain of said sections being open on one side to afford access to said shut off.

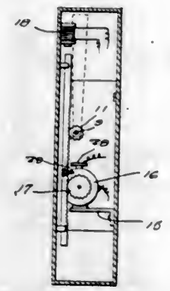
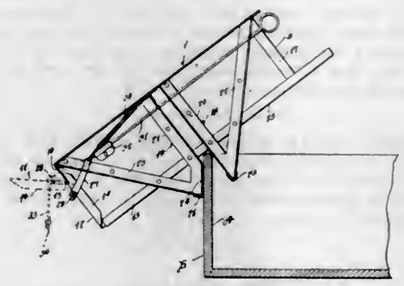
1,682,352. SELF-LOADING VEHICLE. JOHN N. SHANKS, Post Falls, Idaho, assignor to Empire Thresher Co., Post Falls, Idaho, a Corporation of Idaho. Filed May 5, 1926, Serial No. 106,952. Renewed Apr. 9, 1928. 1 Claim. (Cl. 214—80.)



In a self loading vehicle mechanism, a vehicle having a running gear, a rock shaft journalled alongside said vehicle, a fork having an arm mounted to swing on said rock shaft, said fork having an inner load guard provided with an arm mounted to swing on said rock shaft, an angularly disposed reach arm having its forward end fixed to said fork and its rear end journalled on said rock shaft, and mechanism operated from said axle for elevating said fork from a ground pick-up to a position for discharging the load of the fork onto said vehicle.

1,682,353. AUTOMATIC GATE MECHANISM FOR RAILWAY CROSSINGS. JOSEPH WILLIAM SHEAN, Spearville, Kans. Filed Jan. 7, 1926. Serial No. 79,840. 1 Claim. (Cl. 39—7.)



In an automatic gate mechanism for railroad crossings, hollow posts at the crossing, each including a horizontally pivoted gate arm mounted for swinging movement on the outside of the post, a vertically sliding weighted bar arranged within each post and operatively connected with the arm whereby movement of the same in opposite directions will cause the swinging of the arms in opposite directions, an electric motor operatively connected to said bar for moving the same upwardly, said bar being adapted to move downwardly by gravity, an electric magnet in each hollow post supported above the slidable weighted bar and arranged in the same circuit with the motor, said electromagnet engaging the upper end of the bar for holding the same in a raised position for maintaining the swinging arm in a horizontal position, cooperating means between the electric motor and the slidable weighted bar for cutting off the electric motor automatically when the weighted bar is raised to a predetermined position, said last mentioned means comprising a switch associated with the electromotor, said switch including a pivoted plate and a trip carried by the weighted bar and adapted for engagement with the pivoted plate of the cut-out switch.

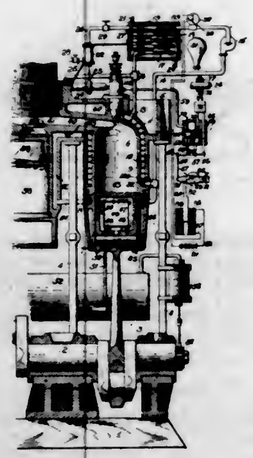
1,682,354. BATCH HOPPER FOR CONCRETE MATERIAL. JOHN L. SHUE, Shawnee, Okla. Filed Jan. 27, 1927. Serial No. 164,099. 6 Claims. (Cl. 214—38.)

1. A batch hopper for concrete material, comprising a container adapted to be mounted on the side of an open freight car, brackets secured to the container and extended below its bottom, said brackets being in pairs and adapted to be arranged on opposite sides of the freight car side, the brackets of each pair spaced from one another a greater distance than the thickness of the side of the freight car, and a bracket of each pair having a portion inclined from the other bracket, said inclined portion being adapted to engage the adjacent face of the side of the freight car to incline the container relatively to the car side.

1,682,355. SCALE. WALTER S. SMITH, Columbus, Ohio. Filed June 6, 1927. Serial No. 196,746. 9 Claims. (Cl. 265—54.)

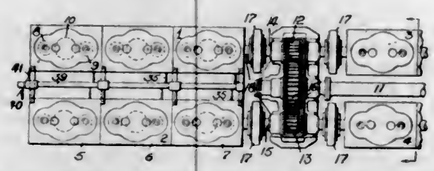
1. The combination with the movable beam of a scale, of a spring strip supported at one end independently of the beam, and a connecting element extending between said beam and a flexibly movable portion of said strip, said strip carrying a bar with which said element has rolling engagement and positioned to normally maintain said beam in a neutral position.



1,682,356. MECHANISM FOR STRETCHING SHEETS OF MATERIAL. CECIL J. SOLOMON, New York, N. Y. Filed June 4, 1926. Serial No. 113,597. 6 Claims. (Cl. 149—21.)

1. In a stretching machine, the combination of a pair of conveyers, each having a series of gripper fingers mounted thereon, means adapted to actuate said gripping fingers to the gripping position, means adapted to actuate the said conveyers, means adapted to simultaneously cause the actuation of the said gripper fingers in a direction perpendicular to the movement of the said conveyers, and means adapted to intermittently cause the said gripper fingers to be opened, whereby a sheet of material can be inserted between the gripper fingers respectively mounted upon the said conveyers while said gripper fingers are in the open position, and the said sheet of material thereafter be subjected to a stretching action.

1,682,357. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION-ENGINE CYLINDER. ELMER A. SPERRY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Sperry Development Company, Dover Green, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 10, 1920. Serial No. 402,657. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—173.)



1. In an internal combustion engine, a combustion cylinder, not designed for bearing the whole pressure of combustion, fuel feeding means therefor, means for impressing centrifugal force upon said cylinder of sufficient degree to enable said cylinder to bear the pressure of combustion, and electromagnetic means controlled by said force for controlling said fuel feeding means.

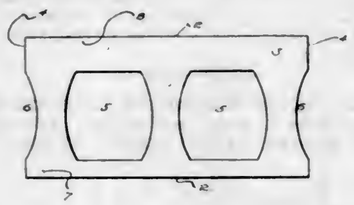
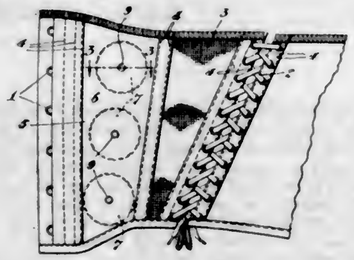
1,682,358. COMBUSTION-ENGINE DRIVE FOR SHIPS. ELMER A. SPERRY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Sperry Development Company, Dover Green, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 28, 1922, Serial No. 547,384. Renewed Jan. 18, 1928. 17 Claims. (Cl. 60—97.)



1. A combustion engine drive for ships comprising the combination with the propeller shaft, of a plurality of engine units for driving said shaft, a clutch between at least one of said units and said shaft, direction control means for said units whereby said units may be driven in the same or opposite directions, and means whereby said clutch is released when said units are operated so as to revolve said shaft in opposite directions.

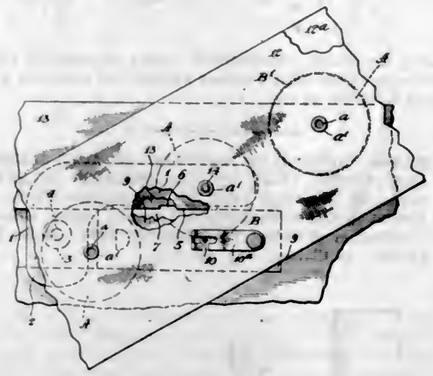
1,682,359. METHOD OF MAKING CONCRETE BUILDING BLOCKS. FRANCIS J. STRAUB, New Kensington, Pa. Filed Nov. 16, 1926. Serial No. 148,677. 8 Claims. (Cl. 25—155.)



1. The method of making a concrete building block consisting in compressing the block in a mold and then impregnating one of its faces with an investing fluid while moist and under pressure.

1,682,360. BUILDING BLOCK. FRANCIS J. STRAUB, New Kensington, Pa. Filed Nov. 16, 1926. Serial No. 148,680. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—36.)

2. A concrete building block composed of a continuously similar dried aggregate having transverse openings therethrough, a continuously dense thin side wall portion at one side, and a continuously relatively open and porous thick side wall portion at the other side.



1,682,361. BONING FOR FLEXIBLE MATERIALS. MILLARD VON HALLE, Palisades Park, N. J., assignor to The Standard Corset Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Nov. 16, 1926. Serial No. 148,625. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—36.)

2. As a new article of manufacture: superposed layers of flexible material, a disk interposed between the layers of material, and means securing the disk and layers together comprising: an eyelet at the center of the disk clamping the flexible material to the disk and stitching passing through the layers of flexible material and circumferentially surrounding the disk.

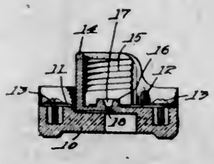
1,682,362. ART OF SEWING. MILLARD VON HALLE, Palisades Park, N. J., assignor to The Standard Corset Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 13, 1927. Serial No. 183,359. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—255.)

The method of securing a disk, interposed between layers of flexible material, to said material which consists in: initially attaching the layers of material and disk together with an eyelet at the center of the disk, mounting the disk and layers on a pivot adjacent a sewing head, and then subjecting the layers of flexible material to the action of said sewing head to sew the layers together circumferentially around the disk.

1,682,363. MILK DISPENSING AND MEASURING DEVICE. ELIAS N. AUSTIN, New York, N. Y., assignor to S. P. U. Corporation, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 7, 1925. Serial No. 61,018. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—100.)

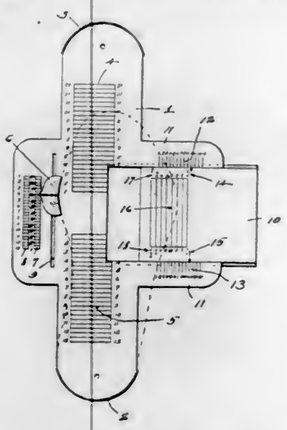


3. In a milk dispensing device a pump, having a piston rod connected thereto, a milk stirring mechanism, a means for actuating the same and said piston rod, a sleeve carried by said means, said sleeve to slide on said piston rod, a pin on said sleeve and a slot in said piston rod, in engagement with said pin, said pin to transmit motion from said means to said rod, and said slot to cause a lost motion to said rod at each end of the stroke of said sleeve, thereby causing said mechanism to be actuated before said rod and independently thereof at the beginning of each stroke of said sleeve.

1,682,364. MAGNETIC CORE MATERIAL. STUART BALLANTINE and RICHARD W. SEABURY, Boonton, N. J., assignors to Radio Frequency Laboratories, Inc., Boonton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 9, 1923. Serial No. 611,671. 1 Claim. (Cl. 175—21.)

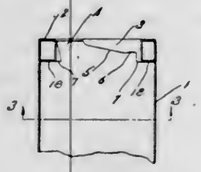
Process of molding a magnetic core material which comprises coating thin laminæ of magnetic material with a potentially reactive phenolic resinoid insulating binder to form a molding mixture of substantially normal molding characteristics, and subjecting said mixture to heat and pressure in a mold of arbitrary shape, said heat and pressure being so regulated as to produce an integral molded article having the characteristics of low electric conductivity, low eddy-current losses at radio frequencies, and a magnetic permeability at radio frequencies of the order of ten.

1,682,365. FUSE CUT-OUT. JOHN B. BOURGEOIS, Worcester, Mass. Filed May 6, 1926. Serial No. 107,254. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—130.)



The combination with a fuse plug having a metallic projection extending beyond its end, with an insulating base having a conducting socket for receiving the plug and having an insulating wall extending across the bottom of the socket and provided with an integral projection extending into the socket and having a perforation therethrough for said projection, and a conductor supported in said base and having a metallic head thereon extending part way up into said perforation, for the purposes described.

1,682,366. FOOT-MEASURING INSTRUMENT. CHARLES F. BRANNOCK, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Nov. 4, 1925. Serial No. 66,718. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—3.)



1. A foot measuring instrument comprising a base plate formed with a heel abutment and having a scale arranged to measure the length of the foot from heel to the toe when the heel is against the abutment, a second abutment arranged to engage the ball joint, a width finder carried by the plate and shiftable toward and from the second abutment, the base plate having a second scale thereon along the path of the width finder and corresponding to the former scale and the width finder having an index movable along the second scale, the width finder also having width indicating graduations thereon arranged to come in line with the outer edge of the foot, and correlated with the graduations of the second scale.

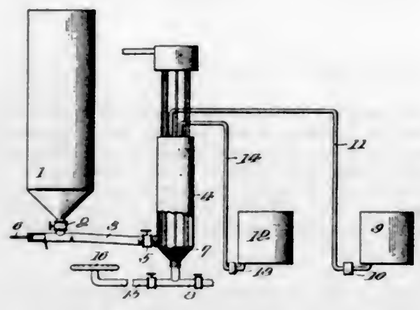
1,682,367. BRACING MEANS FOR TUBULAR FILLER MEMBERS. DENNIS F. BRAWN, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Eaton Axle & Spring Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 25, 1926. Serial No. 137,691. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—40.)

A tubular filler neck adapted to be closed by a cap member having a locking finger, comprising a tubular body portion and a depending flange arranged therein and extending substantially parallel therewith, said flange having an inclined lower edge over which travels the locking finger of the cap member when applying said cap member to and removing it from the filler neck, said flange being provided at the rear end of its inclined edge with a depending projection forming a stop for the locking finger of the cap member as said finger travels up said inclined edge, said stop projection having its lower end portion bent at right angles outwardly into engagement with said tubular body portion, thereby bracing said stop projection and preventing its being bent outwardly when a filling nozzle is inserted into the tubular body portion of the filler neck.



1,682,368. ENGINE STARTER. JAMES A. CHARTER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 10, 1926. Serial No. 87,266. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)

1. In an engine starter, a commercial unit comprising a shaft made in two abutting parts, a pinion rotatable and reciprocable on one part of said shaft, a rigid obstruction preventing removal of the pinion from the end of that part of the shaft which is away from the second part of the shaft, a projection on the second shaft part, movable between the convolutions of a spring, such a spring encircling said shaft parts between said projection and said pinion, means detachably affixing the spring to the pinion, an end loop or stop on the spring engaging said projection, and means detachably, nonrotatively, rigidly securing the adjacent ends of the shaft together whereby for operating purposes these are as one.

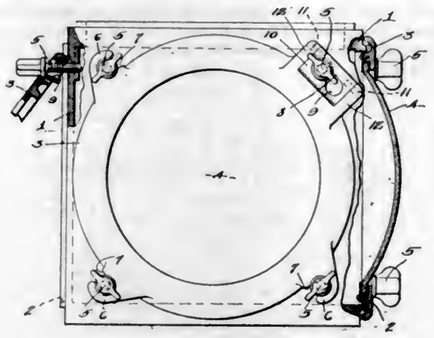
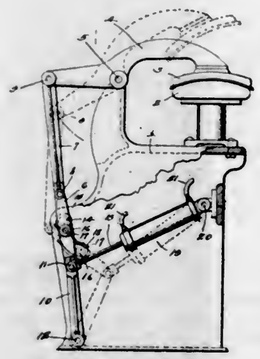
1,682,369. METHOD OF DISPOSING OF ACID SLUDGE AND SPENT CLAY IN OIL-REFINING PLANTS. JAMES M. CORY and FRED H. BUNKE, Lima, Ohio, assignors to The Solar Refining Company, Lima, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 27, 1926. Serial No. 84,163. 18 Claims. (Cl. 44—1.)



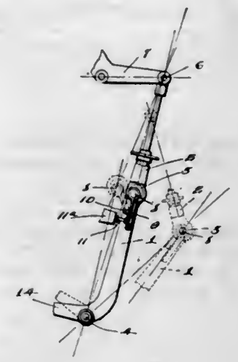
1. The method of preparing a liquid fuel consisting in mixing acid sludge, a filtering medium and a fluxing medium together in the presence of a heating medium.

1,682,370. RAIL ANCHOR. FRANCIS W. COOPER, Montreal, Quebec, Canada, assignor to Stead Rail Anchors, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 1, 1926. Serial No. 85,356. 26 Claims. (Cl. 238—324.)



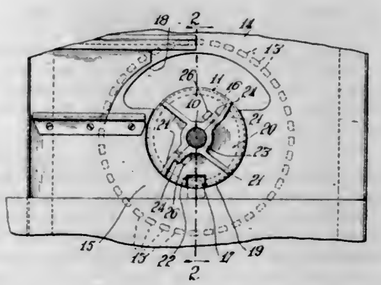
1. In a rail anchor, a resilient clip member including a substantially straight portion, a hook portion and reversely curved portion connecting the hook portion and the straight portion whereby the length of the hook portion projecting beyond the face plane of the straight portion is less than the actual length of the hook portion.

1,682,371. DOOR CONSTRUCTION FOR LAMPS AND THE LIKE. ROYAL E. CROSSLEY, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Crouse-Hinds Company, Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 13, 1926. Serial No. 122,235. 7 Claims. (Cl. 220—33.)



1. In a door construction, the combination of a body having a door opening, a plurality of studs spaced apart in a circle around the door opening, a door provided with outwardly projecting lugs formed with open ended slots for receiving all but one of the studs and an additional lug formed with a slot provided with an enlargement, said studs being screws threading in the body through the slots.

1,682,372. ACTUATING MECHANISM FOR PRESSING MACHINES. JOSEPH P. DALY, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to The Prosperity Company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 6, 1926. Serial No. 127,528. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



1. The combination with a supporting frame, of an actuating mechanism for a movable element supported by the frame, the actuating mechanism comprising a lever pivoted between its ends to the frame, connections between one arm of the lever and the movable pressing element, and connections between the other arm of the lever and the frame, the frame being formed with a guide for receiving a pivot of said lever whereby the lever may be moved bodily during its pivotal movement, and a reciprocating actuator connected to the lever.

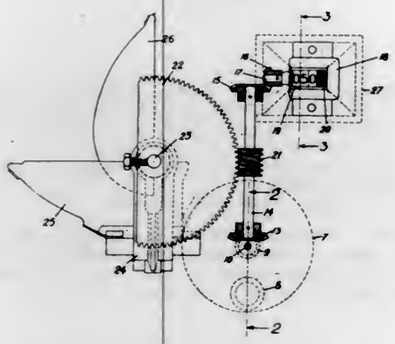
1,682,373. TOGGLE MECHANISM. ERNEST DAVIS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Prosperity Company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 13, 1925. Serial No. 22,576. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—5.)

5. A toggle mechanism comprising links, pivot means connecting the links including a shaft on which one of the links is mounted and an eccentric on the shaft on which the other link is mounted, the shaft having a radially extending arm and means arranged to engage said arm as the toggle straightens.

1,682,374. CORN SHELLER. ALBERT E. GILMAN, Ottawa, Ill., assignor to King and Hamilton Company, Ottawa, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Dec. 1, 1927. Serial No. 236,918. 4 Claims. (Cl. 130—6.)

1. In a corn sheller, the combination with a casing having a shelling concave therein, of a shaft journaled in said casing having a shelling cylinder secured thereto and cooperating with the concave when the shaft is rotated, an outlet in said casing for the cobs and husks, and beater blades secured to the shaft outside of the concave casing, substantially as and for the purpose described.

1,682,375. WINDOW GUARD. MICHAEL HEIDT, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 2, 1927. Serial No. 165,273. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—71.)



1. In combination with a window frame, a window guard for safeguarding persons sitting on the window sill while cleaning windows, said guard comprising a tubular central member, a pair of side members telescoping at one end with and adjustable within said tubular member and having depending ends adapted to bear against the outer face of the window frame, and means, attachable to the latter, for receiving and firmly engaging said depending ends of the side members.

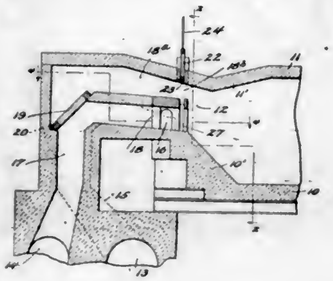
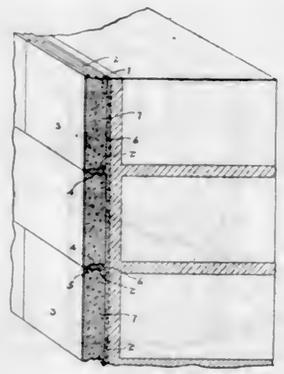
1,682,376. COMBINATION INDICATING AND ADJUSTING DEVICE FOR RADIOCIRCUITS. OTTO HENZE, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Apr. 26, 1927. Serial No. 186,643. 6 Claims. (Cl. 40—68.)



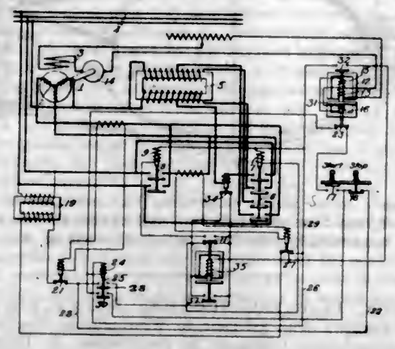
1. The combination with a tuning device for radio apparatus, of a segmental gear on the adjusting shaft of said tuning device, a drive shaft, means to rotate said drive shaft, a worm on said drive shaft meshing with said segmental gear, a gear on said drive shaft, and means actuated by said gear to indicate the adjusting wave-length of the tuning device.

1,682,377. COAL-PULVERIZING MACHINE. RALPH JACKSON, Coventry, England, assignor to Alfred Herbert Limited, Butts, Coventry, England, a British Company. Filed Apr. 13, 1926, Serial No. 101,817, and in Great Britain May 5, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 83—11.)



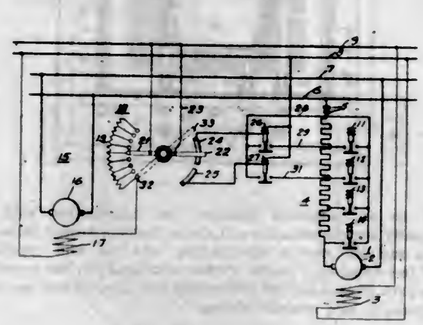
1. A pulverizing apparatus comprising a one piece casing having two spaced centrally located pulverizing chambers, means forming a fan chamber outside of each pulverizing chamber, a single shaft passing through the chambers centrally thereof, and driving connections to the central portion of said shaft between the pulverizing chambers.

1,682,378. OPEN-HEARTH FURNACE. ALBERT T. KELLER, Bethlehem, Pa., assignor to Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 5, 1921. Serial No. 520,041. 11 Claims. (Cl. 263—15.)



5. An end construction for open hearth furnaces having air gas channels including air and gas ports disposed substantially horizontally and terminating adjacent the end of the combustion chamber, a separate port for products of combustion leading from the combustion chamber, and means for blocking the terminal ends of the air and gas ports to protect the same against the action of hot products of combustion.

1,682,379. TILE. WILLIAM PLATTS KELLETT, Brantford, Ontario, Canada. Filed Oct. 16, 1926. Serial No. 142,099. 6 Claims. (Cl. 72—20.)

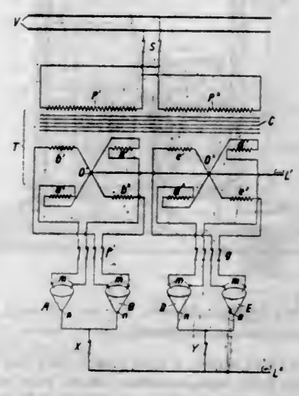


1. A tile, comprising a metal sheet having flanges extending the full length of the ends and sides and turned at right angles thereto to form an open casing for the reception of a plastic filler of cement materials and having the meeting edges rigidly joined, said flanges having recesses therein leading from each side thereof adapted to register on the outside with recesses in adjacent blocks and to receive and effect the interlock of the flanges with the filler on the sides thereof.

1,682,380. STARTING SYSTEM FOR ELECTRIC MOTORS. HARVEY KING, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 19, 1920. Serial No. 397,409. 12 Claims. (Cl. 171—118.)

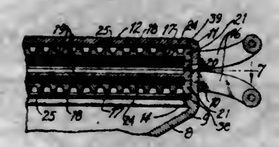
1. The combination with a synchronous electric motor having a primary winding and a field-magnet winding, of means dependent upon the frequency of the alternating current and the value of the direct current traversing said field-magnet winding for controling the circuit of said primary winding.

1,682,381. MOTOR-CONTROL SYSTEM. REESE T. KINTZING, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 21, 1925. Serial No. 70,482. 6 Claims. (Cl. 172—239.)



1. In a motor-control system, a variable-voltage supply circuit, a motor adapted to be connected to said supply circuit, a starting device connected in circuit with said motor, and means for varying the effective value of said device in accordance with the voltage of said supply circuit prior to the connection of the motor thereto.

1,682,382. SULPHONATED-CELLULOSE DERIVATIVES AND PROCESS OF PREPARING THEM. GEORG KÄNZLEIN, ARTHUR VOSS, and FRANZ BRUNNTRÄGER, Hochst-on-the-Main, Germany, assignors to I. G. Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed July 25, 1927. Serial No. 208,406, and in Germany Sept. 10, 1926. 15 Claims. (Cl. 260—100.)

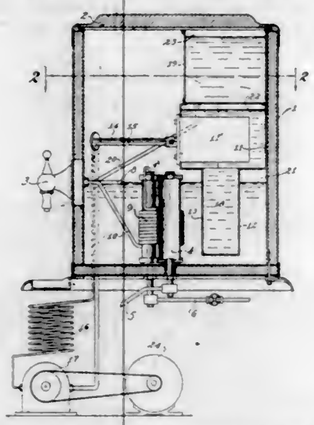


1. The process of preparing sulfonated cellulose derivatives by causing cellulose to react with an aralkylhalogensulfonic acid in the presence of an alkaline agent.

1,682,383. ELECTRICAL RECTIFYING APPARATUS. JOHANNES KÜBLER, Baden, Switzerland, assignor to Aktiengesellschaft Brown, Boveri & Cie., Baden, Switzerland, a Joint Stock Company of Switzerland. Filed Mar. 20, 1926, Serial No. 96,342, and in Germany Apr. 6, 1925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 175—363.)

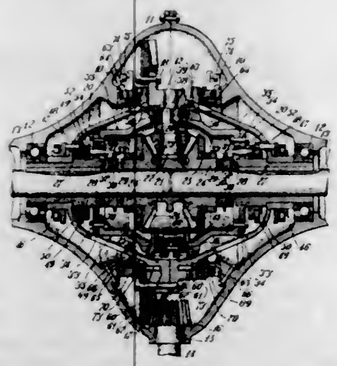
1. Rectifying apparatus comprising, in combination, a plurality of groups of rectifiers, a transformer common to and supplying said groups, said transformer including a plurality of parallel primary windings and secondary windings for the corresponding input electrodes of the respective rectifiers, each of said secondary windings being uniformly distributed over its associated primary winding.

1,682,384. COOKING DEVICE. JOSEPH G. LAMBERT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 1, 1928. Serial No. 251,181. 8 Claims. (Cl. 219—19.)



5. A pancake and waffle making device comprising upper and lower members hingedly connected together and electric-heating-element-equipped plate-like elements on said members each having one face in the form of a grid and its opposite face plain, said elements having electric terminals; and means for releasably engaging said elements with said members, said terminals being located adjacent said hinge and said elements being reversible and interchangeable whereby said terminals in the different positions of said elements extend at the same location on said members.

1,682,385. COOLING APPARATUS FOR BEVERAGE DISPENSERS. WILLIAM E. LIEBING, Oakland, Calif., assignor to Magnus Fruit Products Co., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Nov. 5, 1927. Serial No. 231,222. 1 Claim. (Cl. 62—141.)



A cooling apparatus for liquid dispenser comprising a container provided with an open top, said container provided with a body of liquid therein, a tank supported within said container at one side and extending into said liquid body, said tank containing a body of brine, a refrigerating unit within the tank immersed in the brine solution therein, a unit positioned within said container in front of said tank, a second unit positioned within said container, said units being removable from the container independently of the tank and through each of which units a separate body of liquid passes, said units lying adjacent to said tank whereby the temperature of the fluid passing therethrough is controlled by conduction from said brine solution through said body of fresh water, a fluid receptacle lying above and supported by said tank, a mixing valve exteriorly of the container, and independent pipes extending from the units and receptacle to said mixing valve.

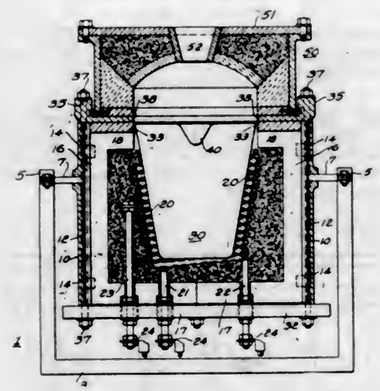
1,682,386. DIFFERENTIAL MECHANISM. FRANK M. LEWIS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 23, 1927. Serial No. 185,972. 10 Claims. (Cl. 74—99.)

1. In a power transmitting mechanism, the combination with alined shaft sections, of an equalizing differential gearing mounted on said shaft sections, means drivingly connecting said gearing to said shaft sections, a clutch mechanism mounted on and connected to said shaft sections, a driving means common to both said differential gearing and said clutch mechanism, means for rendering idle said connecting means, and means for rendering idle said clutch mechanism.



1,682,387. HEADLIGHT. JOHN MINOR BOTTS LEWIS, Lynchburg, Va. Filed Mar. 8, 1926. Serial No. 93,254. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

3. A device of the character described comprising a light converging reflector having principal and conjugate foci, a light bulb arranged in said reflector provided with a pair of filaments approximating the principal focus of said reflector, said filaments being adapted to be selectively illuminated, a supplementary reflector formed as a surface of revolution arranged forwardly of the conjugate focus of said first named reflector and adapted to intercept light rays from the forward portion thereof and redirect them forwardly, said supplementary reflector being provided in its rear end with an opening adjacent the plane of the conjugate focus, and a condensing lens arranged in the path of rays from said reflectors and having its rearward focus substantially coincident with said opening.

1,682,388. INDUCTION FURNACE. ROLLO B. LINCOLN, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 21, 1927. Serial No. 176,885. 6 Claims. (Cl. 266—1.5.)

1. In an induction furnace, the combination with a helically wound inductor coil and a crucible nested therein, of a metallic casing surrounding said coil and crucible, and ferro-magnetic means within said casing in the exterior flux path of said coil for preventing the induction of electric currents in said metallic casing.

1,682,389. WEATHER STRIP. WILLIAM A. LUDEKE, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Apr. 14, 1926. Serial No. 102,080. Renewed July 11, 1928. 13 Claims. (Cl. 20—68.)

1. A weather strip adapted for attachment to a door or closure comprising a holder, a channel swingingly mounted upon the holder and adapted when pressure is applied thereto in a predetermined direction to swing upon the holder, retracting means for the channel, a member yieldably supported within said channel and a flexible strip carried by said member.

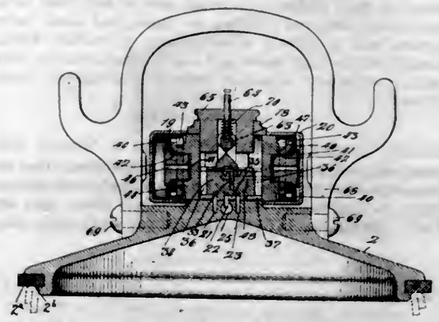
1,682,390. TREATING FIBROUS MATERIAL. ALFRED LUTZ, Seehof, near Teltow, Germany, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Ronald C. Lee, Bedford, N. Y. Filed Mar. 29, 1921, Serial No. 456,759, and in Germany July 2, 1915. Renewed May 26, 1926. 8 Claims. (Cl. 91—70.)

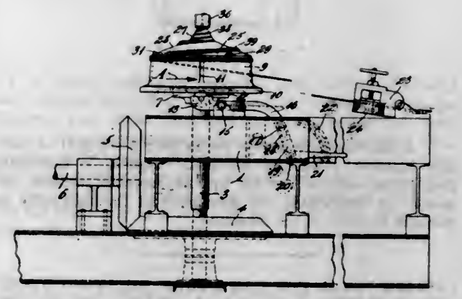
1. The process of treating fibrous material which consists in immersing said material in web form in a bath of a gelatinous impregnating material, applying to said impregnated web a hardening agent consisting of methylolformamide, and then allowing the web to stand to get progressive hardening of the impregnating material by the hardening agent.

6. An improved method of sizing fibrous material which consists in treating the material with a gelatinous sizing composition to impregnate it, maintaining the composition and material at a temperature above normal during the impregnating, then applying a quantity of hardening medium to said material proportioned to the quantity of sizing material soaked up, winding the material into roll form immediately after application of the hardening medium and allowing it to stand in roll form while the hardening medium acts on the sizing composition.



1,682,391. TEMPERATURE-CONTROL SYSTEM. HOWARD D. MATTHEWS, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 23, 1926. Serial No. 117,908. 4 Claims. (Cl. 236—52.)

1. The combination with a liquid container, of electric means for heating the liquid, a thermostatic switch electrically connected to said heating means for controlling the energization thereof, and means for maintaining said thermostatic switch in proximity to the surface of the liquid.



1,682,392. PULSATOR FOR MILKING MACHINES. HERBERT MCCORNACK, Glen Ridge, N. J. Filed Aug. 12, 1920. Serial No. 403,013. 19 Claims. (Cl. 31—62.)

1. In pulsator mechanism for milking apparatus, a cylinder, a piston mounted to reciprocate therein and having annular grooves formed in its outer surface adjacent its ends, washers carried by said piston adjacent the ends thereof and extending between said piston and the wall of said cylinder and in register with said grooves, and split rings of yielding material mounted within said grooves for holding said washers in engagement with said cylinder wall, said rings having their ends abutting and having internal diameters greater than the internal diameters of the grooves whereby to permit bodily movement of said rings with respect to said grooves.

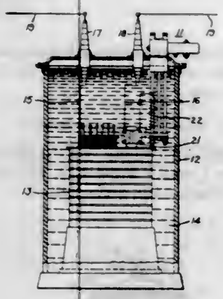
1,682,393. WIRE-DRAWING MECHANISM. CARL F. MEAD, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 18, 1924. Serial No. 732,723. 6 Claims. (Cl. 205—20.)

1. Wire drawing apparatus, comprising a drawing drum, means for positively rotating the same at definite speed, and a rotatable wire starting member provided with a conical portion, parts of which are inclined at different pitches and around which the wire is led to the drum periphery.



1,682,394. MATTRESS AND CUSHION. CHARLES C. MEUTSCH, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Apr. 21, 1925. Serial No. 24,761. 1 Claim. (Cl. 5—351.)

A mattress and cushion comprising upper and lower fabric walls of an outline conforming to the shape of the cushion, an outer side wall forming the marginal wall of said cushion and secured at its upper and lower edges to the edges of said upper and lower walls, an inner wall arranged within said upper, lower and side walls and secured at its upper and lower edges to the inner sides of the upper and lower walls a substantial distance from the edge of the cushion and forming a border compartment, a cushion filling arranged within said border compartment, upper and lower horizontal inner walls arranged within said cushion and secured at their edges to the inner side of said first mentioned inner wall and forming an upper and lower compartment and a central compartment, a cushion filling arranged within said upper and lower compartments, and a spring structure arranged within said central compartment.

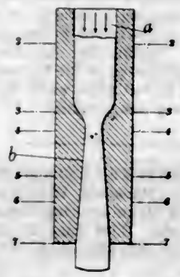
1,682,395. CONTROL DEVICE. HARRY C. MILLER, Wilkinsburg, and AUGUST J. MOTTLAU, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 28, 1927. Serial No. 187,341. 18 Claims. (Cl. 297—11.)

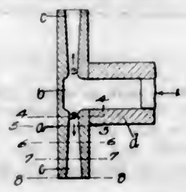
1. A thermostatic device comprising a support, a movable member yieldingly mounted thereon, a thermally-responsive element carried by the movable member and means for restraining the movement of the thermally responsive element in one direction.

1,682,396. SEAL FOR CAR DOORS, SHIPPING RECEPTACLES, ETC. JOHN J. A. MILLER, Denver, Colo. Filed Feb. 23, 1927. Serial No. 170,143. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—318.)



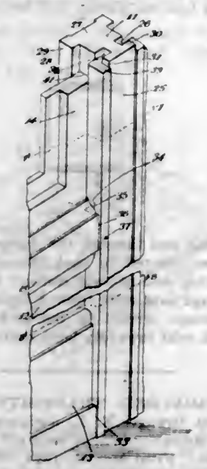
1. A seal of the character described, comprising a wire bent to a suitable form, having a conical head on one end and an annular shoulder on its opposite end, a tubular housing secured at one end upon the head end of the wire, its opposite end portion being reduced in diameter to form an annular shoulder, a divided resilient tubular lock in said housing, having introverted annular flanges at its ends, one end of said lock engaging the annular shoulder of said housing, its introverted flange engaging the annular shoulder on the opposite end of the wire, when the said wire is inserted in the housing, said tubular lock being tapered from each end toward the center thereof.

1,682,397. RUBBER AND RESIN COMPOUND. STUART P. MILLER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Barrett Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 25, 1924. Serial No. 752,190. 2 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)



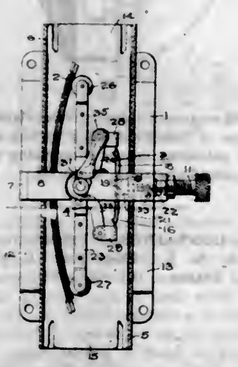
1. As a new article of manufacture, a waxy solution of about 10% of rubber dissolved in paracoumaron resin having a melting point of approximately 126° C.

1,682,398. MANUFACTURE OF PROPELLERS. ERNEST MITCHELL, Eccles, Manchester, England. Filed Aug. 8, 1927, Serial No. 211,546, and in Great Britain Oct. 14, 1926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 207—1.)



In the manufacture of a propeller blade, a die shaped to correspond with the cross section and twist of the root and a portion only of the length of the blade, the end of said die being open so that the metal issues into the atmosphere from the die, a container for the metal in alignment with the die which constitutes a continuation of the container, and means extruding the metal from said container into said die and partly into the atmosphere through the die.

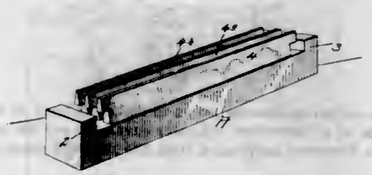
1,682,399. EXTRUSION OF METALS. ERNEST MITCHELL, Eccles, Manchester, England. Filed Aug. 8, 1927, Serial No. 211,547, and in Great Britain Sept. 23, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 207—1.)



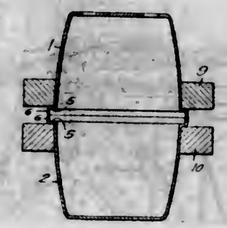
3. In the manufacture of a propeller, a die having a central matrix and a plurality of lateral matrices radiating therefrom and shaped to correspond with the root and a portion only of the length of each blade, the end of each lateral matrix being open so that the metal issues into the atmosphere from the die, a container for metal at right angles to the radiating matrices, and means extruding the metal from the container into the die and partly into the atmosphere through the die.

1,682,400. INTERIOR SECTIONAL PARTITION. FREDERIC P. MITCHELL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 13, 1927. Serial No. 183,412. 12 Claims. (Cl. 20—4.)

1. A partition having a post with a rabbet on one side and a shoulder adjacent the back, a panel or the like fitting in the rabbet and insertable from the face of the post, the panel bearing against the shoulder, a stop connected to the post forward of the panel, and means connected to the panel holding the stop in position.



1,682,401. THERMAL RELAY. AUGUST J. MOTTLAU, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 8, 1925. Serial No. 74,026. 5 Claims. (Cl. 200—113.)



1. In a switch structure, a quick-break mechanism, an equalizer bar having a roller on each end thereof, and a bi-metal strip having its ends bearing against the rollers and adapted to actuate the quick-break mechanism by means of the equalizer bar.

1,682,402. HEATING-ELEMENT SUPPORT. HARRY A. MULVANY, Berkeley, Calif. Filed Dec. 22, 1926. Serial No. 156,325. 9 Claims. (Cl. 266—1.5.)

1. In a vehicle, a plurality of pairs of driving wheels, means mounted concentrically with respect to each other for driving individual pairs and means for equalizing the force applied through the respective driving means to the several pairs, the equalizing means including a spider with projecting flanges mounted on the propeller shaft, cooperating means including a member connected with another driving shaft and bearing flanges which project between the first named flanges and resilient means between the respective flanges to equalize the power transmission.

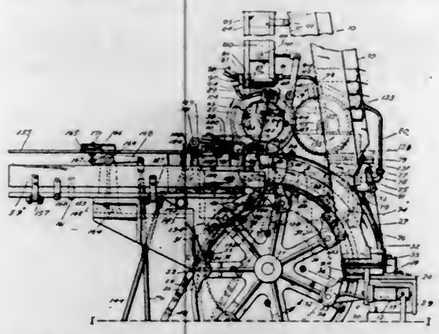
1,682,403. BARREL. THOMAS E. MURRAY, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Nov. 22, 1920. Serial No. 425,605. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—4.)

1. A barrel formed of segments each including a head and a tubular portion of sheet metal of comparatively large diameter and slight thickness, which segments are butt-welded along transverse edges, said segments near their meeting edges being bent outward and forward so as to form bearing shoulders of extended area and transverse direction for the pressing of the edges together by means of electrodes and for stiffening such edges to maintain them in register during the welding operation.

1,682,404. HEAT-CONDUCTING TUBE. JOSEPH B. MURRAY and THOMAS E. MURRAY, Jr., Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 17, 1924. Serial No. 720,512. 1 Claim. (Cl. 257—262.)

A heat conducting unit comprising a tubular member made up of a plate and of hollow segments welded to opposite sides of said plate to provide a tube with lateral flanges extending beyond the tube and exposed to the surrounding medium, the part of the plate within the tube being apertured to permit circulation between opposite sides thereof.

1,682,405. NONRIGID AIRSHIP. HERMANN NAATZ, Berlin-Charlottenburg, Germany, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Firm Luft-Fahrzeug Gesellschaft m. b. H., Kleiststr., Berlin, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Mar. 30, 1923, Serial No. 628,851, and in Germany Apr. 13, 1922. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—3.)



2. In an airship of the non-rigid type, a gas containing envelope, a network embracing said envelope for preventing deformation of same and consisting of longitudinal, diagonal and transverse non-expansible flexible members whose sections are interconnected so as to make the body of the ship pliable in all directions, an outer envelope over the network, and a structure suspended from the network covering.

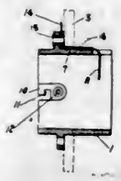
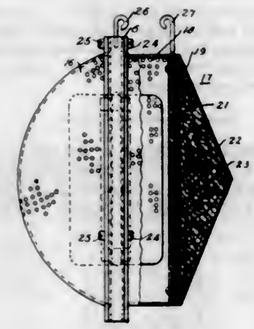
1,682,406. PACKAGE STAMPER. PETER MARTIN NEJEDLY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Machine & Foundry Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 17, 1927. Serial No. 192,096. 20 Claims. (Cl. 216—55.)

1. The combination with continuously moving means for advancing and turning flat packages endwise, of package-controlled means for successively attaching stamps to the packages moving in said advancing means.



1,682,407. PAINT-SPRAY BOOTH. EDMUND H. NELSON and EGON F. TINGWALL, Jamestown, N. Y., assignors to Jamestown Blower Company, Jamestown, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 18, 1927. Serial No. 213,768. 7 Claims. (Cl. 91—60.)

1. A paint-spray booth, comprising a spraying compartment having side walls, a top wall and a rear wall provided with openings, a suction-inducing device in rear of said rear wall, an air chamber at the upper end of said spraying compartment provided with air openings directed toward said rear wall, and means for introducing air under pressure into said air chamber.



1,682,408. RADIO TUBE SOCKET. EDWARD B. NOWOSIELSKI, Bloomfield, N. J., assignor to Splitdorf Electrical Company, Newark, N. J. Filed June 5, 1924. Serial No. 718,056. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—328.)

1. In a device of the class described, a socket of insulating material having a flange with mounting holes therein, said socket having spring mounting surfaces circumferentially spaced on its outer surface, said mounting surfaces terminating in slots through the wall of the socket, contact springs lying on said surfaces and each having one end bent outwardly and having an eyelet passing therethrough and through the flange and an auxiliary contact member riveted to each contact spring by said eyelets, the other end of said contact springs being bent inwardly through said slots toward the axial center of the socket, and means carried by the socket to hold a tube in contact with said inwardly bent contact ends.

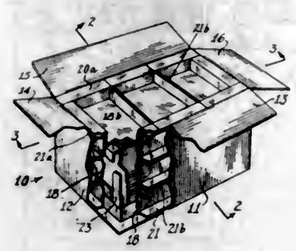
1,682,409. SHIELDED TRANSMITTER. ALEXANDER NYMAN, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 1, 1924. Serial No. 696,178. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—122.)

1. A sound-responsive device comprising in combination a microphone, a sound-shielding means and a supporting means, said shielding means comprising a metal cone and a lining of sound-absorbing material.



1,682,410. CONTAINER. FERDINAND S. OPPENHEIM, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 1, 1925. Serial No. 47,469. 7 Claims. (Cl. 229—14.)

1. A packing and shipping box comprising an outer casing having a pair of similarly constructed partition liners nested and arranged in the casing for each of the walls thereof, said liners forming a hollow supporting structure in the casing adapted to protect and cushion the enclosed contents against damage during transportation.

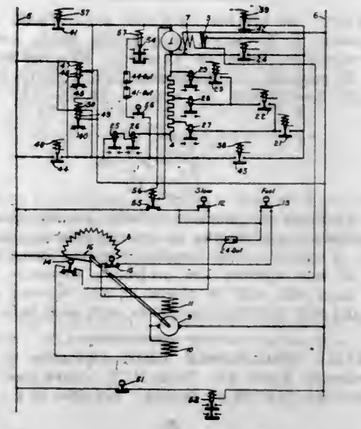
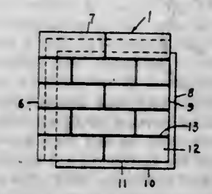
1,682,411. CONTAINER. FERDINAND S. OPPENHEIM, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 1, 1925. Serial No. 47,470. 7 Claims. (Cl. 229—14.)

1. A packing and shipping box having inner and outer walls, the inner wall forming a receptacle spaced from the outer wall, said receptacle adapted to receive articles of various cross-sectional shape, at least one side of the inner wall formed with abutting partition liner sections, one of said sections projecting into the receptacle adapted to engage an asymmetrical side of the article packed for preventing movement thereof during transportation.



1,682,412. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR RADIUS GRINDING. WILLIAM C. PALMER, Davenport, Iowa, assignor to Micro Machine Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Feb. 6, 1926. Serial No. 86,412. 14 Claims. (Cl. 51—96.)

1. In radius grinding mechanism adapted to cooperate with a rotatable grinding wheel, in combination, a base, a carriage mounted for longitudinal movement on said base, a work support pivotally mounted on said carriage so that the pivotal axis of said work support will remain in fixed lateral position relative to said work support and will travel in a true plane which includes the axis of said grinding wheel, means to cause longitudinal travel of the carriage on said base, and means for moving said work support about the pivotal axis thereof during the longitudinal movement of the carriage.



1,682,413. SYSTEM OF CONTROL. FRED M. PARKS, Murraysville, and GEORGE R. SHAW, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 26, 1925. Serial No. 58,807. 3 Claims. (Cl. 172—179.)

1. The combination with a motor and a resistor therefor, of a pair of independently operable switches for connecting said resistor in circuit for forward operation, a pair of independently operable switches for connecting said resistor in circuit for reverse operation, means for energizing one switch of each of said pairs to establish a dynamic-braking circuit comprising said resistor, and load-responsive means for varying the effecting value of said resistor.

1,682,414. BUILDING BLOCK. MAX POLACOFF, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 16, 1927. Serial No. 213,343. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—38.)

1. A building block comprising a substantially rectangularly shaped body portion having a T shaped groove providing a shoulder on the upper and on one of the end faces, and a square shaped tongue on the lower and opposite end face, adapted to engage with the shoulder of a contiguous block.

1,682,415. APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING SCREENS FOR COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY. JOHN H. POWRIE, New York, N. Y. Original application filed Mar. 16, 1920, Serial No. 366,198. Divided and this application filed Oct. 30, 1926. Serial No. 145,126. 10 Claims. (Cl. 95—81.5.)

1. In an apparatus for photographically printing a pattern on a continuous sensitized support, the combination of a light source, means for continuously moving the support past the light source, and means for effecting a relative movement of the support and the light source.

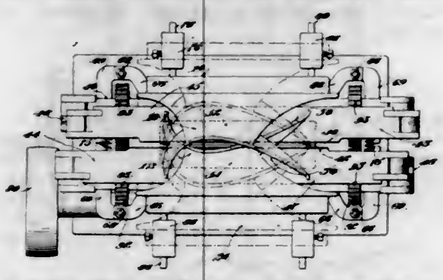
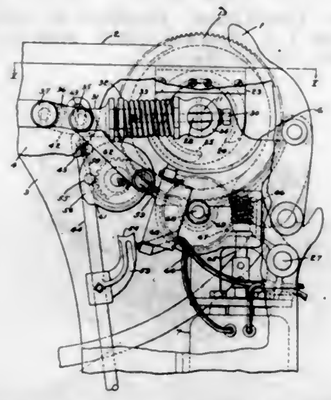
1,682,416. MARKING CUTTER FOR TREE LAMPS. LAMBERT L. RAYMOND, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Broderick-Son-Raymond Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Nov. 22, 1926. Serial No. 150,123. 5 Claims. (Cl. 41—1.)



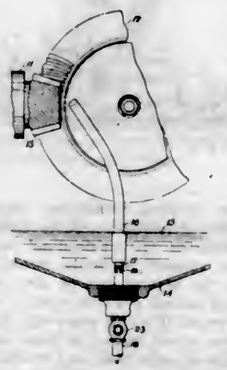
1. A device for marking colored electric lamp bulbs comprising a tool having an opening therein, and a plurality of spaced cutting members disposed about the inner edge of said opening and projecting thereinto, whereby said lamp bulb may be placed in said opening and said tool and bulb relatively moved to mark said bulb.

1,682,417. SINGLE-SOLE SHOE. WILLIAM C. RE and BERNARDO RASO, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 5, 1924. Serial No. 754,165. 2 Claims. (Cl. 36—16.)



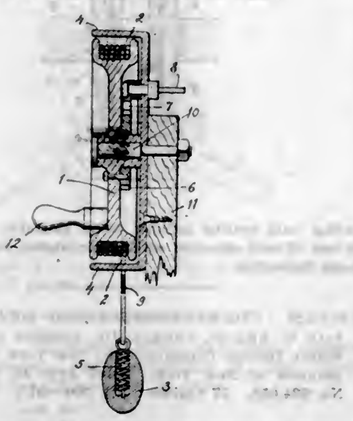
1. A shoe having a one-piece sole with a split heel portion and a channeled portion along the toe and instep periphery, a one-piece upper having its lower edge divided by gashes at each side, the instep and toe portion of said upper being outturned and seated on said channeled portion of said sole, the heel or counter portion of said upper being inturned between the parts of said split heel, a separate welting strip seated on said instep and toe portion of the upper and projecting therebeyond at the rear ends to overlie the lower part of said split heel, and a single stitching to unite said welting strip, said outturned portion of the upper, said channeled portion, and said lower heel portion.

1,682,418. CUTTING MACHINE. ROBERT REID and ANDREW S. REID, Beverly, Mass. Filed Aug. 31, 1927. Serial No. 216,712. 19 Claims. (Cl. 17—4.)



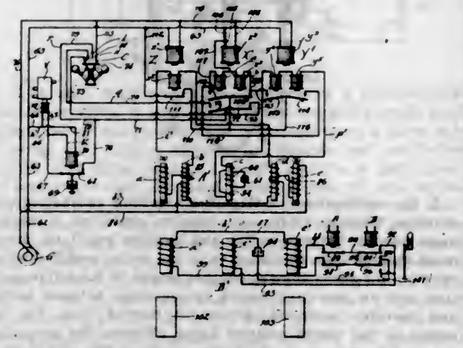
1. A fish filleting machine having, in combination, a cutting device, means for relatively moving a fish and the cutting device to perform the cutting operation, and means controlled by the thickness of the backbone of the fish for varying the location of the cut.

1,682,419. IRONING MACHINE. EARL M. RICHARDS, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 14, 1924. Serial No. 743,525. 8 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



1. An ironing machine comprising a fixed ironing member, an ironing roll, means supporting said roll for movement toward, and away from, the fixed ironing member, a support, an arm pivoted on said support, a second arm pivoted to said first-mentioned arm, and secured for limited sliding movement with respect to said roll, a spring on said second arm for biasing said roll to the extreme limit of its connection with said second arm, and means for actuating said arms adjacent to their point of pivotal connection for moving said roll toward said fixed ironing member.

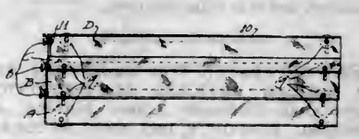
1,682,420. APPARATUS FOR FEEDING THE LAPPING COMPOUND TO GEARS. JOSEPH H. ROLF, Muncie, Ind., assignor to Gleason Works, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 15, 1926. Serial No. 88,380. 2 Claims. (Cl. 51—263.)



1. In a machine for lapping gears, a pair of spindles upon which the gears to be lapped are mounted, a reservoir located directly beneath said gears containing a lapping compound comprising a mixture of an abrasive and a liquid medium in predetermined proportions, a conduit extending to the vicinity of said gears, said conduit being provided with an aperture below the level of the lapping compound in the reservoir and an air discharging nozzle extending into the conduit adjacent said aperture, whereby said lapping compound is agitated and thereby mixed and conveyed from the reservoir to the gears purely by air pressure returning substantially unaltered to the reservoir.

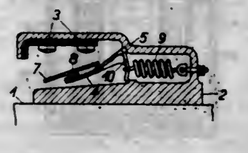
1,682,421. AERIAL CONDUCTOR FOR WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY AND WINDING APPARATUS THEREFOR. BRUNO ROSENBAUM, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 29, 1921, Serial No. 496,626, and in Germany July 1, 1915. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—33.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. In combination with a winding reel for a radio antenna for aircraft, a conductor, a weighted body at the end of said conductor, a resilient member interposed between said conductor and said weighted body to absorb sudden tensional strains which might otherwise injure said conductor.



1,682,422. TRAIN-CONTROL SYSTEM. FRED M. ROSENZWEIG, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to The Regan Safety Devices Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 5, 1924, Serial No. 717,989. Renewed Jan. 31, 1928. 27 Claims. (Cl. 246—63.)

1. An induction train control system for vehicles comprising a vehicle carried energy transmitting inductor, a vehicle carried energy receiving inductor, roadside inductor means arranged to cooperate with the vehicle carried inductors for receiving energy from the energy transmitting inductor and for transmitting such energy to the receiving inductor, and means for compensating for magnetic leakage from the vehicle transmitting to the vehicle receiving inductor.



1,682,423. FILE OR RACK FOR PAPERS, DOCUMENTS, MERCHANDISE, AND THE LIKE. HERBERT O. ROSS, St. Louis, Mo. Filed June 8, 1925. Serial No. 35,673. 3 Claims. (Cl. 129—43.)

1. In a rack, a plurality of complementary compartment-forming separable units, each unit including a base wall and a single end wall and single side wall upstanding from the base wall and each unit being open upon its opposite end and side, said units being adapted to fit telescopically together with the end and side walls of one unit superposed over the respective end and side walls of the next adjacent unit, and means for separably securing said units together in compartment-forming relation.

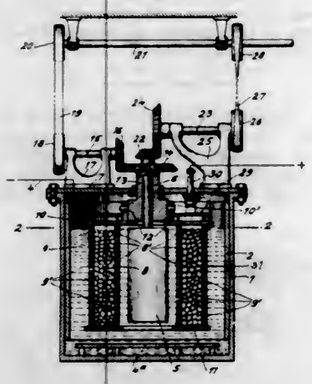
1,682,424. CENTRIFUGAL STARTER FOR ELECTRIC MOTORS. MAX SCHIESSER, Baden, Switzerland, assignor to Aktiengesellschaft Brown, Boveri and Cie., Baden, Switzerland. Filed Jan. 18, 1925, Serial No. 2,189, and in Germany Jan. 26, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—80.)

1. A centrifugal switch for mounting on a shaft of an electrical motor comprising a hub member adapted to be secured to the shaft, a bell-shaped cylindrical body supported on said hub member and enclosing a cylindrical space around said shaft, a double-armed lever pivotally mounted on said bell-shaped body at a point away from the closed end thereof, a spring supported at said closed end and acting on one arm of said lever, a contact member on the other arm of said lever arranged to move with said arm outwardly under the action of the centrifugal force in opposition to the action of said spring, the pivotal mounting of said arm causing said movement to be in a plane through the shaft, and contact members on said bell-shaped body adapted to be engaged by the contact member of said lever arm, the mass of the movable contact member and the associated lever arm being substantially counterweighted by the mass associated with the other arm of said lever.



1,682,425. EQUALIZING MECHANISM FOR AUTOMOBILE BRAKES. JOHN E. SCHMIDT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 22, 1927. Serial No. 227,931. 13 Claims. (Cl. 188—204.)

1. An equalizing mechanism comprising a hollow body member having axially arranged pressure cylinders therein; pistons in said cylinders; a toggle mechanism between said pistons for operating the same; pressure chambers at the outer ends of said cylinders; brake cylinders having pistons oppositely arranged and operable by fluid pressure from said pressure chambers; arms connecting said body member with said brake cylinders; said arms having channels providing communication through the arms between said pressure chambers and said brake cylinders.

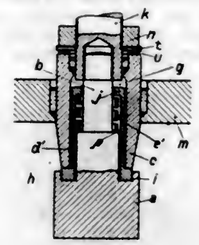
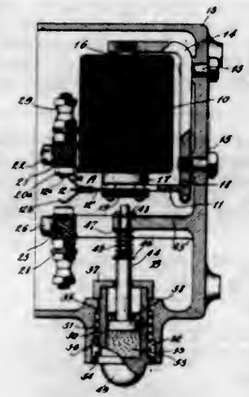
1,682,426. APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING SHEETS AND SIMILAR ARTICLES ELECTROLYTICALLY. JOHANN CARL FRIEDRICH ALBERT SCHÜTTE, Altdorf, Switzerland. Filed Oct. 6, 1927, Serial No. 224,432, and in Germany Dec. 29, 1925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—11.)

1. In apparatus for producing sheets and similar articles electrolytically, the combination with a casing of any suitable form, serving as cathode, means for stirring the electrolyte and arranged in said casing, an anode-casing containing the ore or the other material to be treated electrolytically, said anode-casing surrounding the stirring means and having perforations through which the electrolyte acting on the ore or the like is forced by said agitating means, and means for actuating said agitating means.



1,682,427. CONTAINER. SAUL SCHWARTZ, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Henry Schwartz, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 11, 1927. Serial No. 198,240. 9 Claims. (Cl. 220—39.)

1. The combination with a container having a threaded opening, of a threaded closure-plug for said opening provided with means operating, upon the unscrewing of said plug, to so mutilate the container as to render it unadapted for receiving a similar plug.



1,682,428. MERCURY-VAPOR RECTIFIER. OSKAR SEITZ, Baden, Switzerland, assignor to Brown, Boveri & Cie., Baden, Switzerland. Filed Sept. 10, 1925, Serial No. 55,458, and in Germany Oct. 29, 1924. 11 Claims. (Cl. 176—50.)

1. An electrode mounting for mercury vapor rectifiers comprising an insulating bushing extending through the rectifier casing, an electrode having a portion within the bushing, and a sealing member having sealing engagement with the bushing and the electrode within the rectifier casing, said sealing member being shiftable with respect to one of said elements while maintaining sealing engagement therewith.

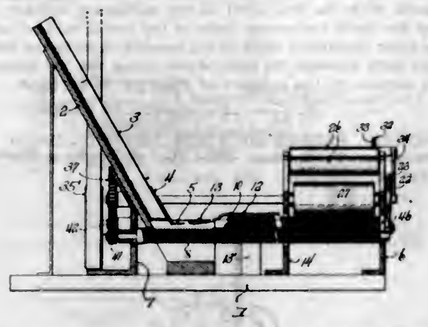
1,682,429. CIRCUIT-CONTROLLING MEANS. ARCHIBALD G. SHAVER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Regan Safety Devices Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 23, 1923. Serial No. 634,053. 17 Claims. (Cl. 200—97.)

2. In combination, a circuit controlling contact means movable between active and inactive positions, a mechanism movable between active and inactive positions, movement thereof from the inactive to the active position being effective for actuating the contact means to its active position, and an operating means also movable between active and inactive positions, movement thereof from the inactive to the active position being effective for operating the said mechanism to its active position, the said mechanism being associated with both the contact means and the operating means so that the mechanism is returnable from its active to its inactive position independently of the return of either the contact means or the operating means to their inactive positions.



1,682,430. ROTOR WINDING FOR ASYNCHRONOUS MOTORS WITHOUT STARTERS. CLAUDIUS SHENFER, Moscow, Russia. Filed Jan. 2, 1923, Serial No. 610,122, and in Germany Mar. 20, 1922. 2 Claims. (Cl. 172—274.)

1. A polyphase rotor for an asynchronous motor in which each phase comprises two approximately equal windings arranged and connected in such a manner that the said two windings of each phase oppose and magnetically balance each other, a winding and a portion of the other winding of each phase being also connected in series with an adjacent phase whereby each phase comprises a high ohmic resistance and an electro-motive force generated in a part only of one of said windings is effective in each phase.

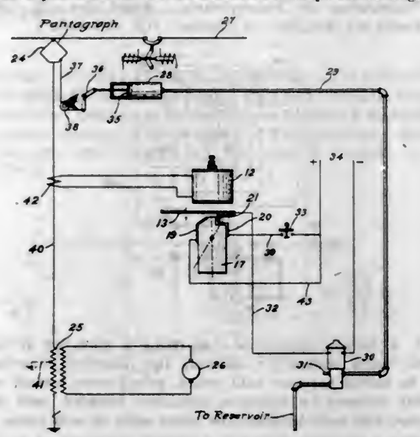
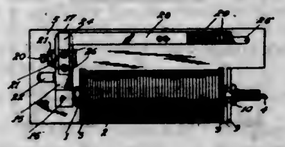
1,682,431. CHIP-FINISHING MACHINE. ANDREW SMITH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed July 23, 1925. Serial No. 45,615. 11 Claims. (Cl. 91—48.)



7. A chip finishing machine comprising a slanting hopper for receiving a stack of chips, an elongated screw positioned below the bottom edge of said hopper, a plate carried by said hopper adjacent its bottom end and below which said chips pass in a single manner, a guide positioned above said elongated screw, a pair of side screws adapted to engage the chips as they are fed by said elongated screw, a finger carried by said elongated screw for separating said chips and presenting them singly to said side screws, one of said side screws having an increase of pitch at one portion of its length to set said chips at an angle to their initial position, and an inking roller cooperating with said angularly set chips, said inking roller and said screws jointly rotating said chips whereby the peripheral edges of each of said chips are thoroughly inked by said inking roller.

8. A chip finishing machine comprising a hopper adapted to receive the chips, means for removing the chips from the hopper with the chips lying one upon the other while they are being removed, and means for thereafter turning said chips in a slanting position on edge, and an inking roller for inking the edge of the chips.



1,682,432. CONTROL APPARATUS. WALTER H. SMITH, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 16, 1926. Serial No. 135,980. 6 Claims. (Cl. 191—90.)

1. In control apparatus, in combination, a contact carrier disposed to be set in a plurality of positions, contact members mounted in spaced relation on the carrier, a movable armature associated with the carrier, a contact member provided on the armature and disposed to engage the carrier contact members, means for actuating the armature and means operated by the armature for setting the carrier.

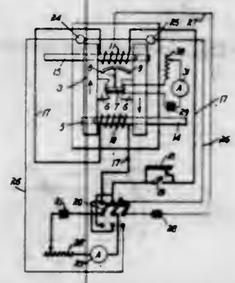
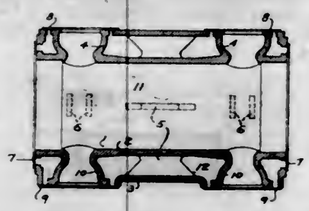
1,682,433. TELEPHONE APPARATUS. HENRY ROBERT SPENCER, Jamestown, N. Y., assignor to Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,024. 13 Claims. (Cl. 200—91.)



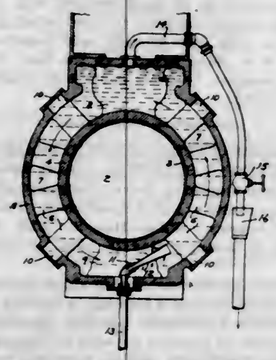
1. A device of the class described including a magnetizable core, a winding for said core, said core and winding forming a single mountable unit, a mounting bracket having an integrally formed ear, means for securing said unit to said ear, a pendulous armature having its one end reduced and its other end enlarged, means secured to said mounting bracket for pivotally supporting said armature at its reduced end and for positioning said enlarged end in a vertical plane parallel to the axis of said core and in operative position relative to one end of said magnetizabe core, said supporting means including an adjustable screw adapted to adjust the pivotal movement of the said armature and to be locked in its adjusted position, a contact spring secured to said armature, a contact spring secured to said bracket, and means for connecting operating current to the winding of said core to energize said core whereby said armature is pivotally moved in a plane parallel to the face of the core of said electromagnet, to effect contactual engagement of said contact springs.

1,682,434. MANUFACTURE OF CONDENSATION PRODUCTS CONTAINING SULPHUR. OSKAR SPENGLER and ALFRED THURM, Dessau in Anhalt, Germany, assignors to I. G. Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed May 3, 1926, Serial No. 106,551, and in Germany May 28, 1925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 260—2.)



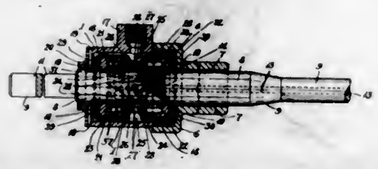
1. Manufacture of condensation products containing sulphur being tanning materials forming in the dry pulverized shape only slightly hygroscopic powders, dissolving in water, being obtained by reaction between an hydroxyaryl-carboxylic acid sulphochloride and an esterified hydroxyaryl compound.

1,682,435. MAGNETIC ANALYSIS OF DRILLS. THOMAS SPOONER, Edgewood Park, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 25, 1921. Serial No. 510,320. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)



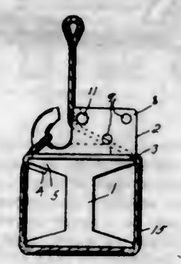
1. A testing apparatus comprising a plurality of magnetic yokes, means for allowing the insertion of articles to be tested between said yokes, pole pieces formed centrally thereon, a movable armature between said pole pieces, and coils between the outer ends of said yokes.

1,682,436. ENGINE CYLINDER. CARL G. SPRADO, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 19, 1926. Serial No. 123,585. 15 Claims. (Cl. 123—173.)



1. In an engine cylinder, inner and outer walls cooperating to form an intervening space, a valve pocket spanning said space, said pocket being rigidly attached to one of said walls and being free from direct connection with the other, and means rigidly connecting medial portions of said walls and formed to permit free relative longitudinal expansion of the end portions thereof.

1,682,437. CIRCULATING SYSTEM. CARL G. SPRADO, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 19, 1926. Serial No. 123,586. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—173.)

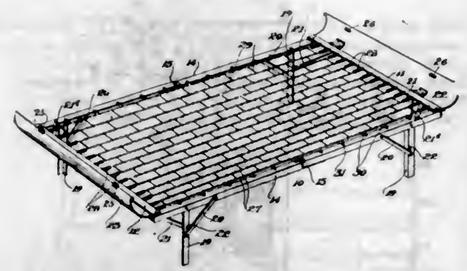


1. In combination, inner and outer walls spaced apart to provide a continuous annular jacket, means for admitting fluid to said jacket tangentially thereof and away from said inner wall, and means for controlling the quantity of fluid passing through said jacket.

1,682,438. MEANS FOR SUPPLYING WATER TO ROCK DRILLS AND THE LIKE. JAMES HENRY STUTHRIDGE and THOMAS MOXHAY HACK, Johannesburg, Transvaal, South Africa. Filed Mar. 24, 1927, Serial No. 177,966, and in the Union of South Africa May 25, 1926. 5 Claims. (Cl. 121—10.)

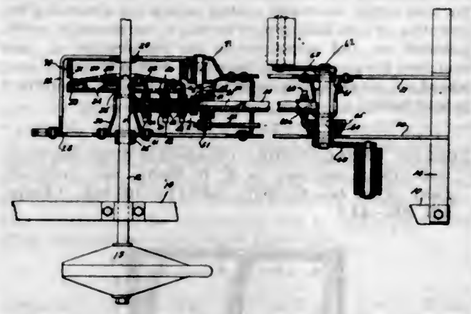
1. Means for supplying water to rock-drills, including an outer stationary member which provides a water space and through which member the drill steel passes, two oppositely disposed hydraulic packing rings arranged around the drill steel, and a casing which forms a housing for the packing rings, is loosely and completely housed in the stationary member, and is provided with passages through which the water can pass from the water space into the packing rings and to the drill steel, the packing rings and casing being rotatable with the drill steel in the stationary member, so that the outer transverse faces of the casing contact with the inner transverse faces of the housing to make the fluid-tight joint between the ends of the casing and the stationary member by the pressure of the fluid, as set forth.

1,682,439. SAFETY HOISTING DEVICE. DANIEL J. SULLIVAN, Tulsa, Okla. Filed Dec. 28, 1927. Serial No. 243,105. 1 Claim. (Cl. 294—74.)



A safety hoisting device consisting of a girder attaching member adapted for lifting the girder in horizontal plane at its center lines of gravity, said member comprising a bearing plate having rearwardly a guiding recess and forwardly a girder hooking flange provided with a guiding recess in line with the guiding recess in the hooking flange, a hook integral with the upper side of said plate and in line with said guiding recesses, spaced apart vertical lugs integral with the upper side of said plate and aligned with the sides of said recesses and said hook and having a plurality of oppositely disposed registering bolt holes selectively arranged therein, a roller interchangeably arranged between said lugs with respect to the holes therein, and a flexible cable sling having loop engaged by said hook and adapted to extend therefrom through said guiding recesses and on the lower side of said roller and upwardly from the latter above the device.

1,682,440. AUTO CAMP BED. WILLIS A. SUTFIN, Marysville, Calif. Filed Feb. 14, 1925. Serial No. 9,124. 1 Claim. (Cl. 5—112.)



A bed frame including end rails, side rails pivoted at their ends to the end rails, legs pivoted to the side rails and foldably thereagainst, said side rails each being formed of two sections of different lengths detachably connected at their adjacent ends whereby their sections may be folded parallel to the end rails and nested therein, a concave head board hinged to one end rail, a concave foot board detachably connected to the other end rail whereby the foot board may be removed and the frame collapsed within the head board, and latch means for connecting the foot board to the head board to form a case for the collapsed frame.

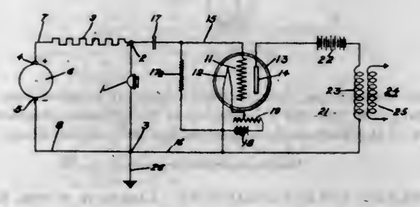
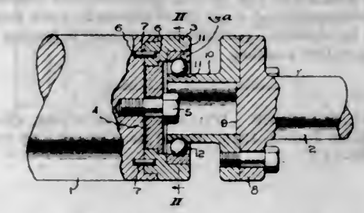
1,682,441. TRANSMISSION. ALEX TAUB, Detroit, Mich. Filed June 5, 1926. Serial No. 113,919. 4 Claims. (Cl. 208—154.)



1. Driving mechanism for a toy vehicle consisting of a pedal driven lateral shaft, a longitudinal shaft, a face gear fixed on said lateral shaft meshing with a spur gear fixed to the longitudinal shaft, a plurality of other spur gears identical with the first mentioned one and loosely mounted on said longitudinal shaft, a driving axle for the vehicle, a compound face gear meshing with said plurality of spur gears and secured to said driving axle, and means for fixing at will to said longitudinal shaft a selected one of said plurality of spur gears.

1,682,442. PIVOT RETAINER. EDWARD G. THOMAS, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to Toledo Scale Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 2, 1925. Serial No. 53,968. 4 Claims. (Cl. 308—2.)

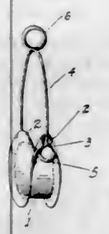


1. In a device of the character described, in combination, a lever having an opening, the walls of said opening being non-parallel, a pivot bar inserted in said opening, and means including a cylindrical member having a progressively deepened channel therein adapted to co-operate with the pivot bar and the walls of said opening for wedgingly retaining said pivot in place.

1,682,443. RESISTANCE MICROPHONE AND METHOD OF OPERATING THE SAME. PHILLIPS THOMAS, Edgewood, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 16, 1922. Serial No. 568,689. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—1.)

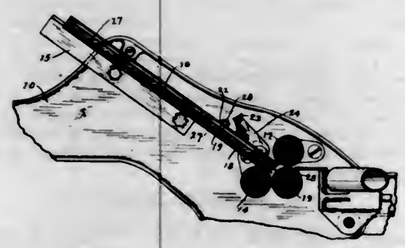
1. In an electrical system, a circuit comprising a resistance microphone, a resistor and means for supplying said microphone with normal energizing currents, said resistor being of such value as to cause the current flow in said circuit to remain substantially constant, independent of variations in the resistance of said microphone incident to the presence of disturbing impulses, a thermionic device having grid, filament and plate elements, conductors connecting said grid and filament elements to opposite sides of said microphone, a condenser connected in one of said leads having a negligibly low reactance to currents of the lowest frequency to which said microphone is intended to respond, and a grid-leak circuit connected in shunt to said grid and filament elements.

1,682,444. FLEXIBLE COUPLING. WILLIAM E. TRUMPLER, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 28, 1924. Serial No. 716,832. 7 Claims. (Cl. 64—91.)



1. A flexible coupling comprising a pair of shaft members in coaxial alinement, a ring member secured to one of said shafts, a yieldable sleeve secured to the other of said shafts, and a plurality of balls interposed between said ring and sleeve to co-operatively engage the same.

1,682,445. TREE-SUPPORTING YOKE. JESSE D. TUCKER, Sacramento, and FRED C. OLDHAM, Yuba City, Calif.; said Jesse D. Tucker assignor to Tucker Brothers Manufacturing Company, a Copartnership of Sacramento, Calif. Filed Mar. 7, 1927. Serial No. 173,333. 1 Claim. (Cl. 47—42.)



A tree supporting element including a two piece sling, one piece being a semi-circular channel shaped yoke, the sides of the channel being pinched together at their ends to form eyes each having a slot in the side periphery thereof, the other piece of the sling comprising a substantially U-shaped resilient member having locking heads on its free ends whereby the sides of the U-shaped member may be sprung into the eyes and the heads will prevent disassociation of the parts with a longitudinal pull on the sling.

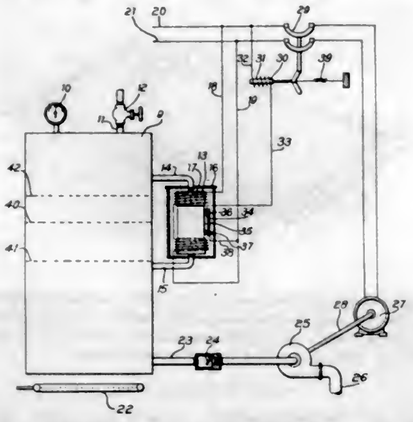
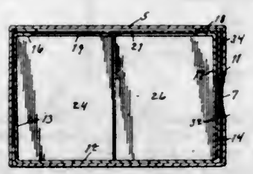
1,682,446. FOLDING MACHINE. LESLEY R. TUFTS, East Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Cleveland Folding Machine Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 23, 1926. Serial No. 137,252. 6 Claims. (Cl. 270—68.)



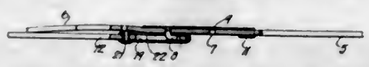
1. In folding machines, the combination of a frame, an adjustable fold plate, feeding and folding means operatively associated therewith, a deflecting member mounted on said fold plate and having operative and inoperative positions thereon, and stops for definitely locating said fold plate in its operative position or with said deflecting plate in its operative position.

1,682,447. CLIPPER. WILLIAM J. VAN OSDEL, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 3, 1926. Serial No. 113,412. 26 Claims. (Cl. 30—1.)



1. A device of the character described embodying a support, a reciprocable blade mounted on the support, means for reciprocating the blade comprising an electromagnet and an armature adapted to be actuated thereby, a resilient member connected with said blade, and a pin and slot connection between the armature and said resilient member.

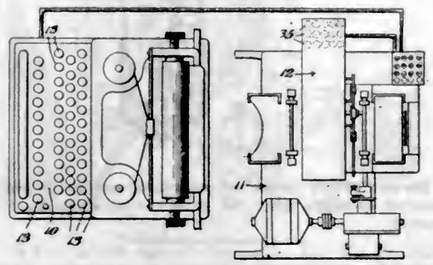
1,682,448. CONTROL SYSTEM. VICTOR G. VAUGHAN, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 16, 1926. Serial No. 116,499. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—38.)



1. In a heating plant, a boiler, a container having communication at its top and bottom with said boiler, means for electrically heating said container, fluid supply means for said boiler, electrical control means for governing the operation of said fluid supply means, a thermostatic switch mounted on, and responsive to the temperature of, said container for governing the operation of said control means, whereby a substantially constant fluid level is maintained in said boiler.

1,682,449. DISPLAY BOX. CLARENCE D. VEST, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to A. B. Smith, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Jan. 31, 1927. Serial No. 164,905. 1 Claim. (Cl. 206—44.)

A display box of the character described, comprising a blank so folded as to form a bottom, sides and ends of a box, a top formed integral with said blank, said top having a window formed therein, an auxiliary side formed integral with said blank, said auxiliary side having openings and adapted to coincide with similar openings formed in one of said first mentioned sides, a transparent material interposed between said auxiliary side and in said butting side portion, said transparent material being folded over and upon said top portion, an auxiliary top portion formed integral with said blank and adapted to be folded upon said top portion in such a manner as to overlie said transparent material.



1,682,450. BELT BUCKLE. CURT K. WANNINGER and HERBERT HOFMANN, Bronxville, N. Y. Filed May 26, 1927. Serial No. 194,484. 7 Claims. (Cl. 24—77.)

1. The combination with one end of a belt having an elongated opening therein, of a doubled eye plate fitting over the end of the belt and secured thereto, the plate having elongated openings in one side thereof arranged to correspond with the belt end opening, a buckle on the opposite end of the belt and a hook on the buckle arranged to selectively engage the eye plate openings.

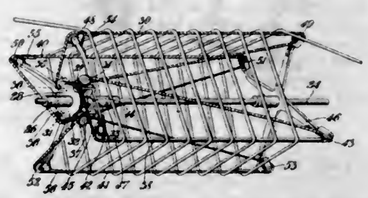
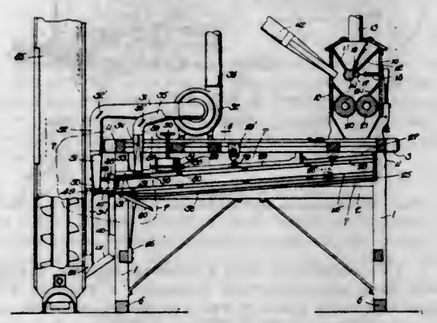
1,682,451. TYPEWRITER-KEY PUNCH. ALFRED WEILAND, Neshanic, N. J., HAROLD R. RUSSELL, Douglaston, N. Y., and CHARLES A. MEZGER, New Brunswick, N. J., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Remington Rand Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 13, 1924. Serial No. 749,647. 8 Claims. (Cl. 164—113.)



8. In a mechanism of the character stated, the combination of a typewriter and a perforating machine comprising a plurality of rows of punch set-up devices fixedly mounted against lateral movement on the machine, a punch selecting mechanism laterally shiftable over said set-up devices from row to row for operating said set-up devices, and means for operating said set-up devices singly for certain characters written on the typewriter and in combination for other characters written on the typewriter.

1,682,452. AUTOMATIC SUBSTATION. ROY J. WENSLEY, Edgewood, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 23, 1924. Serial No. 739,262. 27 Claims. (Cl. 171—118.)



1. In an electrical system, the combination with two circuits, a rotating translating device, and automatic means for starting and operating the translating device from one of the circuits and for connecting the other circuit to the translating device to receive energy therefrom, of automatic means operative in response to predetermined conditions for starting and operating the translating device from the second-mentioned circuit and for connecting the first-mentioned circuit to the translating device to receive energy therefrom.

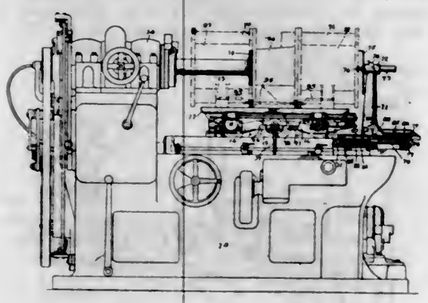
1,682,453. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR TREATING FABRICS. ARPAD WILLHEIM, Passaic, N. J. Filed May 18, 1927. Serial No. 192,233. 27 Claims. (Cl. 8—19.)

1. The process which comprises subjecting a fabric to treatment by a fluid while feeding the fabric in rope form spirally through the same while giving the fabric a movement laterally and at right angles to the axis of the spiral relative to the fluid.

1,682,454. COFFEE-CUTTING MACHINE. WILLIAM M. WILLIAMS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to B. F. Gump Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 26, 1922. Serial No. 570,823. 15 Claims. (Cl. 83—12.)

1. In a coffee cutting machine, means for cutting the beans into granular pieces, aspirating means for removing the chaff, grading means, means including a conveyor for returning granular pieces of a predetermined size from the grading means to the cutting means, and means for sifting the granular pieces.

1,682,455. HAIR-WAVING DEVICE. MARY RUTH HARTIENS WILSON, Alexandria, La. Filed Nov. 16, 1927. Serial No. 233,703. 2 Claims. (Cl. 132—32.)



1. A device for imparting Marcel waves to the hair of a person, comprising a metal cap made up of loosely hinged sections shaped to correspond to the shape of the head of the user, corrugated longitudinally and apertured, said metal cap having its edges flanged and its rear flange provided with spaced apertures in a line with the outwardly bulged portions of the corrugations, pins arranged in connected series and designed to be passed through the outwardly bulged portions of the corrugations and to have one of their ends received through the apertures in the said flange and said pins, adjacent to their connected ends, being bent to engage with the outer flange of the cap.

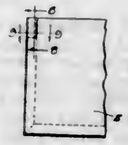
1,682,456. WORK SUPPORT. HENRY H. YERK and WILLIAM J. BAUMBERGER, Davenport, Iowa, assignors to Micro Machine Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Mar. 12, 1925. Serial No. 15,050. 11 Claims. (Cl. 51—90.)

1. The combination with a grinding machine having a table fixed against vertical movement, a grinding wheel spindle rotatable about its own axis and in an orbital path about an axis eccentric to its own, and means for causing relative reciprocation between said table and spindle longitudinally of said spindle, of means for disposing a cylinder in cooperative relation to said grinding wheel spindle comprising a platform supported on said table and arranged to carry said cylinder, means for rotating said platform, and means for moving said platform vertically and maintain said platform in desired vertical position during a grinding operation, whereby to dispose said cylinder in desired relation to said spindle.



1,682,457. METHOD OF MAKING RESISTANCE DEVICES. VLADIMIR K. ZWORYKIN, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 2, 1926. Serial No. 133,140. 2 Claims. (Cl. 201—63.)

2. The method of making a high-resistance device which comprises the steps of providing an insulating carrier, causing the evaporation of conductive material from a source thereof, applying a negative potential to the carrier with reference to the source, causing the vaporized material to deposit on the carrier, passing a current through the material deposited on the carrier and stopping the vaporization at the point where the current passing through the deposited material indicates that the proper resistance has been reached.

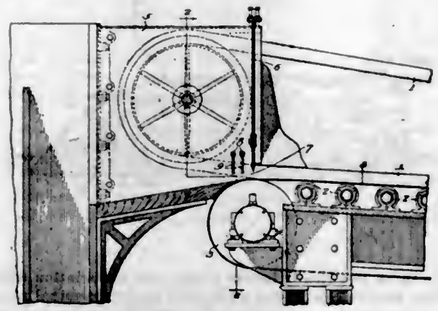
1,682,458. ENVELOPE. EUGENE F. AHLQUIST, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Dec. 27, 1924. Serial No. 758,354. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—68.)

1. An envelope comprising a front portion and a back portion, connecting pieces at the ends connecting the front and back portions together, said connecting pieces each having a portion which extends parallel with the back portion of the envelope and which is continuous, said back portion at the edge having two sections bent out of alignment, one section attached to the outer portion of the connecting piece, and the other section attached to the inner portion of the connecting piece.



1,682,459. REAMER-GRINDING MACHINE. FRANS O. ALBERTSON, Sioux City, Iowa, assignor to Albertson & Company, Inc., Sioux City, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed June 30, 1926. Serial No. 119,552. 3 Claims. (Cl. 51—240.)

1. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a mounting plate, a pair of parallel spaced cylindrical ways secured thereto, a carriage slidable over said ways, and means for securing said carriage to said ways comprising a clamp having a pair of upwardly extending lugs adapted to fit a downwardly projecting lug on said carriage, a shaft passing through said clamp lugs and rotatable therein, and a cap screw seated in said carriage and threaded diametrically through said shaft whereby said clamping member may be drawn toward said carriage, said shaft forming an equalizing means to distribute the clamping force between said ways.

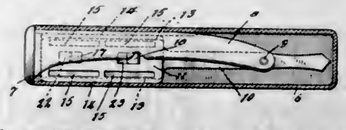
1,682,460. MECHANISM FOR UNIFORMLY INTERWEAVING FIBERS. ALONZO ALDRICH, Beloit, Wis. Filed Nov. 11, 1922. Serial No. 600,209. 11 Claims. (Cl. 92—44.)

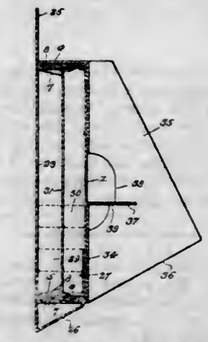
1. A Fourdrinier machine having its feed box provided with mechanism located within the feed box near the outlet thereof, for causing a lateral or transverse shifting agitation of the pulp to improve the paper formation, said mechanism comprising a plurality of agitating devices and means for actuating the same independently.

1,682,461. FREQUENCY REGULATOR. GEORGE Y. ALLEN, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 5, 1923. Serial No. 672,709. 8 Claims. (Cl. 175—355.)



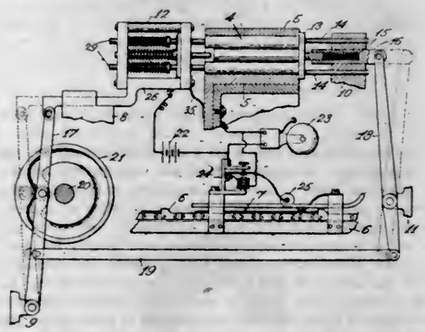
3. In a frequency-controlling system, a prime mover, a speed governor therefor, a spring controlling the normal position of said governor, a motor, means actuated by said motor for adjusting said spring, and frequency-controlled devices responsive to the speed of the prime mover and governing said motor.

5. In a frequency-controlling system, an alternating-current line, a high-frequency source actuated in accordance with the frequency in said line, a circuit, means acting in response to the difference between said high frequency and a standard high frequency for controlling the conductivity of said circuit, and means in said circuit for controlling the frequency in said alternating-current line.



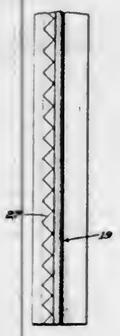
7. In combination, an alternating-current line, a frequency-regulating system therefor, including a tuned circuit, a clock, and means controlled jointly by the clock and the frequency in said line for regulating the tuning of said circuit.

1,682,462. SAFETY RAZOR. FERNANDO A. ALVARADO, New York, N. Y., assignor to Durham Duplex Razor Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 5, 1927. Serial No. 166,088. 7 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)



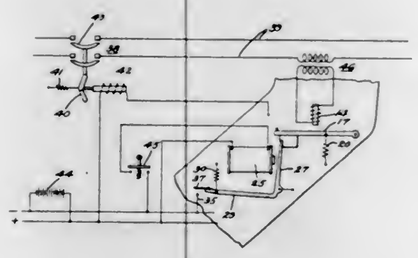
1. The combination with a razor blade having a cutting edge and two rectangular apertures spaced from said edge, of a rigid guard having a perforated zone behind said edge for escape of lather, said guard also having two rectangular apertures behind said zone one of which registers with one blade aperture and the other of which overlaps the other blade aperture, and a clamp having two flat offset lugs passing through said apertures and engaging said guard to clamp said blade thereto.

1,682,463. COMBINATION DISPLAY AND SHIPMENT BOX. CHARLES R. ANDERSON, Sidney, Ohio. Filed July 5, 1927. Serial No. 203,339. 8 Claims. (Cl. 206—44.)



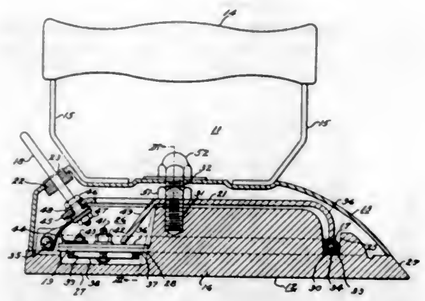
2. A combination display and shipment box including a back, side and end walls and a front wall having a bottom extension arranged in the plane of the front wall and provided with an inclined flap arranged at an angle to the lower end wall of the box and provided with a tongue extending interiorly of the box and secured to the same.

1,682,464. PACKAGE INSPECTION. CHARLES ARELT and JOHN JACKSON, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to American Machine & Foundry Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 29, 1927. Serial No. 187,685. 10 Claims. (Cl. 93—2.)



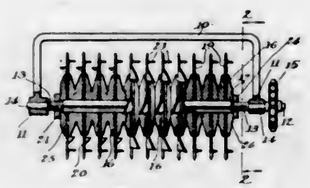
1. The combination with supporting means for assemblages of articles and for wrappers in which said assemblages are to be located, of detecting means for finding defects in any article in said assemblages, and marking means for defacing the wrapper for defective asssemblages.

1,682,465. WELTING. EDWARD W. ARNOLD, North Abington, Mass. Filed Dec. 17, 1927. Serial No. 240,717. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—78.)



1. As an article of manufacture, welting for use in making welt shoes comprising a leather strip having flesh and grain faces and a slit incised through the grain face and extending toward the inner edge of the strip thereby forming a longitudinal feather, a filler having a portion of its width between the feather and the body of the strip, and a zig-zag line of stitching extending through the feather, filler and the body of the strip.

1,682,466. CONTROL APPARATUS. BASCUM O. AUSTIN, East Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 23, 1925. Serial No. 38,982. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)

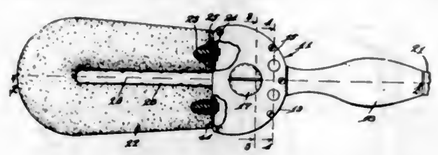


1. An overload trip device for an alternating-current circuit comprising, in combination, an alternating current relay provided with a movable armature, said relay being adapted to actuate the armature upon the flow of a predetermined current in said circuit, a direct-current relay provided with a spring-biased armature and means for energizing the direct-current relay to actuate its armature against the action of the spring, said armatures being disposed to engage one another, said spring-biased armature being disposed to dampen the movements of the alternating-current relay armature when the direct-current relay is deenergized, the alternating-current relay armature being provided with a notch to receive the spring-biased armature to effect the locking of one of the armatures in a predetermined position.

1,682,467. ELECTRIC IRON. CHRISTIAN B. BACKER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 16, 1926. Serial No. 116,268. 7 Claims. (Cl. 219—25.)

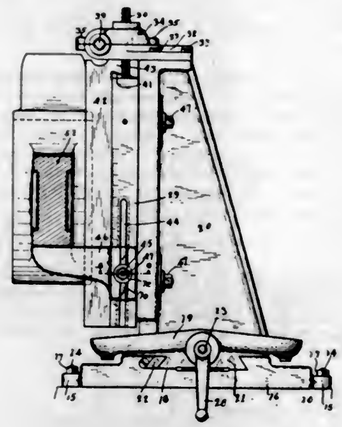
1. In an electrically heated device, the combination with a body portion comprising a heating element, terminal pins, and a thermally-actuable control switch, of a single member for supporting the terminal pins and for directly engaging the switch to hold it in proper operative position.

1,682,468. PULVERIZER-DISK CONSTRUCTION. THOMAS J. BARNES, Azusa, Calif. Filed Nov. 5, 1925. Serial No. 66,996. Renewed June 27, 1928. 2 Claims. (Cl. 97—220.)



1. A pulverizer disc construction having a squared shaft between its end portions and screw threaded just outside of the square portion, a plurality of diabolo-shaped spacing members having squared central openings fitting upon the square portion of the shaft, the confronting faces of each spacing member being substantially flat, there being projecting pins upon the flat face of one part of each spacing member, discs constructed of sheet metal in segments fitting between the flat faces of the spacing members and having perforations therethrough to receive the pins, and jamb nuts upon the screw threaded portions of the shaft.

1,682,469. [WITHDRAWN.]



1,682,470. FOUNTAIN SOAP BRUSH. FRED H. BASSETT, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed June 29, 1927. Serial No. 202,234. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—129.)

1. In the art described, the combination of a brush, a soap container having a water inlet from a source of supply and an outlet to the brush, a valve casing in the container having a pair of valves, said casing being connected to the water inlet, one of said valves controlling the flow of water from the inlet into the container, and a by-pass from the valve casing in the container to the outlet, the other valve controlling the by-pass.

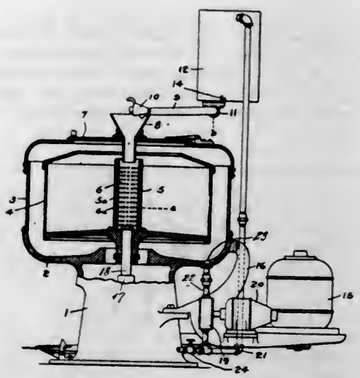
1,682,471. WORK SUPPORT. WILLIAM J. BAUMBERGER, Davenport, Iowa, assignor to Micro Machine Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed July 31, 1925. Serial No. 47,225. 7 Claims. (Cl. 51—217.)

1. In a grinding machine fixture, the combination of a supporting frame, a mounting plate carried by said frame, said plate extending in a vertical plane and having undercut slots in the ends thereof, a bracket extending transversely from the face of said plate for supporting one end of a piece of work, said bracket having a rib engaging within the slot in said plate, and means for securing said bracket rigidly with said plate in desired vertical position.



1,682,472. WORK-ADJUSTING MEANS. WILLIAM J. BAUMBERGER and HENRY H. YERK, Davenport, Iowa, assignors to Micro Machine Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Apr. 26, 1926. Serial No. 104,559. 11 Claims. (Cl. 51—90.)

1. The combination with a grinding machine having a carrier bed, a grinding wheel spindle rotatable about its own axis and in an orbital path about an axis eccentric to its own, and means for causing relative reciprocation between said carrier bed and spindle longitudinally of said spindle, of means for disposing work having a cylinder to be ground in desired cooperative relation to said grinding wheel spindle, said means comprising a work supporting table mounted on said carrier bed and arranged to carry said work, pivotal supporting means for swinging said table in a horizontal plane to predetermined desired rotative positions, means for adjusting said table in a horizontal plane transversely of the grinding wheel spindle, independent means mounted on said work supporting table adjacent opposed sides of work to adjust the work laterally on said table, and independent adjustable means on said table to individually vertically adjust at least three spaced portions of said work with respect to said table.

1,682,473. CENTRIFUGAL MACHINE. JOHN W. BERCAW, Hamilton, Ohio, assignor to The American Laundry Machinery Company, Norwood, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 9, 1921. Serial No. 514,055. 3 Claims. (Cl. 210—67.)

1. A device of the character described comprising a container for the work to be treated, a smaller foraminous distributing container centrally mounted within said work container and of a height corresponding to the depth of the outer work container, means for rotating said inner container as the outer one rotates, and means for uniformly varying the foraminous characteristic of said distributing member thereby producing uniform radial discharge of the treating medium throughout the height of the batch.

1,682,474. DECORATIVE EMBROIDERY. ARTHUR BERGMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Trusogram Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 28, 1927. Serial No. 194,928. 6 Claims. (Cl. 2—278.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a decorative embroidery design having a central embroidered portion and a separately formed portion at the margin and closely following the contour of the central embroidered portion and providing means to be stitched to a piece to be decorated for attaching the embroidery design thereto.

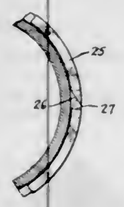
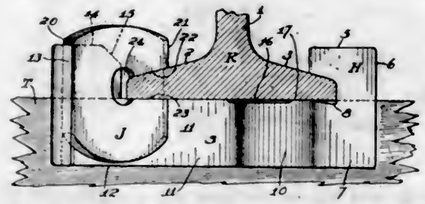
1,682,475. MANICURING IMPLEMENT. AUGUST E. R. BLOMQUIST, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed Sept. 20, 1926. Serial No. 136,474. 8 Claims. (Cl. 132—74.)



1. A power driven manicuring instrument comprising a stock having a longitudinal bore, a mandrel journaled within said bore, a grinding disk secured to one end of the mandrel, the stock having a crown portion which surrounds the disk, and a guard projecting from one edge of the crown portion beyond the nail engaging surface of the disk and designed to project between the underside of the nail and the adjacent portion of the finger.

1,682,476. LIGHTNING ARRESTER. EDGAR W. BREISCH, Edgewood, and FRANK B. FALKNOR, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 555,325. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—30.)

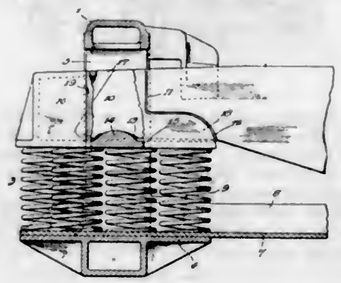


1. An outdoor lightning arrester adapted to be substantially unaffected by exposure to the weather and comprising a plurality of exposed spherical electrodes of porous porcelain compounded with carbonaceous material.

1,682,477. PISTON RING OR ASSEMBLY. CARL P. BROCKWAY, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to Industrial Research Corporation, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 27, 1922. Serial No. 577,842. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—109.)

1. A piston ring for pistons of internal combustion engines, comprising a split ring adapted to be placed in a ring retaining groove of said piston, each of the ends of said ring having a bevelled surface and a non-bevelled surface, the bevelled surface of one terminating adjacent the non-bevelled surface of the other end and forming a cavity therewith.

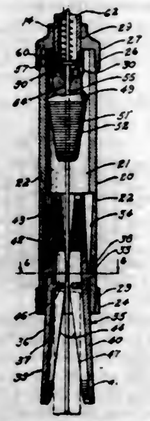
1,682,478. RAIL ANCHOR. JOSHUA TWING BROOKS, Edgeworth, and EDMUND A. SKOWRON, Pittsburgh, Pa., said Skowron assignor to said Brooks. Filed Mar. 7, 1928. Serial No. 259,653. 19 Claims. (Cl. 238—329.)



1. A two-piece rail anchor comprising a plate spring member having a vertical hook at one end adapted to engage one edge of the rail base and a lateral hook at the other end, a jaw member adapted to seat in said lateral hook to preliminarily engage the edge of the rail base and then to be driven into locked engagement with the rail by distorting the first member.

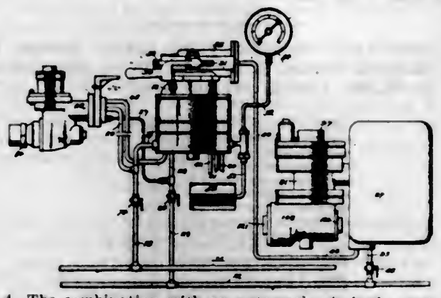
1,682,479. DOLOMITE CEMENT AND PROCESS OF PRODUCING THE SAME. FREDERICK W. BROWN, Columbus, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Gideon R. Austin, Bellefontaine, Ohio. Filed Nov. 10, 1924. Serial No. 749,060. 4 Claims. (Cl. 106—29.)

1. The herein described process which comprises heating dolomite substantially free from iron and silica by a rapid rise in temperature to substantially 1400° F., continuing to heat the dolomite to a temperature approximating 1600° F., for a period sufficient to calcine and hold the magnesium oxide content in combination with, yet insufficient to calcine the calcium content, and dyeing the resulting product in a water bath.



1,682,480. CAR TRUCK. SAMUEL PRESCOTT BUSH and JACOB CHRISTIAN LARSEN, Columbus, Ohio, assignors to The Buckeye Steel Castings Company, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Sept. 3, 1925. Serial No. 54,299. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—197.)

1. In a car truck, the combination of a side frame having an opening therethrough, the floor of the opening being laterally expanded and constituting a spring seat, a spring plank having its end resting on the spring seat, side flanges on the spring plank terminating at and abutting the side side frame, spring resting on the spring plank, projections on the side frame bearing against the flanges on the spring plank, a bolster having its end extending into the side frame over the springs, and an equalizer between the bolster and the springs.



1,682,481. GRAB FOR USE IN WELLS. JOHN A. CADY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 3, 1926. Serial No. 126,820. 4 Claims. (Cl. 294—116.)

1. A grab comprising: a tubing; grab members; means carried at the lower end of said tubing for supporting said grab members; an engager attached directly to said tubing and being adapted to engage said grab members, thus causing them to grab a lost part, said lost part being lifted by means of said tubing, said engager, and said grab members; and a wash pipe extending from said tubing through said engager and inside said grab members.

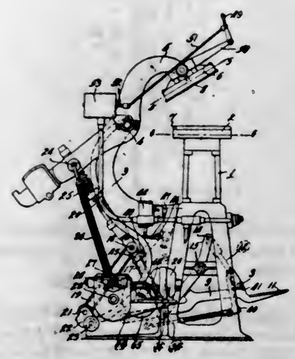
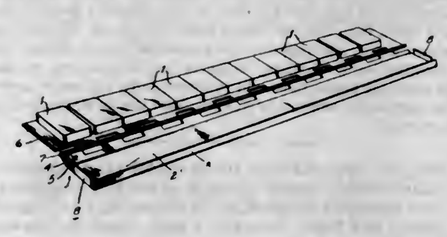
1,682,482. AIR BRAKE. CHARLES ALBERT CAMPBELL, Watertown, N. Y., assignor to The New York Air Brake Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 1, 1926. Serial No. 119,956. 13 Claims. (Cl. 303—66.)



4. The combination with an automatic air brake system including a brake pipe and an engineer's brake valve having a brake pipe feeding function in one or more positions and an emergency application position in which said feeding function is suspended, of means operable by an emergency reduction of brake pipe pressure arranged when operated to shift said engineer's brake valve to emergency application position.

1,682,483. PADDING. EMIL J. CARROLL, Norwood, Ohio, assignor to The American Laundry Machinery Company, Norwood Station, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 6, 1924. Serial No. 718,318. 2 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

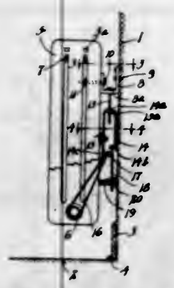


1. In an ironing machine, an ironing member provided with a padding formed of separate parts joined to each other and each made of a cork material, the joints between said parts being filled with cured material so as to seal the same.

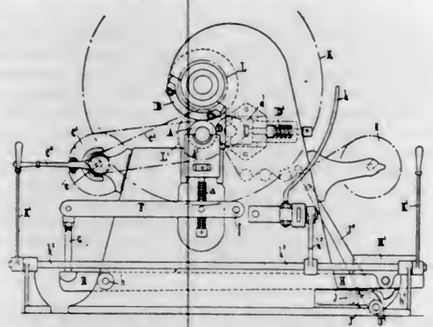
1,682,484. ELECTRIC GARMENT PRESS. EMIL J. CARROLL, Norwood, Ohio, assignor to The American Laundry Machinery Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Original application filed July 31, 1922, Serial No. 578,702. Divided and this application filed Feb. 20, 1926. Serial No. 89,805. 2 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

1. A garment press, comprising relatively movable pressing members, electric motor means for operating said pressing members, circuits and controlling switch means for said motor means effective to cause the same to move the pressing members through two half cycles, one to bring them to rest in full pressure position, and the other to bring them to rest in release or open position, and additional control means for the circuits of said motor means effective to cause the same to move the pressing members continuously through a full cycle from release position to full pressure position and then back to release position, said additional control means being adapted to control said controlling switch means for said motor means so as to cause said pressing members to move according to either plan.

1,682,485. GAME-PIECE SUPPORT AND PROCESS OF USING THE SAME. WILLIAM L. M. CLARK, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Oct. 17, 1927. Serial No. 226,655. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—150.)



A game piece support comprising a plain strip adapted to receive game pieces and a strip having a flange along its edge and having an angularly disposed portion hinged to said plain strip whereby said flanged strip is foldable on said plain strip with its flange overhanging said game pieces to hold them in position on said plain strip and when said flanged strip is placed inclined on edge and said plain strip unfolded, the pieces are supported on said flanged strip with their opposite faces exposed.



1,682,486. RADIATOR HANGER. JAMES J. CONROY, St. Paul, Minn. Filed May 29, 1924. Serial No. 716,673. 5 Claims. (Cl. 248—17.)

1. A device adapted to support a radiator having in combination, a bracket adapted to be secured to a wall, means adapted to secure said bracket to the upper portion of the radiator, a member carried by said bracket, means for positioning and holding said member in different vertical and lateral positions, and a flexible means carried by said member adapted to extend outwardly and downwardly from said member and about the lower portion of the radiator for supporting the same.

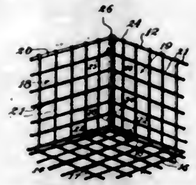
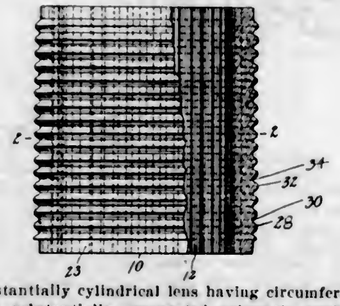
1,682,487. MACHINE FOR FINISHING TEXTILE FABRICS. ARTHUR CROMPTON, Manchester, England. Filed Feb. 24, 1927, Serial No. 170,725, and in Great Britain Mar. 11, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 101—23.)



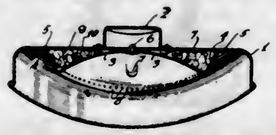
1. A machine for the production of ornamental finishes on textile fabrics comprising the combination with an embossing roller having a pattern thereon of a second heated roller having a polished surface and driven at a greater surface speed than the embossing roller, means for heating the second roller, bearings for the embossing roller, screws for adjusting said bearings, supports for the screws, means for applying pressure to said supports and a nip roller pressing against the embossing roller to hold the fabric in contact therewith.

1,682,488. EQUALIZING MECHANISM FOR PRESSING MACHINES. ERNEST DAVIS, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to The Prosperity Company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 3, 1927. Serial No. 158,492. 10 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



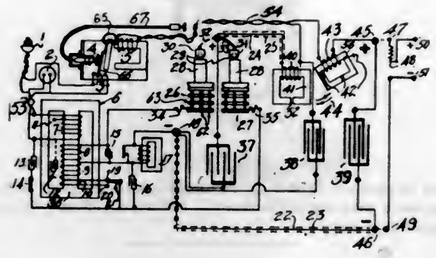
1. A pressing machine comprising coacting pressing elements, one movable toward and from the other, one of said elements comprising a plurality of members movable relatively to each other when unequal pressure is applied thereto by the other pressing element and equalizing mechanism to support said members and transfer the differential movement of either member to the other.

1,682,489. FOLDING CRATE. TITUS D. DERSHIMER, Clarks Summit, Pa. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,606. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—7.)



A receptacle comprising a bottom, side and end walls, each including an open bordering frame of rod metal and interwoven wires carried thereby, rings loosely connecting the bordering frames of said walls with the frame of said bottom and mounting the walls for swinging movement from an upright position to a folded position against the bottom, rings loosely carried by the frames of said walls at their ends and adapted to extend inwardly therefrom in vertical alinement when the walls are upright, and pins removably engaged in the last-mentioned rings to releasably retain the walls elevated, said pins each consisting of a rod straight throughout its length and at its upper end bent to form a head disposed above the walls whereby the pin may be gripped and slid longitudinally into and out of the rings at the ends of the walls.

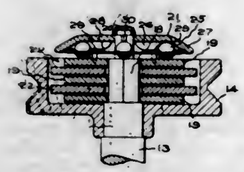
1,682,490. FRESNEL-TYPE LENS. SIGMUND B. DRESSLER, Newark, N. J. Filed Oct. 3, 1925. Serial No. 60,236. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—106.)



A substantially cylindrical lens having circumferentially arranged substantially corrugated prismatic surfaces on its outer face comprising ribs with rounded apices and grooves with rounded bases arranged between the ribs, and similar prismatic surfaces on its inner face arranged substantially parallel to the cylinder axis and at right angles to the prismatic surfaces on its outer face.

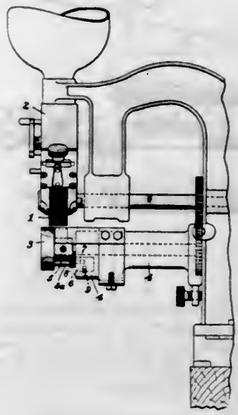
1,682,491. SANITARY COVER FOR GARBAGE CANS. WALTER J. EGAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 751,733. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—87.)

An imperforate cover for garbage cans and other containers provided on its under side with a perforated casing, means for securing the center of the casing to the center of the cover with the center of the casing in face abutting relation to the center of the cover to form with the cover an annular chamber, said casing being under sufficient tension to maintain the periphery of the casing in engagement with the under side of the cover, and absorbent means positioned in such chamber for the purpose of retaining a disinfectant.



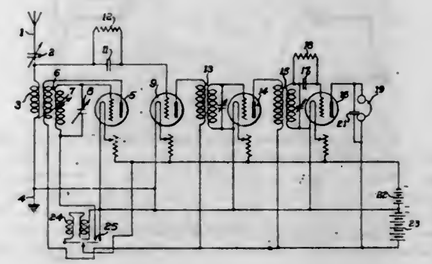
1,682,492. RADIO BATTERY ELIMINATOR. PHILIP E. EDELMAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 17, 1927. Serial No. 192,070. 8 Claims. (Cl. 175—363.)

1. In a radio battery eliminator, a filter circuit including a filter condenser having piezo-electric properties substantially dimensioned to draw energy from said circuit at low frequency for which same is proportioned.



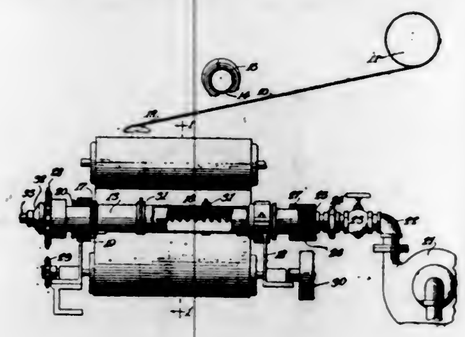
3. In a radio battery eliminator, a filter circuit including two choke coils having separate cores so placed that the mutual coupling between said coils causes ripple current flowing in one of said coils to be substantially opposed by electromagnetically induced ripple current supplied by the other of said two coils, and a by-pass condenser connected at the junction of said two coils.

1,682,493. CLUTCH. RALPH EHRENFELD, East Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 27, 1926. Serial No. 111,933. 4 Claims. (Cl. 192—105.)



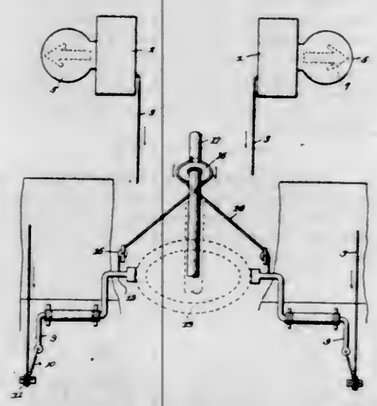
1. In a clutch, in combination, a plurality of interfitting clutch plates adapted to engage one another, ball members carried by one of the clutch plates and disposed to move outwardly under the action of centrifugal force, means cooperative with the ball members to effect engagement of the clutch plates as the balls move outwardly and a spring ring embodying alternate yielding and non-yielding portions and mounted on one of said clutch plates for preventing the outward movement of the ball members until the clutch plate rotates at a predetermined speed.

1,682,494. CEMENT-APPLYING MACHINE. HOWARD G. ELLIS, Waltham, and HERBERT A. MATHIS, Watertown, Mass., assignors to Hood Rubber Company, Watertown, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 12, 1927. Serial No. 183,124. 3 Claims. (Cl. 91—50.)



1. In a cementing machine having a cement applying roller and a juxtaposed work supporting roller and a fixed frame part adjacent said supporting roller, said frame part having a cylindric recess the axis of which is parallel to the axis of said supporting roller, a cylindric block seated in said recess and having an eccentrically located recess, a pin or shaft having one end seated in said eccentrically located recess, a take up roller carried by said pin or shaft and having its periphery located in close proximity to said supporting roller, and means for locking said cylindric block in its holding recess.

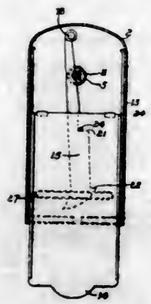
1,682,495. SUPERHETERODYNE RECEIVER. FRANK B. FALKNOR, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 29, 1923. Serial No. 683,356. 9 Claims. (Cl. 250—8.)



1. In a signalling system, means for producing signals of radio frequency, a receiving apparatus, including a heterodyne generator and producing from said signals corresponding signals of a frequency lower but above audibility, and means controlling the amplitude of the output of said heterodyne generator for producing audio-frequency modulations of said lower-frequency signals.

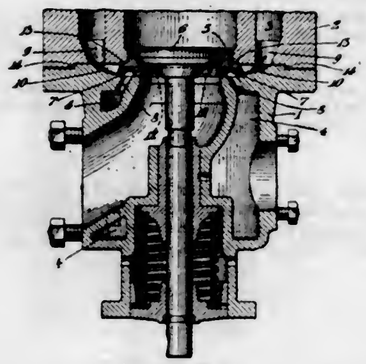
1,682,496. FELT WASHER. WILLIAM P. FEENEY, Cheboygan, Mich. Filed July 22, 1927. Serial No. 207,596. 12 Claims. (Cl. 92—50.)

1. A device of the class described comprising a stationary member having a longitudinal slot, a member adapted to be moved past said slot, said member having apertures extending therethrough, and means for forcing a fluid through the slot and apertures during the period of their registration.



1,682,497. SIGNALING DEVICE FOR MOTOR CARS AND THE LIKE. GUILLERMO FRENKEL, Buenos Aires, Argentina. Filed Jan. 14, 1928. Serial No. 246,774. 6 Claims. (Cl. 116—36.)

1. A device for operating a signal for motor cars comprising a box adapted to be secured to the side of the car and having a signal associated therewith; a lever mounted adjacent the foot pedal of the car; a cable connecting the signal with the lever; and means connected to the steering post of the motor car and connected to the lever for operating the signal irrespective of the operation of the pedal.



1,682,498. TRANSFORMER-LOAD INDICATOR. HARLAN S. GANO, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 21, 1923. Serial No. 633,803. 7 Claims. (Cl. 116—114.)

5. In an indicator, a frame, a lever provided with a plurality of shoulders mounted on said frame, a target slidably mounted in said frame, provided with means for selectively engaging said shoulders, a bimetallic member extending into said frame and engaging said lever whereby said target is successively released from the several shoulders and permitted to fall to the next lower shoulder in accordance with the predetermined conditions of said thermo-responsive member.

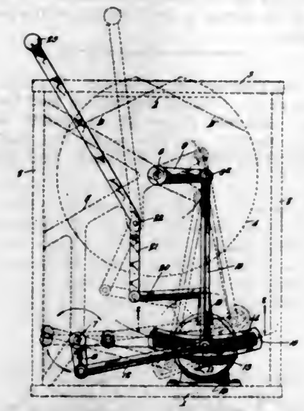
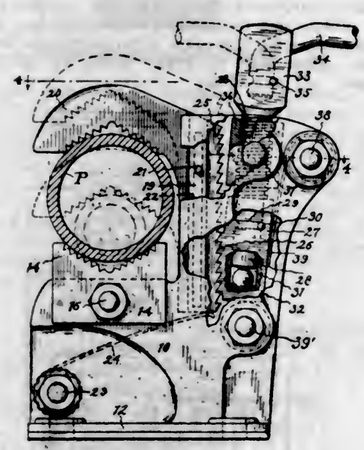
1,682,499. VALVE CONSTRUCTION. HEWITT A. GEHRES, Mount Vernon, Ohio. Filed Nov. 18, 1926. Serial No. 149,065. 9 Claims. (Cl. 123—188.)



1. In combination, a wall having a chamber to receive circulating fluid, a valve housing connected to said wall, also having a circulating fluid chamber therein, a removable valve seat, and circulating fluid passageways associated with the above mentioned parts permitting the fluid to flow into direct contact with the valve seat in passing from one chamber to the other.

1,682,500. WASHING MACHINE. BENJAMIN E. GETZ, Morton, Ill., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, of one-half to Getz Power Washer Co., Morton, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois, and one-half to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 14, 1923. Serial No. 631,967. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)



1. In a machine of the character described, in combination with a tub mounted for movement, of an operating means, a crank-like member connected with the tub, a guide shoe, an adjustable support for said shoe, a lever for adjusting said support to change the position of said shoe, a member slidable in said shoe, an operating connection between said member and said crank-like member, and an operating connection between said member and said operating means.

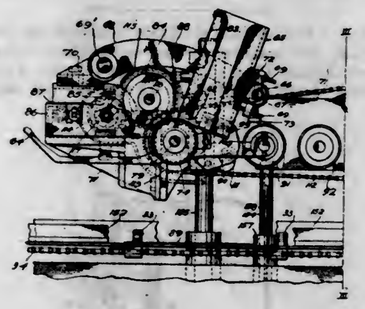
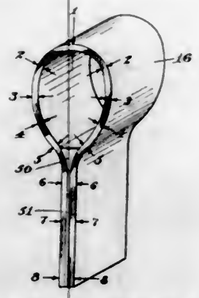
1,682,501. VISE. LEE B. GREEN, Lakewood, Ohio, assignor to The Borden Company, Warren, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 13, 1926. Serial No. 101,644. 6 Claims. (Cl. 81—28.)



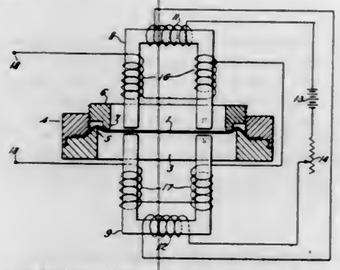
1. In vises, the combination of a stationary jaw, a sliding jaw, a member movable with said sliding jaw and independently thereof, said sliding jaw and said member having interlocking parts whereby the sliding jaw may be moved toward the stationary jaw by said member, a nut held in substantially fixed relation to said stationary jaw, and a screw in said nut and rotatably engaging said member to move the latter.

1,682,502. BASEMENT OR CELLAR PUMP. GEORGE T. GUSLER and OMAR H. SCHNELLE, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Feb. 7, 1927. Serial No. 166,336. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—26.)



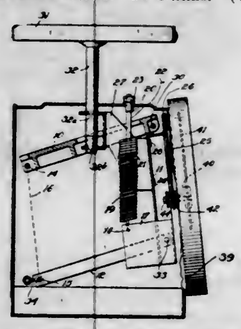
1. A cellar or basement pump including a board, an electric motor and a pump driven thereby on said board, said pump having a supporting connection with said board independently of the motor, said connection permitting a universal movement thereof in respect to the board, a slipping clutch between the motor shaft and pump impeller shaft, an electric switch for said motor and a float adapted to actuate the motor switch to cause the operation of the pump when the pump is primed.

1,682,503. CIGAR-BOX-STAMPING MACHINE. GEORGE W. GWINN, Hewlett, N. Y., assignor to International Cigar Machinery Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 2, 1927. Serial No. 203,073. 19 Claims. (Cl. 216—2.)



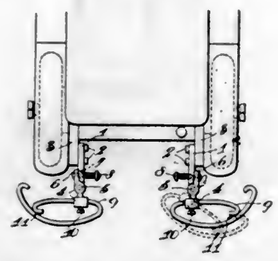
1. The combination with means for applying the leading ends of revenue stamps to corresponding surfaces of a succession of cigar boxes, of means for cancelling the applied stamps, means for attaching the trailing ends of the stamps to adjacent surfaces of the boxes, and means for successively presenting the boxes to said applying means, cancelling means, and attaching means.

1,682,504. RACKET AND ART OF MANUFACTURE THEREOF. HORACE W. HALL, Newton Center, Mass. Filed Nov. 21, 1925. Serial No. 70,530. 5 Claims. (Cl. 144—309.)



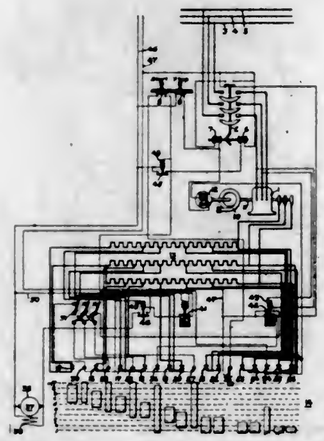
1. A laminated structure comprising a multiplicity of wood laminæ with glue absorbed into and set between them; some of said laminæ being of relatively strong and dense wood and other of said laminæ being arranged between the strong wood laminæ and being of less dense wood.

1,682,505. TELEPHONE INSTRUMENT. CLINTON R. HANNA, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 28, 1924. Serial No. 734,606. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—180.)



1. In a telephone instrument, a diaphragm, means for maintaining said diaphragm under tension, said tension being sufficient to bring a resonance frequency of the harmonics of said diaphragm above the range of audibility and magnetic means for counter-acting the effect of said tension upon the fundamental frequency of said diaphragm.

1,682,506. SCALE MECHANISM. MARIUS H. HANSEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Hanson Brothers Scale Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 649,983. 13 Claims. (Cl. 285—68.)

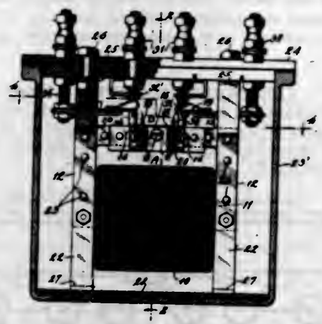


1. A scale mechanism having, in combination, a casing, four members arranged as a parallelogram, one of said members being fixed to the casing, the opposite being a rigid member and having a projection thereon, carrying a scale pan, the rigid member also having a spring extending to the casing, said spring being adapted to resist a weight on the scale pan, the position of the spring being such that the center of gravity of the weight when placed approximately centrally on the scale pan remains normally on the same side of the spring in the direction of the plane of the parallelogram.

1,682,507. AUTOMOBILE BUMPER. WILLIAM E. HART, San Jose, Calif. Original application filed Oct. 7, 1927, Serial No. 224,662, Patent No. 1,670,963, dated May 22, 1928. Divided and this application filed Mar. 24, 1928. Serial No. 264,381. 5 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)

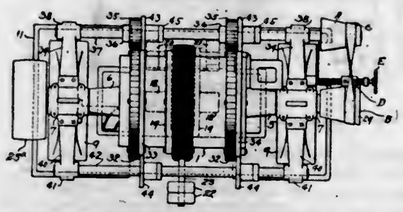
1. In bumpers, a bumper member, and a mounting bracket therefor, said mounting bracket comprising a main bracket member and an auxiliary bracket member hinged thereto and having an abutment portion to engage the main bracket member and prevent hinge action in one direction, and spring connections adapted to yieldably hold the said main bracket member and auxiliary bracket member in engagement for the purpose specified.

1,682,508. MOTOR-CONTROL SYSTEM. ALBERT L. HARVEY, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 12, 1922. Serial No. 587,655. 6 Claims. (Cl. 172—289.)



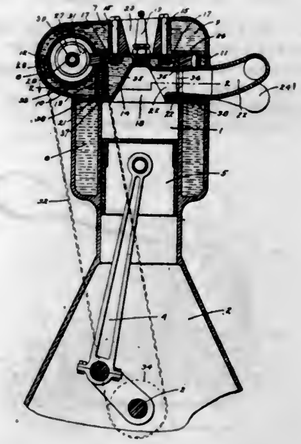
1. The combination with an alternating-current motor and a normally open circuited accelerating resistor therefor, of means for automatically connecting and excluding the resistor in successive steps, and a relay for delaying the initial operation of said means for any desired period.

1,682,509. PARACHUTE-OPENING DEVICE. CLARENCE R. HARWICK, Waterloo, Iowa. Filed July 19, 1927. Serial No. 206,921. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—21.)



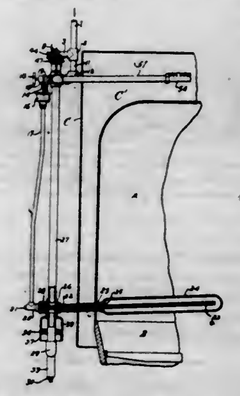
1. In combination, a parachute, a supporting body positioned centrally near it, a plurality of radial arms hinged to said body, terminally connected with the margin of the parachute and having apertured projections whose apertures register when the arms are collapsed, resilient means connecting said arms to said body placed under tension when the arms are collapsed upon said body, and a securing element removably seated in said projection apertures and releasably engaged with said body for releasably securing said arms to said body when so collapsed.

1,682,510. RELAY. CARL G. HARWIG, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Regan Safety Devices Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 16, 1922. Serial No. 601,385. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—104.)



1. A relay comprising a stationary field magnet terminating in oppositely positioned poles, an armature coil arranged between said field poles and movable when selectively energized from a neutral position in opposite directions to either of two active positions, a stationary core within the coil forming part of the magnetic circuit of said field magnet, and independent contact means controlled by movement of said armature coil to either of its active positions, the said contact means including opposing elements active on the coil for biasing the same to its neutral position.

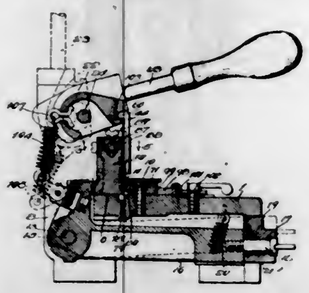
1,682,511. APPARATUS FOR CRUSHING MATERIAL. ANTON J. HAUG, Nashua, N. H. Filed Oct. 15, 1924. Serial No. 743,825. 26 Claims. (Cl. 92—26.)



1. A materials working machine having means to rotate the materials and separate materials-advancing means arranged in a descending longitudinal direction toward the outlet of the machine.

1,682,512. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. HARRY S. HAYS, Moline, Ill. Filed Mar. 19, 1925. Serial No. 16,830. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—80.)

A device of the class described, comprising a cylinder head formed of two parts having intercommunicating water-spaces, gas intake and exhaust passages extending through one of said parts into the center of said head, a hollow combustion head supported in said last-named part, and provided with an opening into said intake and exhaust passages, and having a central opening the walls of which converge upwardly to a spark-plug seat, means for adjustment of said combustion head with reference to the end of a cylinder with which the head is connected, a cylindrical valve rotatably mounted between said combustion head and cylinder head, provided with ports for successive register with said intake and exhaust passages, and a seal ring between said valve and combustion head, having an opening coinciding with the opening in said combustion head.



1,682,513. HUMIDIFIER. CHARLES E. HENDRIX, Jefferson City, Mo. Filed June 9, 1926. Serial No. 114,624. 9 Claims. (Cl. 126—113.)

1. In a device of the character described, a member adapted to be inserted in the combustion chamber of a furnace, means for supplying water to said member, a vapor-spraying device located at a point relatively remote from said member and in connection therewith, a valve for regulating the supply of water to said member, a regulating bar connected with said valve, and a thermostat associated with said regulating bar and adapted to be controlled by the heat of excess water supplied to said member whereby the amount of water supplied to said member is controlled.

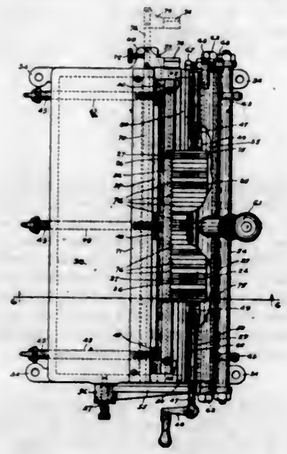
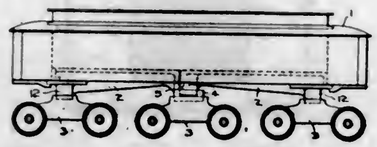
1,682,514. MEANS AND METHOD FOR PRODUCING VERTICALLY-RULED PRINTING FORMS. WILLIAM C. HOLLISTER and LEO M. CHAPMAN, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Chicago Lino-Tabler Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 7, 1925. Serial No. 13,734. 29 Claims. (Cl. 164—91.)

3. In a machine of the kind described, a series of punch units spaced apart and clamped in upright position, each unit comprising a rigid holder and a punch movable up and down in the holder, the punch provided with a rearwardly extending projection at its upper end, a punch operator on the machine movable up and down and having a part adapted to be pressed down upon the upper end of the punch to force the punch down, and provided with a ledge below its top for engagement beneath the rearwardly extending projection on the punch for lifting same, said operator being bodily movable forward and back for engaging and disengaging the punch, said operator arranged to be swung up away from the punch when disengaged from same to permit the convenient adjustment of the punch unit in the machine.



1,682,515. BROACH. WILLIAM C. HOLLISTER and LEO M. CHAPMAN, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Chicago Lino-Tabler Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 23, 1926. Serial No. 137,321. 14 Claims. (Cl. 164—91.)

1. In a machine of the kind described, a plurality of punch units, each comprising a punch housing and a punch movable therein, a carrier for said units, spacers for the punch units on said carrier, and means for clamping the units and spacers longitudinally of the carrier.



1,682,516. RULE-PUNCHING MECHANISM. GUSTAF E. WALLIN and EMIL G. MASENGARB, Omaha, Nebr., assignors to Chicago Lino-Tabler Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,106. Renewed Apr. 4, 1927. 15 Claims. (Cl. 164—9.)

1. In a mechanism for punching column-rule notches in type-slugs and rules, a punch-unit comprising a longitudinally channeled housing, a punch-bar fitting slidably in the channel of said housing, and a perforating member adapted to traverse a recess extending into the housing from one side thereof, said perforating member being integrally united throughout its length with one edge of the punch-bar whereby to be guided and supported thereby.

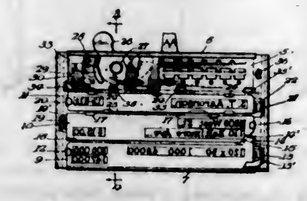
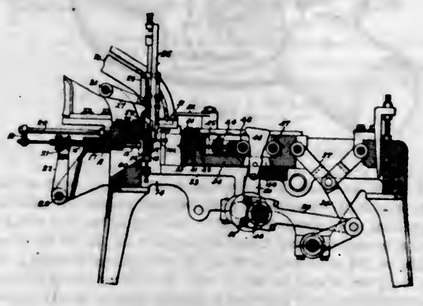
1,682,517. ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE. HAROLD A. HOUSTON, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 3, 1925. Serial No. 60,200. 8 Claims. (Cl. 105—175.)



1. In a railway vehicle, a rigid cab portion, an articulated main frame therefor constituting the equipment deck of said vehicle, and a plurality of supporting trucks, each of said trucks being pivotally connected to said frame.

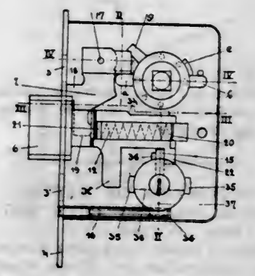
1,682,518. AUTOMATIC TRAIN-CONTROL SYSTEM. WINTHROP K. HOWE, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to General Railway Signal Company, Rochester, N. Y. Original application filed May 24, 1919, Serial No. 299,488. Divided and this application filed Feb. 3, 1928. Serial No. 251,583. 2 Claims. (Cl. 246—63.)



1. In an automatic train control system for railroads, a car-carried element having two magnetic side members connected by a core at an intermediate point, a biased movable armature cooperating with the upper ends of said side members and having contacts opened when said armature is retracted, an energized coil on said core producing flux for holding said armature in its attracted position, a trackway element having a core constituting a partial magnetic circuit for bridging the lower ends of said side members and thereby acting to shunt flux from said armature and cause retraction thereof, a winding on the core of the trackway element, and means for at times including said winding in a de-energized circuit of low resistance and at other times placing said winding on open circuit.

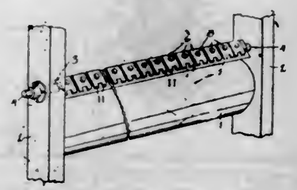
1,682,519. PRINTING DEVICE. HENRY E. HUBBARD, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Addressograph Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 5, 1927. Serial No. 188,938. 4 Claims. (Cl. 101—369.)

1. A printing device of the character described comprising a frame, and three separate printing plate sections removably secured in place thereon one above the other, said frame having retaining means stamped therefrom to engage and hold the plate sections, and said means comprising a locking device for each plate section to engage an end thereof, said locking devices being disposed alternately at the ends of the frame to engage one end of the middle section and the opposite ends of the top and bottom sections.



1,682,520. APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING CAP SCREWS AND THE LIKE. VINCENT HUSVAR, Waterbury, Conn., assignor to Scovill Manufacturing Co., Waterbury, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Jan. 5, 1922. Serial No. 527,116. 9 Claims. (Cl. 10—20.)

5. In a machine of the class described, and in combination, a hexagon cutting die, and non-cutting means for (a) forcing the head of a blank through said cutting die a sufficient distance to cause cutting of the facets up to a point adjacent the trailing end of the head, whereby a burr of waste metal is formed adjacent such end of the head, (b) clamping said waste burr against the face of the die, and (c) continuing the forcing of the head of the blank through the die in the same direction to sever the waste burr while the same is so clamped.

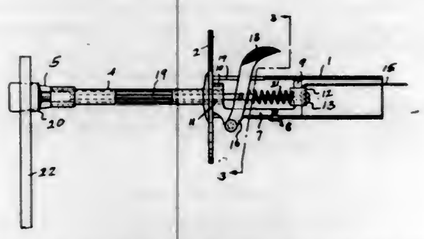


7. In combination, two metal-working dies arranged in tandem and having coaxial bores, the opposing faces of said dies having a channel formed therebetween leading to the bores of the dies and adapted for communication with a lubricating system.

1,682,521. DOOR LOCK. WILHELM HÜTTEMANN, Cologne, Germany. Filed Sept. 26, 1924. Serial No. 740,138. 6 Claims. (Cl. 292—170.)

1. A door lock of the type described comprising in combination an outer door handle, an inner door handle rotatable relative to the outer handle, a spindle for said inner handle a latch bolt, a follower connected to said outer door handle a rotatable ring coupled to the inner handle so as to move in unison therewith said ring being arranged at the side of the said follower rotatably about the spindle, means for causing the ring to engage with the follower and make the same turn directly when the inner handle is turned for operating said latch bolt, said ring being free to move independently in the reversed direction, and means for enabling the ring to arrest said outer handle independently of the latch bolt when the inner handle is turned in the direction opposite the normal one.

1,682,522. DOCTOR BAR. CLAUDE IVES, Otsego, Mich., assignor of one-half to Charley Pierce, Martin, Mich. Filed Jan. 16, 1928. Serial No. 247,130. 14 Claims. (Cl. 92—74.)



14. In a doctor bar, the combination of a resilient blade, and a plurality of blade supporting members provided with spring fingers engaging opposite sides of the blade.

1,682,523. ELECTRODE HOLDER. ANDREW C. JAMES, Houston, Tex. Filed May 21, 1927. Serial No. 193,150. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—8.)

1. An implement of the character described including a tubular handle, a plate like guard fixed to said handle, a tubular shank attached to the handle at one end, a bracket fixed to the other end of said shank which terminates in an overturned fixed jaw, a U-shaped bracket in said handle whose ends are overturned into alignment one of said ends being formed with a bearing, a U-shaped clamp fitted over the other overturned end and having side arms which clamp said end, a lever, one end of which is pivoted to the bracket in said handle and whose other end works through an elongated slot in said handle, a stem working through said bearing and handle and whose other end is provided with a movable jaw and a coil spring operable against said lever and normally tending to hold movable jaw in cooperating relation with the fixed jaw.

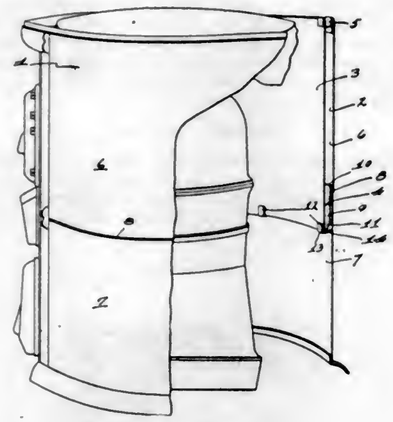
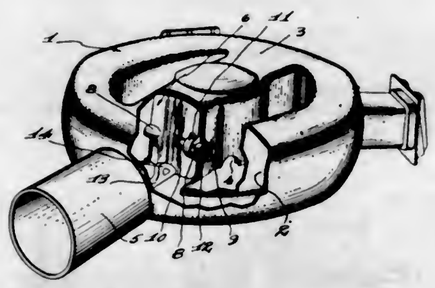
1,682,524. COMPOSITION OF MATTER. ANDREW C. JAMES, Houston, Tex. Filed July 5, 1927. Serial No. 203,683. 1 Claim. (Cl. 148—23.)

A composition of matter comprising manganese, chromium, titanium, molybdenum and silicate of soda mixed together in approximately the proportions of 20% each of manganese, titanium, and chromium and 5% of molybdenum and 35% of silicate of soda.



1,682,525. COMMUTATOR DISTRIBUTOR FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. ROMEO HANSON JOSEPHSON, Parramatta, near Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. Filed Dec. 15, 1925. Serial No. 75,543. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—19.)

1. In a distributor for ignition systems of internal combustion engines, a vertically arranged tubular casing, a continuous drive-shaft extending axially through the casing and having thereon a contact arm, two sleeves mounted directly on said shaft, one above the other, said sleeves having helically engaged parts, said lower sleeve being keyed to said shaft and slidable longitudinally thereon and said upper sleeve being rotatable on the shaft and carrying a make and break operating cam, means for preventing movement of said upper sleeve longitudinally of the shaft, and means for moving the lower sleeve longitudinally of the shaft.



1,682,526. CASING HANGER. RICHARD M. JUDD, ERNEST C. TAYLOR, and JOSEPH WORTH, Dowagiac, Mich., assignors to Premier Warm Air Heater Company, Dowagiac, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Feb. 13, 1928. Serial No. 254,110. 5 Claims. (Cl. 126—114.)

1. A hanger for the inner liner of a furnace casing comprising a body provided with an inwardly offset portion having a flange projecting upwardly therefrom and cooperating therewith to form an opening adapted to receive the lower edge of the inner liner, said upwardly projecting flange being provided with a return bent portion having a laterally projecting flange adapted to engage the casing for spacing the inner liner from said casing.

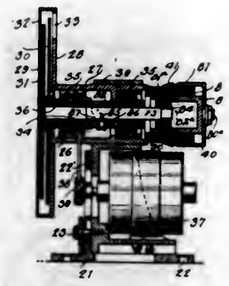
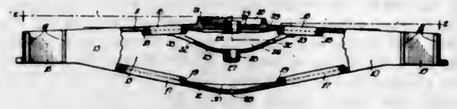
1,682,527. DIRECT-DRAFT REGULATOR FOR WARM-AIR FURNACES. RICHARD M. JUDD, ERNEST C. TAYLOR, and RALPH S. MCNANEY, Dowagiac, Mich., assignors to Premier Warm Air Heater Company, Dowagiac, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Original application filed Jan. 24, 1927, Serial No. 163,219. Divided and this application filed Mar. 12, 1928. Serial No. 261,168. 7 Claims. (Cl. 126—285.)



1. In a warm air furnace, the combination with a radiator, of a draft regulator therefor, and means for pivotally mounting said regulator within said radiator including recessed bosses forming integral portions of the walls of said radiator, the recessed portions thereof communicating with the interior of said radiator only, and pivot pins carried by said regulator and adapted for engagement in said bosses.

1,682,528. ROTATING-DISK PHOTOMETER. CARL W. KEUFFEL, Weehawken, N. J., assignor to Keuffel and Esser Company, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Feb. 15, 1923, Serial No. 619,168. Divided and this application filed Jan. 2, 1924. Serial No. 683,996. 15 Claims. (Cl. 88—23.)



1. A photometer comprising two rotatable disks one located in front of the other and each provided with sectors having fixed angular openings therebetween, means for adjusting and indicating the relative angular position of the sectors of the two disks while in motion, the sectors of one disk extending radially beyond, and adapted to intercept rays of light not intercepted by, the sectors of the other disk, and means for shifting the axes of the disks.

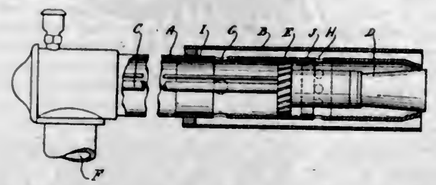
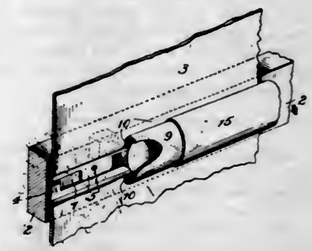
1,682,529. TRUCK BOLSTER. JOHN A. LAMONT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to American Steel Foundries, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 23, 1927. Serial No. 177,488. 10 Claims. (Cl. 105—230.)



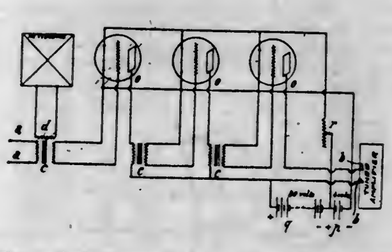
1. A railroad car truck bolster structure, comprising an upper web portion and side walls, and a reinforcing beam having side walls depending from said web portion and positioned below the center plate of said bolster.

1,682,530. FLOORING. CHAUNCEY C. LOOMIS, Yonkers, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Latex Products, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 8, 1923. Serial No. 656,456. 9 Claims. (Cl. 94—19.)



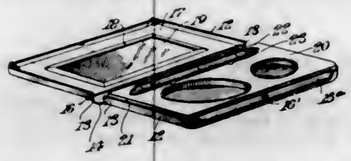
1. An improved flooring comprising dried non-vulcanized rubber latex and a filler and having a substantially large proportion of its rubber content in and adjacent to one surface thereof.

1,682,531. OIL BURNER. JAMES N. MACRAE, Jersey City, N. J., assignor to Petroleum Heat and Power Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 27, 1927. Serial No. 201,567. 6 Claims. (Cl. 158—76.)



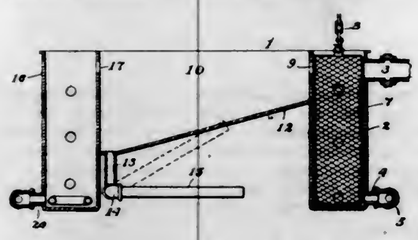
1. An oil burner comprising in combination, a rotary atomizer, an air driven turbine for rotating said atomizer, an air tube within which said turbine and atomizer are mounted, a secondary air tube surrounding said first mentioned tube, means for establishing communication between the tubes at each side of said turbine, and a common source of air for supplying the secondary tube and for driving said turbine.

1,682,532. VEHICLE BODY AND METHOD OF CONSTRUCTING THE SAME. HERMAN C. MAISE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Briggs Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,177. 14 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)



1. The method of constructing vehicle bodies, comprising the formation of a frame-work of wood or the like, prefashioning metal panels to form the exterior body, forming offset edge flanges on said panels, subsequently subjecting said pre-fashioned metal panels before application to the framework to an enameling process, securing the panels at said offset flanges only to the framework whereby to prevent marring of the enameled surfaces, and applying concealing strips to the joints between adjacent edges of the panels by means concealed by the concealing strips.

1,682,533. RECEIVING SYSTEM FOR ELECTRIC WAVES OR CURRENTS OF CONSTANT FREQUENCY. YVES MARREC, Suresnes, and RENÉ FULDA, Paris, France, assignors, by mesne assignments, to Marrec Limited, London, England, a Corporation of Great Britain. Filed June 1, 1922, Serial No. 565,070, and in France June 9, 1921. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

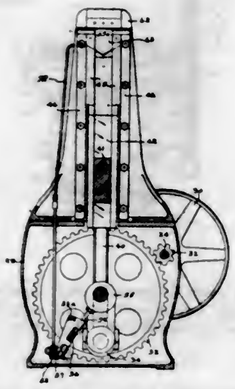


1. The method of operating upon electrical signal waves of constant audible frequency accompanied by parasitic waves of greater amplitude and different frequencies after detection, which comprises superposing thereon sustained local waves of a frequency bearing a simple ratio to that of the signal waves, passing the resultant waves through a non-resonant amplifier, and passing the waves from said amplifier through a second amplifier tuned to the frequency of the waves resulting from the superposition of the local waves on the signal waves, while reducing the ratio of amplification of waves above a given amplitude in proportion to the ratio of amplification of waves below said given amplitude to bring the amplitude of the amplified resultants of the parasitic wave down to substantially the level of the amplified resultant of the signal waves.

1,682,534. VANITY CASE. JEAN MARTINAT, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 9, 1927. Serial No. 238,739. 4 Claims. (Cl. 132—83.)

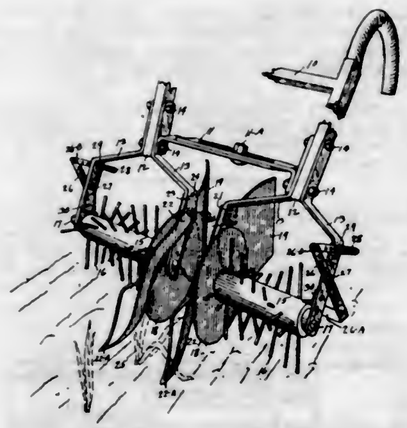
1. A vanity case comprising two similar case-like cover members meeting edge to edge at the end and front portions, a stiffening plate within one cover member carrying a mirror, a stiffening plate within the other cover member having receptacles for articles therein, and a link back connecting the two cover members.

1,682,535. SEPARATOR. CHRISTOPHER OFFENHAUSER, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Dec. 8, 1926. Serial No. 153,297. 3 Claims. (Cl. 210—43.)



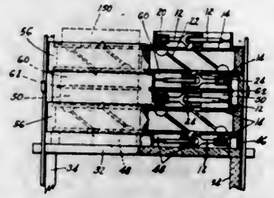
1. In a separator, a receiving tank, a discharge tank, an intermediate tank connecting said tanks and of greater length than width and having its sides converging downwardly and its bottom inclining downwardly in the direction of flow, said receiving tank having its upper end discharging into said intermediate tank, said intermediate tank having its upper portion discharging into said discharge tank, and means to withdraw liquid at different levels from said discharge tank.

1,682,536. BELT LOOP FOR CHAINS. LAWRENCE F. OTTEN, Newport, Ky., assignor to The Wadsworth Watch Case Company, Dayton, Ky., a Corporation of Kentucky. Filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,947. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—3.)



1. A belt-loop adapted to transversely and slidably embrace a belt and formed of resilient metal and comprising a rear plate having an upturned flange upon its free end and having a front plate integrally connected to said rear plate and spaced apart therefrom to form a belt receiving opening and provided with an inturned flange having a downwardly extending nib on its free end adapted to be sprung into detachable holding engagement with said upturned flange and to form a close fit therewith and with the inner adjacent wall of the rear plate.

1,682,537. POWER-PUMP WORKING HEAD. ALFRED RANDOLPH, Salem, Ohio, assignor to The Deming Company, Salem, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 24, 1925. Serial No. 52,162. 14 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)

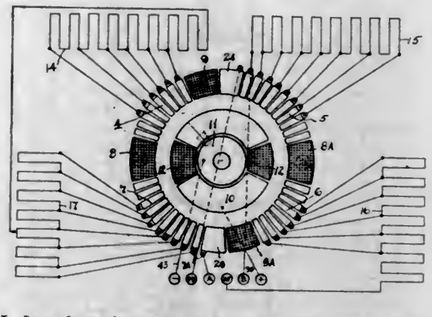


1. In a power head of the character described, the combination of a casing, a crank within the same, said casing having an upward extension, a slideway on the exterior of said extension, a slide mounted on the slideway, a wrist pin carried by the slide and extending inwardly through a slot in the casing, a pitman mounted at one end on the crank and at the other end on the wrist pin, said pitman and slide operating in parallel planes, means for connecting a pump rod to the slide, a gear on the crank shaft within the casing, and a driving shaft parallel with the crank shaft and having a pinion meshing with the gear.

1,682,538. CULTIVATOR AND WEEDER. ADOLPH L. RITTER, Sifton, Wash. Filed July 15, 1926. Serial No. 122,605. 4 Claims. (Cl. 97—58.)

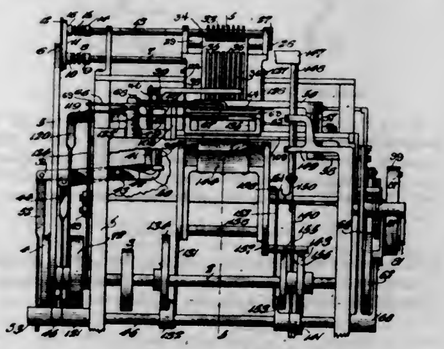
1. A cultivator having, in combination, a pair of spiked cylinders; a frame for mounting said cylinders; a horizontal knife adapted to travel along the surface of the ground behind said cylinders; disks mounted between said cylinders; and means for adjusting the angularity and cutting depth of said knife.

1,682,539. SHIPPING APPARATUS. BERT J. SANFORD, South Bend, Ind., assignor to Bendix Brake Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 30, 1926. Serial No. 119,732. 7 Claims. (Cl. 217—13.)



1. Apparatus for shipping brake assemblies, each of which assemblies includes a backing plate having an operating device projecting from one side and a set of shoes on its other side, the apparatus comprising, in combination with the brake assemblies, a base arranged to support the lowermost tier of brake assemblies shoe side down, a plurality of separators each arranged to support two tiers of brake assemblies the lower tier of which is shoe side up with the backing plates resting on the separator and the upper tier of which is shoe side down and rests on the lower tie, and means for detachably securing the base and the separators and the brake assemblies together.

1,682,540. CLOTHING TICKET. WILLIAM M. SCHLEGELMILCH, New York, N. Y., assignor to Keller Printing Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 5, 1926. Serial No. 86,156. 3 Claims. (Cl. 283—18.)

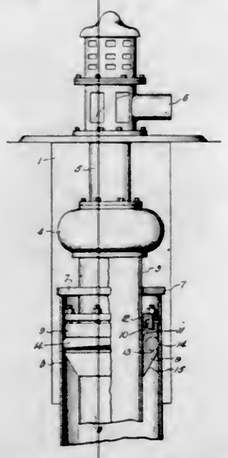


1. An improved clothing-ticket unit, comprising in initially integral and combined and separable association two distinct sets of individual tickets, one set constituting all the "shade" or "joker" tickets which are to be attached by the cutter for temporary identification of the cut pattern parts of a complete suit or garment, and the other set constituting all the garment tickets which are to be attached by the tailor for final identification of the respective finished parts of the made-up suit or garment when the temporary pattern tickets are removed, all of the tickets of both sets bearing corresponding identifying data and the temporary "shade" or "joker" pattern tickets being also identified and distinguished in differentiation from the final garment tickets, whereby there are initially assembled in a composite integral unit all the differential temporary pattern tickets and final garment tickets used in both the pattern cutting and complete make-up of a finished suit or garment.

1,682,541. ELECTRIC-CONTROLLER CONSTRUCTION. JAMES F. SCHNABEL, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Clark Controller Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 7, 1927. Serial No. 181,677. 8 Claims. (Cl. 201—48.)

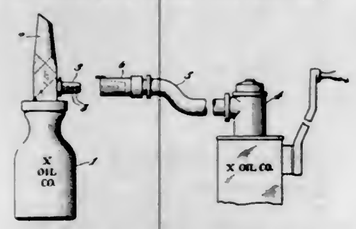
5. In a face plate type of controller, the combination of a face plate having contact plates and four groups of contacts, banks of resistors connected to said groups of contacts, and a crossed controller arm having contact brushes adapted to engage with said four groups of contacts and plates to simultaneously control all of said banks of resistors from said contact groups and plates during movement of said controller arm in both directions from the normal off position, two of said brushes being connected to line terminals to place two of said banks of resistors in the line circuit, and two of said brushes being electrically connected to each other to place the other two resistance banks in a closed circuit for control purposes.

1,682,542. TOBACCO BLENDING AND FEEDING MECHANISM. WALTER H. SCHUSSLER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Schussler Tobacco Machine Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 8, 1925. Serial No. 48,955. 7 Claims. (Cl. 131—39.)



1. In a tobacco machine, means to feed different blends of tobacco into separate magazines, means to feed the blends from their magazines, mechanism to cut off the tobacco which has been fed, means to bring the blends together to form a sized charge, and delivery mechanism to remove the charges.

1,682,543. WELL SEAL. STARLEY WHITE, Stuttgart, Ark. Filed Mar. 21, 1927. Serial No. 177,167. 2 Claims. (Cl. 166—10.)



1. A well seal, comprising an annular member having an internal annular packing chamber, an independent external annular chamber and a frusto conical portion extending from the outer edge of said external chamber inward to the bore of said member, packing in said external chamber, packing in said internal chamber, a gland for said internal chamber, and means for tightening said gland to compress said internal packing independently of said external packing.

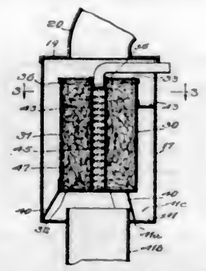
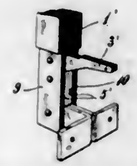
1,682,544. COMBINATION INFLOW-CONTROLLING AND FLUID-DISCHARGE MEANS. MARVIN S. YOUNG, Scarsdale, and ABRAHAM NOVICK, Flushing, N. Y.; said Novick assignor to said Young. Filed Feb. 28, 1927. Serial No. 171,579. 9 Claims. (Cl. 221—28.)



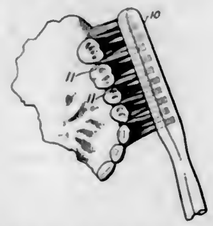
1. As a new article of manufacture, a bottle top for dispensing receptacles, said top being provided with a filling spout of irregular contour apertured to admit fluid therein, and a pouring snout provided with a valve to permit outward flow only and a series of baffles preventing access to the valve.

1,682,545. COMBINATION SCRAPER AND JOINER. REINHOLD ZINN, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Mar. 7, 1927. Serial No. 173,274. 6 Claims. (Cl. 72—138.)



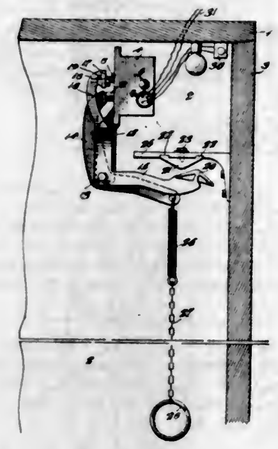
4. A tool of the character described, comprising a triangular open metal frame, one leg of the triangle extending beyond both adjacent legs with the outer surfaces thereof curving inwardly, there being a depth gauge and a relatively adjustable scraping tool projecting beyond the gauge for scraping the surplus mortar previous to smoothing the joints with said first mentioned leg, said depth gauge and scraping tool being positioned at the inter-section of said adjacent legs.

1,682,546. AIR-CONDITIONING APPARATUS. CHARLES A. BANGERT, Ocala, Fla. Filed Sept. 19, 1925. Serial No. 57,412. 6 Claims. (Cl. 261—97.)



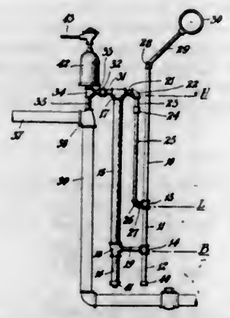
1. In apparatus of the kind described and in combination, a housing having an outlet opening in the lower end thereof and having an air intake opening, a tube disposed in the outlet opening and extending into the housing above the bottom wall thereof, a perforate cage within the housing and spaced from the walls thereof, porous material disposed within the cage, and means for supplying water to the porous material.

1,682,547. ELECTRICITY METER. WILLI BEUSCH, Zug, Switzerland, assignor to the Firm Landis & Gyr A.-G., Zug, Switzerland. Filed Aug. 6, 1923, Serial No. 656,042, and in Switzerland Aug. 18, 1922. 2 Claims. (Cl. 171—264.)



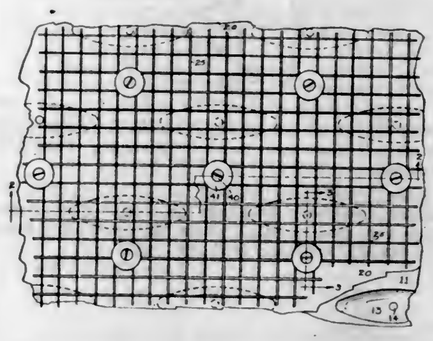
1. An induction meter comprising in combination a laminated pressure core, a laminated core for the main current magnet, two spaced apart groups of laminations of the pressure core being extended down as far as the lower edge of the main current magnet core, the center group of laminations of the pressure core between said two spaced apart groups being extended to form a counterpole at about the level of the top of the main current magnet, the center laminations terminating with the counterpole and leaving a space below them, and a bracket positioned in the space below the counterpole and having arms for supporting the main current magnet.

1,682,548. TOOTHBRUSH. THOMAS W. BIGONEY, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 25, 1928. Serial No. 249,228. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—167.)



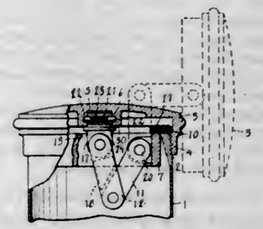
1. A toothbrush having a bristle support and a plurality of parallel transversely extending rows of tufts of bristles, there being the same number of tufts in each row, and the alternate rows being offset transversely of the bristle support, whereby each alternate row at one end, and each of the other rows at the opposite end, has an outstanding tuft relatively unsupported by the other tufts, and having relatively greater freedom of movement.

1,682,549. ELECTRIC-CIRCUIT CONTROLLER. HENRY E. BILLERBECK, Glenside, Pa. Filed July 15, 1927. Serial No. 205,864. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—54.)



1. In an electrical control, the combination with a switch having a push button to close the circuit and a push button to open the circuit, of a door controlled lever to actuate one of said push buttons, and manually actuated means to actuate the other of said push buttons.

1,682,550. PRESSURE-CONTROLLING LIQUID SEAL. ALFRED L. BROWNE, East Orange, N. J. Filed Feb. 20, 1924. Serial No. 694,030. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—53.)

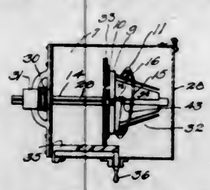


1. A pressure-controlling liquid seal comprising in combination, an upwardly extending leg, a second upwardly extending leg, said legs consisting of standard pipe and pipe fittings, means consisting of a laterally extending standard pipe and standard pipe fittings connecting said legs below the minimum liquid level, and means consisting of standard pipe and standard pipe fittings connecting said first leg substantially at the minimum liquid level to said second leg substantially at the maximum liquid level.

1,682,551. METAL FOUNDATION FOR COMPOSITE FLOORS. HAROLD B. CHAMBERLAIN, East Orange, N. J., assignor to The Tuco Products Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 3, 1927. Serial No. 165,673. 1 Claim. (Cl. 72—70.)

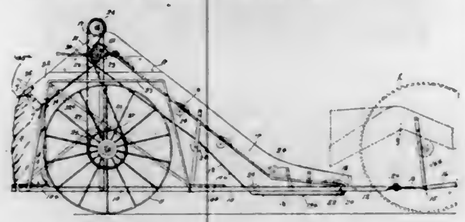
The combination of a hollow metal base having a top of sheet metal, a sheet of insulation on such top, wire mesh on top of the insulation, fastening devices applicable entirely from above and passing through the wire mesh and insulation into the top sheet, and a layer of cementitious material above the wire mesh.

1,682,552. RADIATOR CAP OR THE LIKE. GEORGE LEHMAN CHAPEL, Grand Rapids, Mich., assignor to W. B. Jarvis Company, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Nov. 3, 1927. Serial No. 230,805. 9 Claims. (Cl. 220—24.)



1. The combination of an externally threaded neck, a cap internally threaded to coact therewith and having a central inwardly facing swivel member socket provided with an annular groove, an anchoring member within said neck, a swivel member having a transverse bore therethrough arranged in said socket, retaining pins arranged in said bore in said swivel member to engage said groove of said socket, a spring disposed between said pins yieldingly supporting them in groove engaging position, and links pivotally connected to each other, one of said links being pivotally connected to said swivel member and the other to said anchoring member.

1,682,553. FILM-WINDING MECHANISM. RAYMOND B. CLARK, Freewater, Oreg. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,390. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—18.7.)



1. In a film winding mechanism, a shaft, a reel rotatable with and removably supported by said shaft, and comprising two separable major parts, a base part and a cap part, said parts being co-operable and adapted to assume diverging planes during operation, each of said parts having its own respective hub, said hubs being arranged for slidable and lockable engagement, and means mounted on and rotatable with said shaft, and carrying said reel to form convolutions of the film of decreased diameter and to insert the last convolution under the preceding convolution of the film.

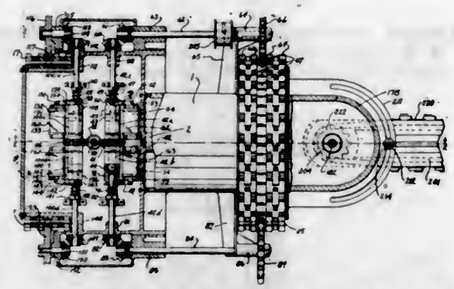
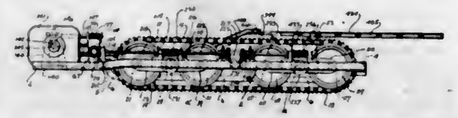
1,682,554. POTATO PICKER AND BAGGER. PETER DAHLMAN, Grandy, Minn. Filed Mar. 16, 1923. Serial No. 625,602. 3 Claims. (Cl. 209—59.)



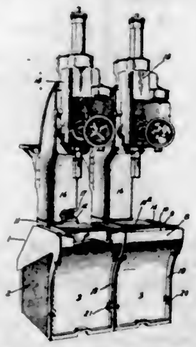
1. A potato picking and bagging device adapted to be connected to and drawn by a standard potato digger comprising a potato delivering means having in combination, a wheel-supported frame, an upwardly inclined open bottom through at one end of said frame extending at one side of and with its center line substantially at right angles to the axis of said wheels, an endless conveyor movable in said trough, said trough and conveyor having their lower ends disposed substantially in horizontal position and constructed and arranged to extend beneath the delivery end of said potato digger to receive potatoes therefrom, a chute longitudinally alined with said trough extending downwardly from the upper end of said trough and at the other side of said axis adapted to receive the potatoes from said conveyor, and means for supporting and holding bags at the lower end of said chute for receiving the potatoes discharged therefrom.

1,682,555. MECHANISM FOR DISINTEGRATING DISLODGED MATERIAL. KENNETH DAVIS, St. Benedict, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Rembrandt Peale, W. Sanders Davies, and William S. Wallace, trustees. Filed Sept. 20, 1921. Serial No. 502,036. 17 Claims. (Cl. 262—12.)



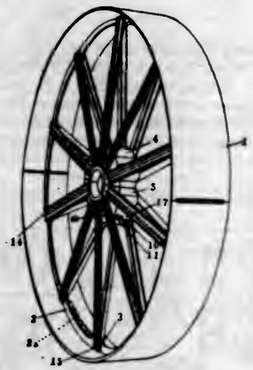
1. A device for breaking up dislodged material comprising in combination two relatively slidable elements, a projector pivoted to one of the elements to swing upwardly, a cam member, carried by the other element, engageable with the free end of the projector, the projector being pivoted so that when a pull is exerted on the said other element carrying the cam member, the projector swings about its pivot in a direction away from the direction of the pull.

1,682,556. MINING MACHINE. KENNETH DAVIS, St. Benedict, Pa., assignor to Rembrandt Peale, Richard Peale, and Rembrandt Peale, junior, trustees. Filed Apr. 21, 1923. Serial No. 633,605. 63 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



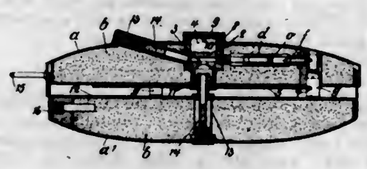
1. A mining machine including in combination a frame, traction devices for driving the machine, a kerf cutter carried by the frame at one side thereof and outside with respect to the adjacent traction device, and means including a motor positioned between the traction devices and on substantially the same level therewith for driving the kerf cutter.

1,682,557. MINING MACHINE. KENNETH DAVIS, St. Benedict, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Rembrandt Peale, W. Sanders Davies, and William S. Wallace, trustees. Filed Dec. 26, 1923. Serial No. 682,691. 47 Claims. (Cl. 262—28.)



1. A mining machine including in combination traction means the ground engaging base of which is variable in length, a kerf cutter, a driving motor therefor, a support for the cutter and motor movable relatively to the traction means to positions determined by the variations in length of the ground engaging base of the traction means, to vary the vertical location of the kerf in the vein, and means for moving the kerf cutter relatively to the body of the machine to cut a kerf.

1,682,558. DRILLING MACHINE. THEODORE H. DOAN, Jr., Cleveland Heights, Ohio, assignor to Foote-Burt Company, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 27, 1925. Serial No. 71,556. 3 Claims. (Cl. 77—22.)

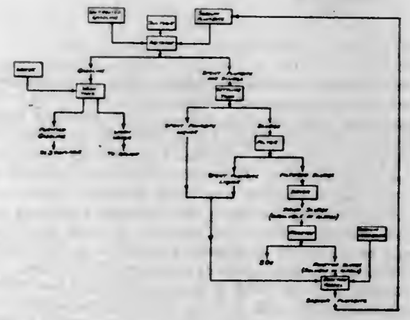


1. In a drilling machine, the combination of a base comprising side walls, a front wall, a rear wall and a downwardly and rearwardly sloping top wall, said side walls and front wall having extensions which project above the top surface of the top wall to provide a surrounding flange, a projection on the top wall which provides a table for the machine, an upright support on the top wall, said projection and upright support being spaced from said surrounding flange to provide grooves which slope toward the back of the machine for carrying away chips and cutting substance, and said side walls being flat whereby a plurality of machines may be arranged side by side and each deliver independently its chips and cutting substance to a common receptacle.

1,682,559. SPLIT PULLEY. HENRY J. GILBERT, Saginaw, Mich., assignor to Saginaw Manufacturing Co., Saginaw, Mich., a Corporation. Filed July 21, 1924. Serial No. 727,285. 2 Claims. (Cl. 64—18.)

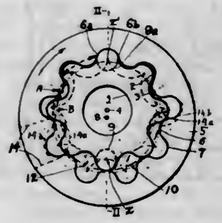
1. A pulley comprising half-rims, each formed of a single piece of folded sheet metal rolled to semi-circular shape and having an internal rib of shallow radial depth and inwardly projecting ears integral with each rib, a pair of hub sections each comprising two shaft-gripping members spaced apart lengthwise, a housing consisting of a hollow annular shell of U-shaped section connecting said members, clamping bolts through said hub sections at places intermediate said spaced gripping members and located in longitudinally offset relation, spoke-receiving faces on the outer walls of said housing, each face disposed in a plane that includes one of said ears, and spokes, each secured at its outer end to one of said ears and at its inner end to one of said spoke-receiving faces.

1,682,560. EXPLOSIVE MINE. HANS GRÜBER, Muhldorf, Germany. Filed Nov. 14, 1927, Serial No. 233,025, and in Germany May 18, 1925. 12 Claims. (Cl. 102—2.)



1. In an explosive mine, the combination of a disk-shaped casing, an explosive charge contained in said casing, an igniter tube arranged radially in said casing, a spring actuated striking bolt arranged in said igniter tube, a transversely arranged pressure operated member for retaining said striking bolt and a shearing pin for holding said pressure member below a predetermined pressure.

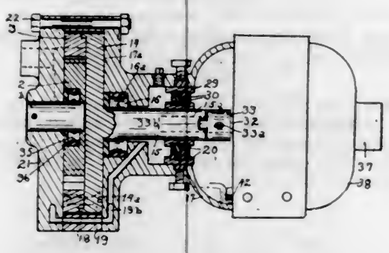
1,682,561. MOTOR FUEL. EARL C. HENNEN, Charleston, W. Va., assignor to The United States Nito Co., Inc., Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 7, 1928. Serial No. 259,926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 44—9.)



1. A fuel composition for internal combustion engines consisting of hydrocarbon motor fuel material, a lubricant comprising a high heat test lubricating oil and castor oil, and a coal tar product comprising benzol and paranitrochlorobenzene.

1,682,562. TREATMENT OF LEAD SLUDGE. JOSEPH B. HILL, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Atlantic Refining Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 17, 1926. Serial No. 95,229. 2 Claims. (Cl. 23—51.)

1. The method of treating lead sludge which comprises drying the sludge, subjecting it to dry heat under oxidizing conditions to cause conversion of the major portion of the lead content to compounds soluble in an aqueous solution of a caustic alkali, and dissolving the resultant lead products in an aqueous solution of the character aforesaid.



1,682,563. INTERNAL ROTOR. MYRON F. HILL, New York, N. Y. Original application filed Nov. 5, 1921, Serial No. 513,075. Divided and this application filed Jan. 14, 1928. Serial No. 246,894. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—41.)

1. A rotary mechanical movement comprising two rotor members having internal and external teeth respectively, one within, eccentric to, and having one less tooth division than the other, each tooth having a radial height from the hollow of a tooth space to the top of a tooth substantially equal to twice said eccentricity and the faces and flanks of the teeth of each rotor having contours generated by the form of the other at steady angular velocity, to provide continuous sliding contacts between the teeth in the open mesh region and the full mesh region.

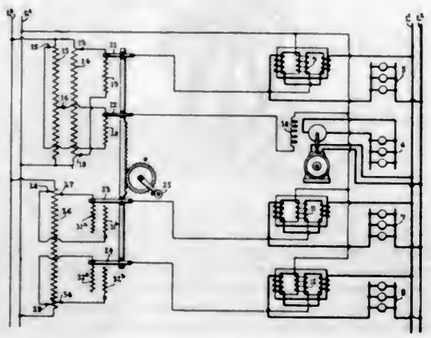
1,682,564. COMPRESSOR. MYRON F. HILL, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 15, 1923. Serial No. 619,292. 15 Claims. (Cl. 230—141.)

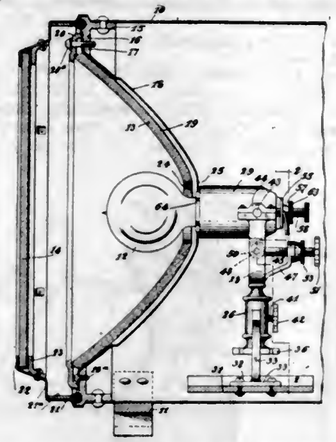


1. In a rotary mechanism dealing with fluid pressures and having intake and outlet passageways and driving connections, two rotor members having tooth divisions forming between them chambers which open and close by relative rotation to perform pressure functions in connection with said passageways, one rotor within and eccentric to the other and having one less tooth division, contours on said tooth divisions providing said pressure functions and relative angular motion, said contours of each rotor conforming to curves of envelopment outlined by the successive positions of a tooth form of the other rotor during relative angular motions which motions are those of two circles tangent internally, each in turn carrying the appropriate tooth form, and the two circles having diameters proportional to the numbers of tooth divisions of the said rotors that are to conform thereto, the angular velocity of the outer circle bearing to that of the inner circle the inverse ratio of the numbers of tooth divisions of said rotors, said rotors having a continuous travelling pressure holding engagement between both ends of the passageways.

1,682,565. ROTARY COMPRESSOR. MYRON F. HILL, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 5, 1921. Serial No. 513,075. 9 Claims. (Cl. 230—141.)

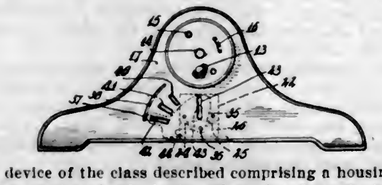
1. In a rotary mechanism dealing with gas pressures having intake and outlet passageways, two rotor members having tooth divisions forming between them chambers which open and close by relative rotation to perform pressure functions between said passageways, one rotor within and eccentric to the other and having one less tooth division, contours on said tooth divisions providing said pressure functions and relative angular motion, said contours of each rotor conforming to curves of envelopment outlined by the successive positions of a tooth form of the other rotor during relative angular motions which motions are those of two circles tangent internally, each in turn carrying the appropriate tooth form, and the two circles having diameters proportional to the numbers of tooth divisions of said rotors that are to conform thereto, the angular velocity of the outer circle bearing to that of the inner circle the inverse ratio of the numbers of tooth divisions of said rotors, said rotor contours having continuous travelling engagements in the full mesh region between said passageways, and having a plurality of continuous travelling engagements between said contours on the open mesh side between said passageways, means for providing a liquid seal, end walls on opposite ends of said rotors fixed to each other directly engaging the ends of said rotors and enclosing said rotor chambers at said ends, to balance said rotors and end walls with relation to each other with a floating relation free of endwise pressure, and a driving connection to the outer rotor.

1,682,566. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR CONTROL OF ELECTRICAL CONDITIONS OF CIRCUITS. RICHARD B. HUNTER and CLARENCE T. EVANS, Milwaukee, Wis., assignors to The Cutler-Hammer Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Jan. 17, 1924. Serial No. 686,935. 24 Claims. (Cl. 175—312.)



1. In apparatus for controlling an electrical condition of a circuit having a connection with a source of constant potential, the combination with an individual resistor for said circuit and means for subjecting the respective terminals of the former to selectable values of potential derived from said source, of associated means for subjecting said circuit to the effect of such potential values modified by a selectable ohmic value of the resistance of said resistor.

7. Combined control apparatus, comprising means for providing a circuit across supply lines of opposite polarity, means for impressing upon said circuit a selectable value of the line potential, means for preselecting a different value of such potential to be impressed upon said circuit and means for varying the circuit impressed potential from the former to the latter value in increments each substantially proportional to the difference of said values.



1,682,567. LIGHT-PROJECTING DEVICE. ALONZO D. HOBBIE, Newark, N. J., assignor to Dressel Railway Lamp & Signal Corporation, Arlington, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 1, 1924. Serial No. 710,256. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—44.)

1. A head light, including a casing, a concave reflector of the beam projecting type supported in the casing and having an opening therein at its rear end in combination a vertical, swiveled standard secured against vibration within the casing and disposed behind the reflector, an adjustable socket member on the standard, a lamp bulb within the reflector connected to said socket member through said opening, horizontal, symmetrically projecting trunnions on the socket member, and a yoke at the upper end of the standard in the arms of which the trunnions are cradled.

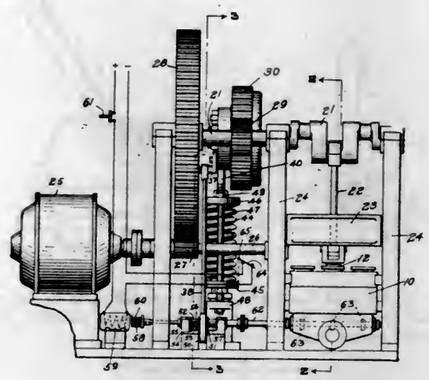
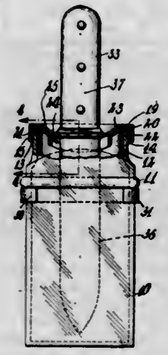
1,682,568. COMBINED CLOCK-SAVINGS-BANK DEVICE. RICHARD HOBS, Secaucus, N. J. Filed Mar. 10, 1927. Serial No. 174,199. 1 Claim. (Cl. 232—4.)



A device of the class described comprising a housing having an aperture in the bottom thereof, a door pivotally attached to the bottom of said housing adapted to close the aperture in the bottom thereof, locking mechanism mounted in said housing adapted to be actuated by insertion of a key through a key hole in the back of said housing, a lever pivotally attached to the back of said housing having an aperture therein adapted to register with the key hole of said back for permitting insertion of a key into said housing; and an extension on said lever adapted to engage the inner surface of said door and to press thereon when the slot in said lever is in registration with the key hole in said back for urging said door to open position after the same is released by operation of said locking mechanism.

1,682,569. HYDRAULIC SYSTEM. JOSEPH E. HOLVECK, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed June 9, 1926. Serial No. 114,675. 20 Claims. (Cl. 103—40.)

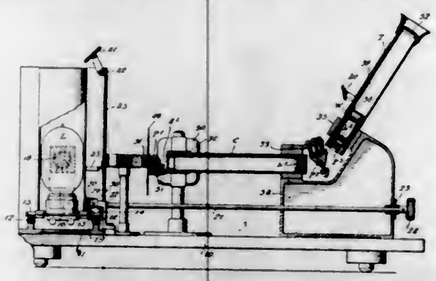


1. The combination in a hydraulic system of a pump, a distributor for directing the pump discharge to a selected delivery point and means operated by said pump for operating said distributor to vary the point of delivery.

1,682,570. PUMP. JOSEPH E. HOLVECK, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 118,907. 16 Claims. (Cl. 103—12.)

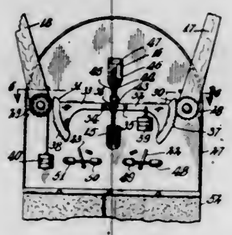
1. A variable delivery pump having in combination parallel operating shafts rotatably mounted in fixed relation and means for varying the relative timing of said shafts.

1,682,571. SANITARY BUTTER-KNIFE CONTAINER. JEREMIAH HORAN, Flushing, N. Y. Filed Aug. 12, 1927. Serial No. 212,494. 2 Claims. (Cl. 65—12.)



1. In a device of the character described, a casing adapted to be supported on a suitable bracket, an opening at the top of the said casing, a circular rim around the said opening, and a cap removably secured to the said rim, a concave central portion in the said cap, a transverse slot therein and a downward disposed marginal flange around the said slot adapted to engage the sides of a knife when inserted therein for holding the blade of the latter in spaced relation to the sides of the casing, and the whole adapted to receive the blade of a cutting utensil through the said slot, and to support the said utensil with its blade inserted within the aforesaid casing.

1,682,572. OPTICAL INSTRUMENT. CARL W. KEUFFEL, Weehawken, N. J., assignor to Keuffel and Esser Company, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 15, 1925. Serial No. 62,502. 16 Claims. (Cl. 88—14.)



1. In an instrument of the character set forth, a pair of reflecting surfaces, arranged in spaced parallel relationship, a source of light located between said surfaces, means to vary the distances between said source of light and said surfaces, and an optical prism arranged to collect a portion of the light reflected by said surfaces and to direct said light in a pair of substantially parallel juxtaposed beams along a predetermined path.

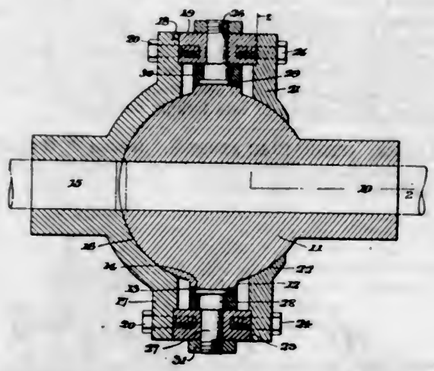
1,682,573. AUTOMATIC GATE FOR RAILWAYS. MARY J. KOVACS, St. Clairsville, Ohio. Filed May 11, 1927. Serial No. 190,463. 2 Claims. (Cl. 39—7.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination, with pivotally mounted gate elements, of gears secured to the said gate elements, coaxial with the pivot points, a means for normally holding the gates in raised position, levers pivotally mounted intermediate of their ends, segments formed on one of the ends of the levers, certain of these segments being provided with teeth along their upper arc portions, meshing with certain of the said gears for lowering the gates connected with the gears immediately upon motion of the levers, and the other segments being provided with teeth along their lower arc portions, meshable with the other gears after a certain amount of free motion for lowering the gates connected with these gears a short time after initial motion of the levers, and a means connected with the free ends of the said levers for moving the levers in unison.

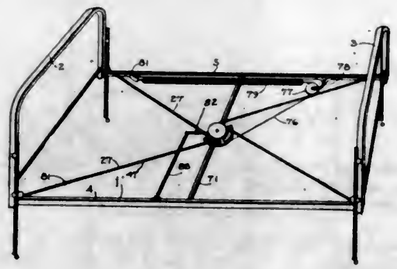
1,682,574. CLUTCH-LOCKING DEVICE FOR TRACTORS. JOHN KOCSIS, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 21, 1927. Serial No. 185,416. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)

2. In a device of the class described, the combination with a lever for supporting a catch, of a catch formed with parallel elongated apertures, screws passing thru the apertures and threadedly engaged in the lever so as to hold the catch adjustably on the lever, and a weight having an elongated aperture, one of the said screws is passed thru the last mentioned elongated apertures to adjustably hold the weight against the catch, so that as the catch is reset, the lever may be rebalanced by adjusting the position of the weight.



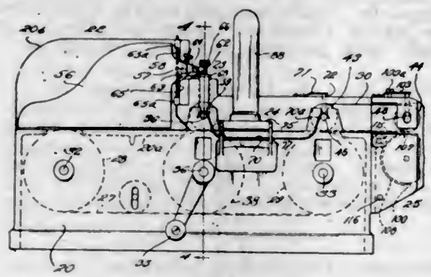
1,682,575. BEETLE TRAP. BENJAMIN LEON and MITCHELL FOW, Camden, N. J. Filed Feb. 6, 1928. Serial No. 252,079. 5 Claims. (Cl. 43—107.)

1. A device of the character stated comprising a funnel-like member having an opening in its side wall adjacent the upper rim thereof, an open-ended bait receptacle extended across said member with its open end in register with the opening in said member, a baffle plate projected from said receptacle, and a stopper for closing the open end of said member.



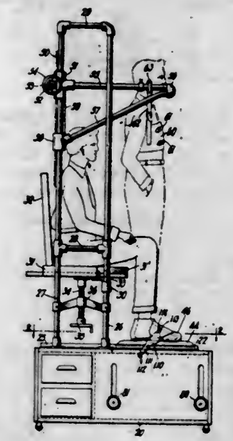
5. In combination a cup-like bait container having an annular, flanged, jar engaging opening in its bottom, a funnel-like member arranged within said container with its sloping side walls seated upon said flange, a bait receptacle extended across said member, and a baffle plate projected from said bait receptacle.

1,682,576. FLEXIBLE SHAFT COUPLING. WILLIAM E. LEWIS, West Mystic, Conn. Filed Mar. 15, 1927. Serial No. 175,579. 1 Claim. (Cl. 64—91.)



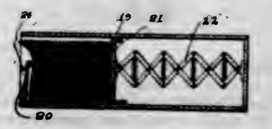
A ball-and-socket universal joint, including a ball provided with a circumferential rib transversely of the joint, said rib being provided with recesses which with the rib forms external drive teeth, a ring of greater diameter than the rib and of greater width than the rib surrounding the ball adjacent the rib, two detachable socket forming members attached one on each side of the ring and forming therewith the socket for encasing the ball, and a plurality of pins carried by the ring and projecting to fit within the respective recesses of the rib, whereby radial movement is transmitted from one member of the joint to the other.

1,682,577. COMPANION BED. HENRY B. LITTLEFIELD, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed Apr. 16, 1923. Serial No. 632,551. 12 Claims. (Cl. 5—11.)



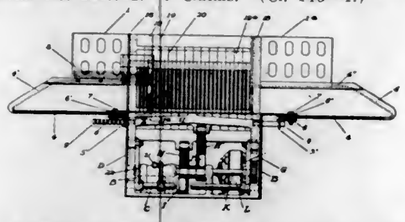
1. A construction of the character described having in combination a companion bed unit having corner posts, end members and side rails, means disposed at the bed corners and in the plane of the side rails for vertically adjusting said unit, and unitary counter-balancing means in the plane of said side rails.

1,682,578. ENVELOPE SEALING AND PRINTING DEVICE. JOSEPH A. NIPCHILD, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Feb. 10, 1923. Serial No. 618,208. 7 Claims. (Cl. 271—35.)



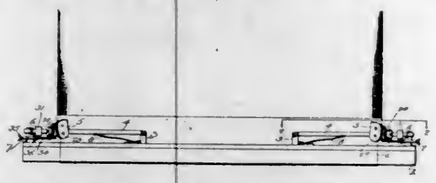
1. In a device of the character described, the combination of an envelope receptacle, an endless friction belt associated therewith and arranged to feed an envelope from the bottom of a stack of envelopes contained in the receptacle, said friction belt arranged whereby the top stretch of the belt may contact with the bottom envelope of the receptacle, a feed roll disposed above the belt and in contact therewith and a baffle disposed between the envelope stack and said feed roll, and actuated by vertical movement of the said roll.

1,682,579. ORTHOPEDIC LASTING-FITTING APPARATUS. CASTAGNOLA OLIVER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Nov. 9, 1925. Serial No. 67,843. 8 Claims. (Cl. 33—3.)



1. A foot molding apparatus comprising a platform, pairs of upright posts thereon, brackets slidable on the upper portion of said posts, said brackets having forwardly extending arms, means for positively raising or lowering said brackets, and a harness suspended from said arms, said harness being engageable with the body of a person.

1,682,580. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR DISPENSING NAPKINS. EDWIN D. PRATT, New York, N. Y. Filed July 18, 1923. Serial No. 652,400. 2 Claims. (Cl. 312—61.)



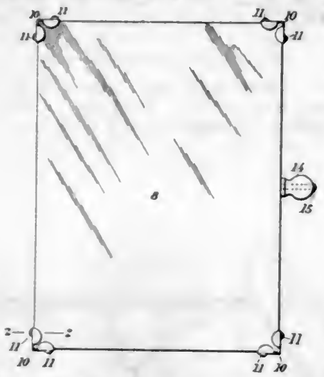
1. A device for dispensing paper napkins consisting of a casing, adapted to enclose a stack of folded napkins, means within the casing for applying a feeding pressure to the rear end of the stack, and end-plate shorter than the height of the casing mounted on the casing at the dispensing end thereof and normally inclined inwardly to engage and apply a counter-pressure on said stack between the upper and lower edges thereof to cause a folded edge of one of the napkins to lip-over said end-plate, and means cooperating with said end-plate to facilitate withdrawal of the napkin having such lipped-over edge.

1,682,581. BREAD-FASTENING MACHINE. OTTO F. ROHWEDDER, Davenport, Iowa. Filed July 10, 1926. Serial No. 121,712. 7 Claims. (Cl. 146—1.)

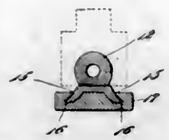
1. A bread fastening machine comprising a supporting platform, means for retaining the cut slices of a loaf of bread in their uncut position thereon, and means for inserting into the loaf from opposite ends thereof a plurality of retaining rods which overlap at the middle of the loaf.

1,682,582. LOOM TEMPLE. CHARLES F. SLOAN, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Aug. 10, 1927. Serial No. 212,011. 2 Claims. (Cl. 139—301.)

1. In a loom temple, the combination with a support adapted to be mounted transversely of the loom, of a bracket member mounted on and adjustable longitudinally of the support, a pair of pivot members projecting upwardly from said bracket, wheels rotatable on said pivots, a chain operative on said wheels and having links provided with projecting fabric-retaining elements, and a cover plate for said wheels secured in position overlying the said wheels by means of screws threaded into the tops of said pivot members.



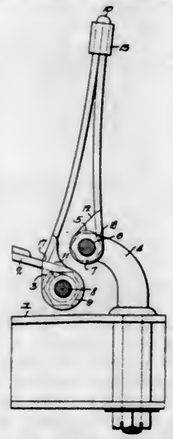
1,682,583. SAMPLE TAB. ALEXANDER SPITZER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Mar. 26, 1926. Serial No. 97,815. 4 Claims. (Cl. 206—82.)



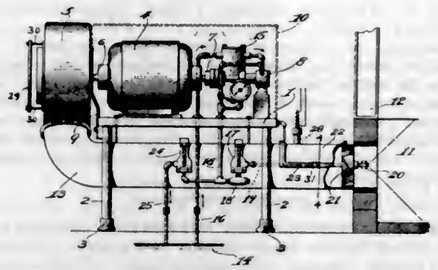
1. The combination, in a sample tab, of an integral body member, formed of a back portion, from which an integral side frame depends, said side frame being bent at the bottom to form a sub-back portion, which has a tongue struckout therefrom, and bent downwards to engage the bottom edge of inserted sample material, whose top edge is engaged by the upper edge of the sub-back portion, while a tongue struck-out from the back portion engages in a slot in the sub-back portion, and another tongue struck out from the back portion allows a grip to engage and disengage the latter mentioned tongue.

1,682,584. MEANS FOR MOUNTING MIRRORS AND THE LIKE. EDWIN DE HAVEN STEEL, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Steel & Wike Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 6, 1927. Serial No. 189,336. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—18.)

1. Means for mounting mirrors, including a pan having a rim formed on its edges, a cushion in said pan, a mirror superposed on said cushion and slightly overlapping the same, the outside edges of the mirror forming a substantial continuation of the outside edges of the rim, and brackets engaging the edges of said mirror and fixed to said pan.



1,682,585. PIN-STEM JOINT. ANTHONY E. WALLER, Providence, R. I. Filed Jan. 18, 1928. Serial No. 247,544. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—160.)



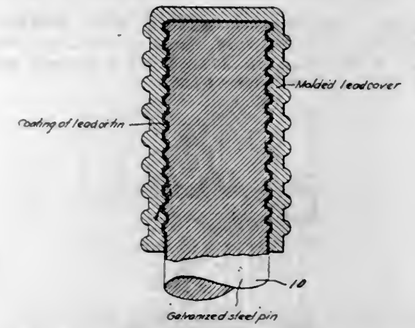
1. An article of manufacture comprising a pin stem joint member having a base formed of a disc of celluloid, the joint member being formed of sheet metal folded to provide a bridge portion with two spaced upstanding ears to pivotally support a pin stem, the opposite edges of the bridge between the ears having downwardly and outwardly turned pointed spurs imbedded in said celluloid disc permanently securing the disc to the joint.

1,682,586. SPRING SHACKLE. JOHN WARREN WATSON, Wayne, Pa. Original application filed July 3, 1919, Serial No. 308,556. Divided and this application filed Jan. 23, 1925. Serial No. 4,285. 16 Claims. (Cl. 267—54.)

1. For combination with a vehicle supporting spring and a relatively movable vehicle part, a member adapted for rigid attachment to the vehicle spring, a member adapted for rigid attachment to the other vehicle part, and a spring so supported by said members as to permit relative motion between said vehicle parts without necessitating movement between said members and the vehicle parts to which they are respectively rigidly attached, and means for automatically holding said members rigidly to said vehicle parts.

1,682,587. OIL BURNER. JOSEPH MALEY WENZ, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Home Comfort Heater Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 4, 1926. Serial No. 133,565. 2 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

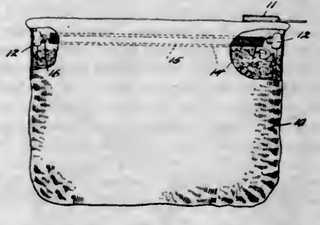
1. In a device of the character stated, a base, a unit superimposed thereupon and comprising a blower, oil pump and a motor, the latter being arranged between said blower and oil pump, an air conduit leading from said blower below said base, an oil conduit leading from said oil pump, an atomizer into which oil is discharged, a relief valve in the line between said oil pump and atomizer and located at a point below said atomizer, and a second relief valve in communication with the oil supply pipe having an overflow leading to the source of oil supply both of said relief valves being located below the plane of said atomizer.



1,682,588. PRODUCTION OF DRY GASES. GUSTAV WIETZEL and FRITZ STOEWENER, Ludwigshafen-on-the-Rhine, Germany, assignors to I. G. Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed June 29, 1925, Serial No. 40,440, and in Germany June 30, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 183—4.)

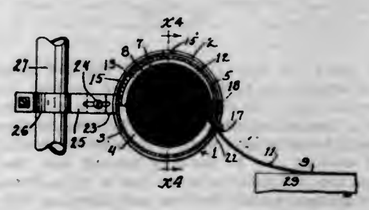
2. The process of liquefying gases which consists in drying and compressing the gases, cooling them and adsorbing any residual water vapor by means of silica gel of high adsorbing power, and liquefying the gases and regenerating the adsorbent at intervals by means of gases which have undergone the liquefaction operation and are at a pressure not substantially exceeding atmospheric pressure.

1,682,589. SEMILIQUID BITUMINOUS COMPOSITION. JOSEPH HAY AMIES, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Feb. 20, 1923. Serial No. 620,305. 1 Claim. (Cl. 134—51.)



The herein described method of making a semi-liquid bituminous composition which consists in placing approximately sixty-five pounds of granulated bituminous material in a heating still, then placing therewith about thirty-five pounds of crude petroleum oil, or the like, and mixing the two together through the medium of heat, until thoroughly united, then adding thereto and therewith, substantially fifteen pounds of granulated oxide of calcium in an already slaking condition, then adding ten pounds of crude naphtha therewith after the employment of the slaking of the lime, and then causing the same to become thoroughly intergral with the body of the composition substantially as specified.

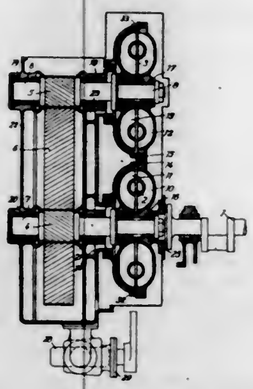
1,682,590. INSULATOR PIN AND PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING THE SAME. ARTHUR O. AUSTIN, Barberton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Ohio Brass Company, Mansfield, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Mar. 1, 1923, Serial No. 621,966. Divided and this application filed Oct. 22, 1925. Serial No. 64,261. 19 Claims. (Cl 22—203.)



1. The process of manufacturing insulator pins wherein the portion of said pin to which the insulator is to be secured is subjected to a flux and coated with a relatively thin coat of metal, after which a thimble of relatively soft metal is formed upon said coated portion.

1,682,591. HUMIDIFIER FOR TOBACCO CONTAINERS. ISAAC N. BARRITT, Fairhaven, Mass. Filed Mar. 27, 1926. Serial No. 98,035. 4 Claims. (Cl. 206—41.6.)

1. The combination with a pouch having flexible walls and a mouth provided with closure means, of a humidifying device therefor comprising a coiled spring having its ends secured to the walls of the pouch within the same and adjacent the mouth thereof, said spring being flexible and the walls thereof having spaces for the passage of water vapor, and a quantity of absorbent material within the said member.



1,682,592. TOILET-SEAT ACCESSORY. JUSTIN NEALL BARKER and MARJORIE NUTTING BARKER, Santa Monica, Calif. Filed Feb. 28, 1927. Serial No. 171,550. 9 Claims. (Cl. 242—55.5.)

4. A toilet seat accessory comprising a semi-housing including end caps and a hollow semi-cylindrical body provided at one side with a notch; a hollow semi-cylindrical closure arranged between said caps and adapted to conform to said body when turned to open position, and adapted when closed, to form in connection with the notched edge of said housing, a slot through which a strip of paper may be drawn from a roll inside the housing when the closure is closed; said closure having a projecting lip that forms a handle and a strip cutter.

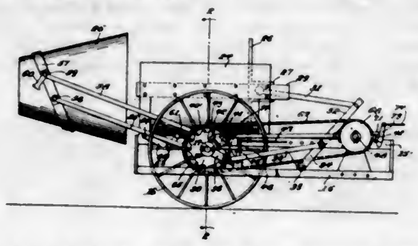
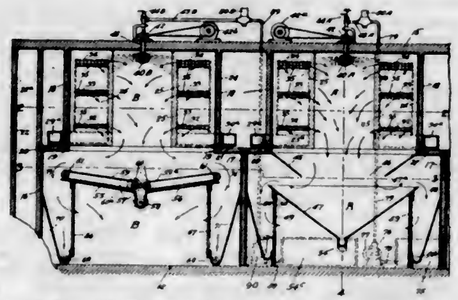
1,682,593. REVERSING DEVICE FOR WORKING SHAFTS. GUSTAV BAUER, Hamburg, Germany. Filed Mar. 4, 1927, Serial No. 172,806, and in Germany Mar. 23, 1926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—59.)



A device for reversing working shafts, such as propeller shafts of ships, driving shafts of motor vehicles, rolling mills, hoisting machines and the like to be driven by high-speed engines by means of non reversible liquid transmission gears as well as by cog-wheel transmission gears, comprising in combination, two liquid transmission gears, two shafts, one being coupled with one of said gears, cogged rims provided on the driving members of said gears and meshing with each other, one of said shafts being formed by an extension of the driving shafts of the engine or motor, the other by a separate counter-shaft, pinions connected with the driven parts of said gears, and a large cog-wheel meshing with said pinions substantially as set forth.

1,682,594. CARTON. FREDERICK J. BENJAMIN, Wilmette, Ill. Filed Jan. 2, 1925. Serial No. 127. 3 Claims. (Cl. 46—37.)

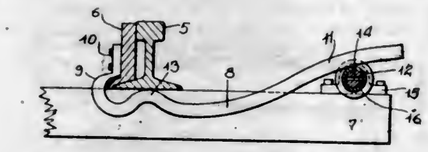


1. A blank for folding boxes and the like comprising sections adapted to form the walls of the box, pictorial delineations upon the side of the blank which forms the outside of the box, indicia associated with said delineations to indicate severing lines whereby delineation bearing parts of said sections may be partially severed from the blank and bent into the interior of the box to form elements of a relief picture within the box, and severing lines upon the sections of the blank forming the front wall and top of the box to delimit light and visual access orifices in the box.

1,682,595. SHOCKING MACHINE. EDWIN W. BROHOLM, Twodot, Mont. Filed Aug. 28, 1925. Serial No. 53,184. 11 Claims. (Cl. 56—419.)

1. In a shocking machine, a wheel supported hopper adapted to receive bundled grain, a shock former normally positioned to receive the bundles from the hopper, a bundle pusher operating within the hopper, means to operate the bundle pusher to transfer the bundles from the hopper to the shock former and means to move the shock former pivotally to deposit the shock in upright position subsequently swing the shock former upward above the shock and thereafter return the shock former to bundle receiving position.

1,682,596. DEHYDRATING APPARATUS. WILLIAM D. CALLAN, Duluth, Minn., assignor to Economic Powdered Products Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 5, 1920, Serial No. 379,026. Renewed July 5, 1927. 5 Claims. (Cl. 159—4.)

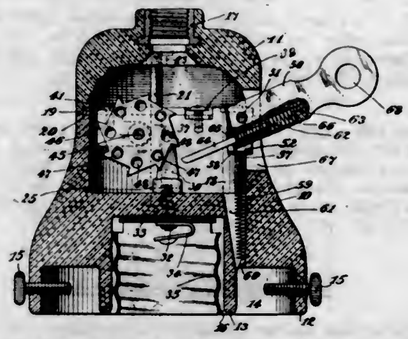


1. A dehydrating cell for fluids comprising an upper and lower compartment, means for directing currents of heated air into said upper compartment, a fluid sprayer in said upper compartment, said cell having a horizontally extending restricted air passage from the lower portion of said upper compartment to said lower compartment, collecting means below said passage and air ducts passing downwardly around said collecting means and connected with said restricted passage.

2. A dehydrating cell for milk or other fluids comprising an upper and a lower compartment, means for directing currents of heated air into said upper compartment, a fluid sprayer in said upper compartment, said cell having an air passage from the upper to the lower compartment, between the adjacent ends of the two compartments, collecting means below said air passage, air ducts around said collecting means, screens below said collecting means through which the air passes from said ducts, and means for collecting the material separated from the air by said screens.

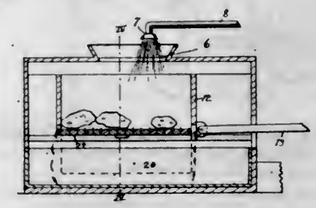
4. In an apparatus for dehydrating fluids, a powdering cell, means for spraying material in the upper portion thereof, means in the upper portion of the cell for delivering currents of heated air into the spray of the material to be powdered, a table mounted in the lower portion of said cell and inwardly and downwardly inclined, a conveying means communicating with the inner portion of said table, gathering belts operating over said table for delivering the powdered material to said conveyor, the currents of air from the upper portion of said cell flowing downwardly and over the belts, and means positioned below the plane of the belts for screening said currents of air.

1,682,597. SWITCH-POINT DEPRESSOR AND HOLD-DOWN DEVICE. PHILIP CAMELI, Wilmington, Del. Filed Mar. 19, 1927. Serial No. 176,688. 12 Claims. (Cl. 246—435.)



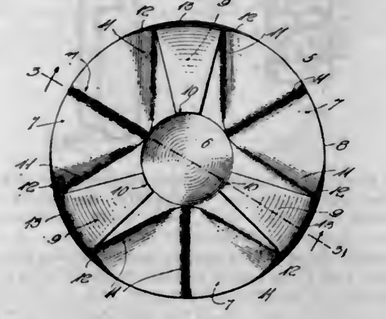
1. The combination with a horizontally movable railway switch point and an adjacent stock rail, of means to automatically positively depress the free end portion of said switch point when the latter is moved to operative position toward said stock rail, said point depressing means embodying a bar extending transversely beneath the stock rail and fixed at its inner end to the switch point.

1,682,598. APPARATUS FOR TESTING EGGS. DONALD JOHNSON COOK, Gunthorpe, near Melton Constable, England. Filed Oct. 25, 1926, Serial No. 143,988, and in Great Britain Oct. 28, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 99—6.)



1. Apparatus for testing eggs comprising a glove for fitting on the hand on which are mounted electric lamp bulbs between the fingers set towards the palm, said lamps being fed by means of flexible connecting wires passing up the back of the glove.

1,682,599. SWITCH SOCKET. GEORGE M. CONDIT, Waterville, Conn., assignor of one-half to W. W. Bowers, Waterbury, Conn. Filed May 18, 1926. Serial No. 109,818. 5 Claims. (Cl. 173—354.)

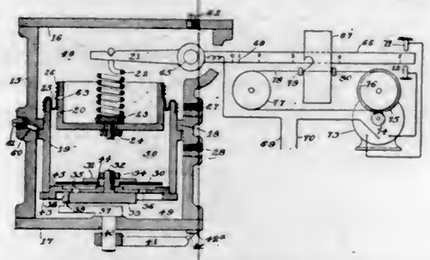


1. In a switch socket, a body of insulating material, spaced spring contacts therein, a revoluble member mounted between the said spaced spring contacts and adapted to make and break an electrical circuit between the same, a lever mounted in the body member, and a plunger yieldingly mounted in the said lever for operating the said revoluble member.

1,682,600. PEELING MACHINE. FRANK CUNICO, San Francisco, Calif., assignor of one-half to Italo Politi, San Francisco, Calif. Filed May 9, 1927. Serial No. 190,055. 3 Claims. (Cl. 146—49.)

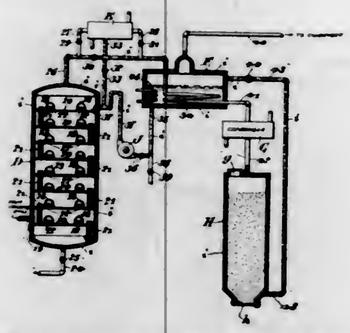
1. In a peeling apparatus of the character described, a shaking element, a peeling element positioned in the bottom of said shaking element, said peeling element including a plurality of vertically disposed knives spaced from each other.

1,682,601. INDOOR-GOLF HOLE. JOHN A. CUNNINGHAM, Bethlehem, Pa., assignor of one-half to Mary Cunningham, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed June 18, 1928. Serial No. 286,184. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—36.)



1. An indoor golf hole comprising a disk having a central pocket, a plurality of ball runways inclining to said pocket from the peripheral edge of the disk, and a plurality of radial ridges between said runways extending from said peripheral edge of the disk to said pocket, the inner ends of said ridges being diametrically opposed to the radial centers of said runways and constituting abrupt barriers to prevent rolling of the ball from the side of the pocket opposite that at which it enters, said runways being of considerably greater width than said ridges.

1,682,602. FLOW METER. CLARENCE A. DAWLEY, Plainfield, N. J. Filed Apr. 5, 1924. Serial No. 704,465. 8 Claims. (Cl. 73—167.)



1. A differential gauge comprising a pressure body provided with an opening in one wall thereof, a piston in said body subject to pressures on its opposite faces, a torsion member extending loosely through said opening and connected, within said pressure body, to said piston, supporting means for said member, a torsionally flexible member surrounding a portion of said torsion member and connected at one end to said member and at its other end to the pressure body adjacent said opening, means for applying a counterforce to the external portion of said torsion member, and means to measure the counterforce applied.

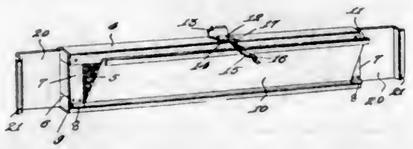
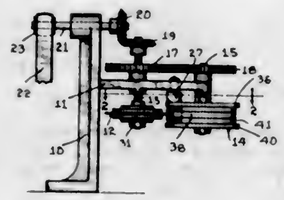
1,682,603. LIQUID PHASE PURIFICATION OF DISTILLATES. THOMAS G. DELBRIDGE and JOSEPH BENNETT HILL, Philadelphia, Pa., assignors to The Atlantic Refining Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 118,953. 5 Claims. (Cl. 196—147.)



1. In the art of refining cracked petroleum distillates, the method which comprises fractionating the vapors of the distillate by contact with reflux liquid, condensing the vapors, bringing the condensate in liquid phase at a temperature substantially above its normal boiling point into contact with fuller's earth to effect polymerization of gum-forming and color-imparting bodies, maintaining thereon while in contact with the fuller's earth a super-atmospheric pressure of such magnitude as to maintain the oil in liquid phase, transporting polymers from the fuller's earth by the oil, thereafter distilling the treated oil to effect separation of lower boiling point vapors from higher boiling point oil containing the polymers in solution, and utilizing said higher boiling oil as reflux liquid in said fractionation.

1,682,604. CLAMP. HIRAM G. DISBROW, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Sept. 24, 1927. Serial No. 221,736. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—263.)

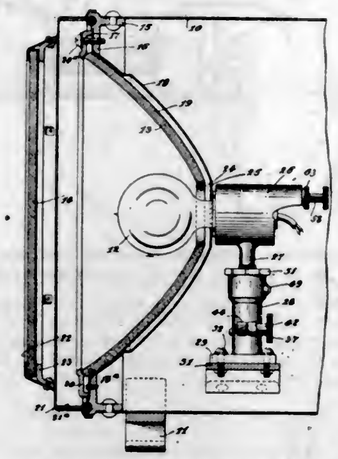


1. A clamp of the character described, comprising a flat upper plate and a flat lower plate, means for permanently connecting said plates along one edge, a clamping plate arranged intermediate said first mentioned plates, a guiding bar for guiding said clamping plate on the connecting means as it moves between the first two mentioned plates, means at the ends of said clamping plate for securing the guiding bar to the clamping plate, and a screw member for moving said clamping plate in one direction.

1,682,605. VENTILATOR. WILLIAM DICKS, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed July 20, 1927. Serial No. 207,232. 1 Claim. (Cl. 98—99.)

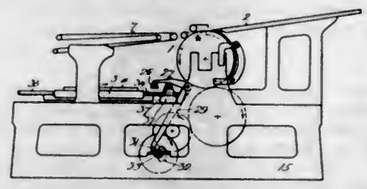
A window ventilator comprising a substantially rectangular frame whose upper and lower members are of metal and have their edges flanged, blocks arranged between the ends of said members and secured thereto, a metal plate fixed on the outer face of each of the blocks and having its lower edge rounded to form the same with a barrel, a shutter comprising a plate having its lower edges provided with projecting pintles which are received in and frictionally engage with the barrels, said shutter having its upper edge rounded to form the same with a bead, an angle plate fixed on the top of the frame and designed to have its upstanding flange contact with the inner face of the bottom rail of the lower sash, a strap hingedly secured to the angle plate having an offset portion and having corrugations designed for engagement with the bead of the shutter for holding the shutter against the frame or at angle positions with respect to said frame, plates slidable through the ends of the frame and guided between the flanges and the top and bottom of the frame and the blocks at the ends of the frame, said plates having offset ends to be received in the grooves for the sash in the window casing, and a reticulated facing for the frame.

1,682,606. PINKING MACHINE. ABRAHAM DVILNSKY, Brockton, Mass. Filed Jan. 11, 1927. Serial No. 160,443. 6 Claims. (Cl. 164—64.)



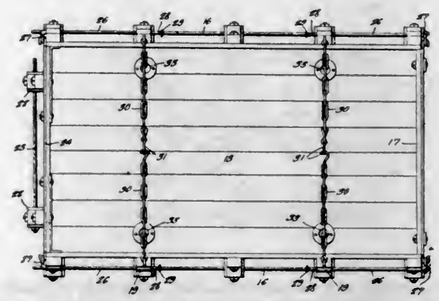
3. In a pinking machine, a pinking cutter, and a companion roller having a ring in juxta-position with the periphery of said cutter for co-acting therewith, said ring being of softer material than that of the cutter.

1,682,607. EXPANDING BRACELET AND LIKE ARTICLES OF JEWELRY. ANDREW DOWNES, London, England, assignor to Cartier Limited, London, England, a British Company. Filed Aug. 23, 1926, Serial No. 131,066, and in Great Britain Sept. 8, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 59—79.)



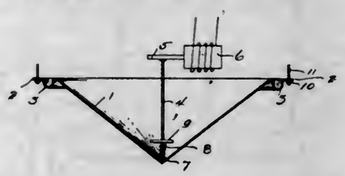
1. An expanding article of jewelry consisting of a plurality of elements each comprising a front plate, a pair of parallel tubular members, and a plurality of studs each having one end connected to one face of the front plate and its other end connected to one of said tubular members, a pair of continuous elastic members each passing through the aligned tubular members of said front plates, and links each engaging and slidable relatively to the adjacent pairs of studs of adjacent front plates between said front plates and said tubular members.

1,682,608. LIGHT-PROJECTING DEVICE. FREDERICK W. DRESSEL, New York, N. Y., assignor to Dressel Railway Lamp & Signal Corporation, Arlington, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 1, 1924. Serial No. 710,217. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—44.)



1. A head light, including a casing having a reflector of the beam projecting type with a hole in the rear end thereof, secured to said casing by its rim and a rigid base support secured to and extending vertically upward from the bottom portion of said casing and free from contact or connection with said reflector except by way of the casing and rim securing means, in combination with a lamp bulb and means for supporting it from said base and through said hole independently of said reflector, with its luminous element located in focal regions within the reflector and its socket support outside of said reflector; said support being formed with means affording universal adjustment of said luminous element within said focal regions and means for rigidly locking the parts in the adjusted positions; said support means including a vertical standard and guide column therefor and an intermediate sleeve swiveled in the column and screw threaded about the standard for rotary and screw support thereof.

1,682,609. CUTTING AND CREASING PRESS. FRED S. ENGLISH, New London, Conn. Filed Sept. 2, 1926. Serial No. 133,211. 11 Claims. (Cl. 93—58.)

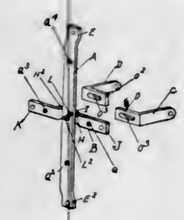


1. The combination of a press for cutting and creasing stock including a cutting die, and impression cylinder, and means adjacent the path of said die for brushing the surface thereof.

1,682,610. VEHICLE TRUCK BED. JAMES R. FELL, Haleyville, Ala., assignor to William F. Dillard, Haleyville, Ala. Filed Oct. 5, 1927. Serial No. 224,258. 3 Claims. (Cl. 296—14.)

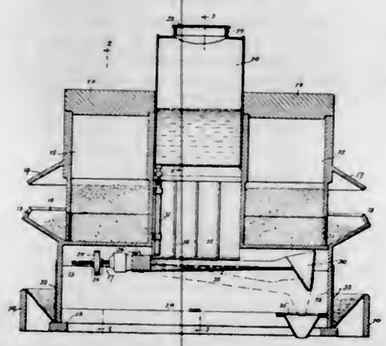
1. A truck bed construction comprising a supporting frame, plate members carried upon the sides of the supporting frame and extended appreciable distances beyond the extremities thereof, bolster stakes arranged between the plates, rod members extended through the plates and bolsters to swingably mount the latter thereon, siding carried by the stakes, plate members carried upon the ends of the bolsters and having hooks upon the extremities thereof, plate members carried upon the outer sides of the stakes being provided with sleeve portions, locking rods mounted within the sleeve portions having hooks adapted for engagement with the aforementioned hooks, and crank portions carried upon the opposed ends of the locking rods.

1,682,611. RING CONE-SHAPED DIAPHRAGM DEVICE. EARL H. FOLEY and PAUL J. GUNN, Tacoma, Wash., assignors to International Acoustigraph Company, Tacoma, Wash. Filed Oct. 8, 1925. Serial No. 61,250. 2 Claims. (Cl. 181—32.)



2. In a diaphragm device, a conical primary vibrating area having a period of vibration within the scale of audio-frequency, a laterally extending flange about the periphery of said area for attaching the diaphragm in a frame, and a U-shaped rib integral with the flange and the primary vibrating area, and between the two and opening toward the base of the cone, the material of which is under tension at all times to have a period of vibration above the scale of audio-frequency vibrations.

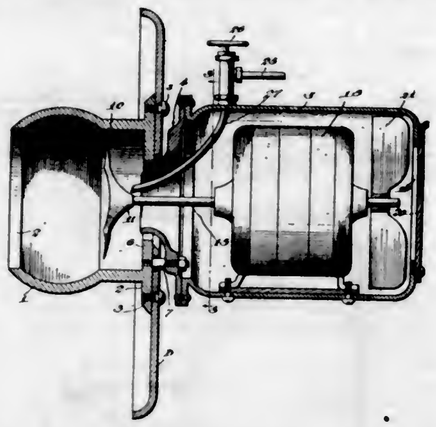
1,682,612. ANIMAL TRAP. WALTER A. GIBBS, Holly Oak, Del. Filed Apr. 5, 1924. Serial No. 704,429. 7 Claims. (Cl. 43—88.)



1. An animal trap comprising a pair of U-shaped cooperating pivoted jaws, springs for bringing said jaws together, and a container arranged between the jaws adjacent the pivots and adapted to be engaged on opposite sides by the side arms of the U-shaped jaws when the latter are brought together.

1,682,613. SUPPORT FOR FIRE-ALARM AND POLICE SIGNAL BOXES. WILLIAM H. GREENLAW, Beverly, Mass. Filed Mar. 31, 1927. Serial No. 179,959. 2 Claims. (Cl. 248—20.)

1. A device of the kind described, comprising an upright member, having its terminals off-set so as to bring its extreme ends out of, but parallel with, the line of its intermediate portion, a cross member having its center off-set so as to bring said center out of but parallel with the line of its adjoining ends, means for joining the two at substantially 90°, and means for securing thereon a signal box or other equipment, said upright and cross members adaptable at their ends to be secured against a support.



1,682,614. POULTRY FEEDING AND WATERING DEVICE. HENRY V. GUERTIN, Patchogue, N. Y. Filed Mar. 29, 1927. Serial No. 179,269. 3 Claims. (Cl. 119—52.)

1. A poultry feeding device, including a base and a superstructure, removable trough elements carried by the base, longitudinally spaced feed bins on the superstructure having troughs communicating with and gravitationally fed by the bins, and a canopy carried by the superstructure and extending outwardly from the bins over the bin troughs, for conveying off and preventing drain water from entering the bin troughs, the said bin troughs having downwardly and outwardly inclined outer walls for conveying off drain water from the removable base trough elements.

1,682,615. OIL BURNER. HAROLD H. HOLMES and ARTHUR F. ESPERSEN, La Crosse, Wis. Filed Sept. 29, 1926. Serial No. 138,477. 2 Claims. (Cl. 158—77.)

1. An oil burner comprising a combustion chamber, a housing having a neck discharging into the combustion chamber, an electric motor in the housing having shafts projecting from its opposite ends, a rotating spreader mounted on the shaft of the motor that extends into the combustion chamber, a fan located on the other shaft, the housing having an opening adjacent said fan, said rotating spreader having its forward face exposed to the fire of the combustion chamber and having a curving rear face of unbroken continuous structure, and means for supplying oil to the rear face of the spreader at the hub thereof.

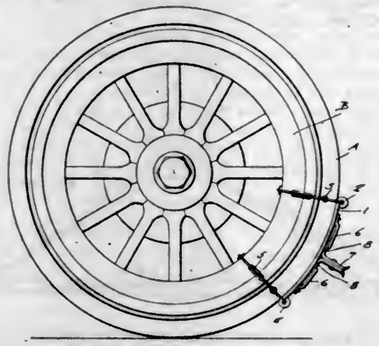
1,682,616. TRIANGLE PAD. FITCH C. IRVING, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 25, 1927. Serial No. 194,103. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—22.)

1. A triangle pad comprising a body of comparatively strong flexible material, a cover for said body, a series of lines of stitching extending across said cover and body for connecting the parts together and presenting bending lines, and means for connecting said body at one end to one of the sides of the triangle said end being parallel to said bending lines.



1,682,617. SAFETY HOOK. WILLIAM G. JENSEN and KRESTEN R. JENSEN, Nowata, Okla. Filed Oct. 17, 1927. Serial No. 226,796. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—241.)

1. A safety hook having a body member and a shank with a recess therein opening through the inner face of the shank and also having an opening in the outer edge of the body, an L-shaped tongue pivotally connected at one end in said recess and adapted to swing by gravity across the hook and close the space between the bill and the body thereof, and cooperating means carried by the tongue and the hook body for locking the tongue in closed position.

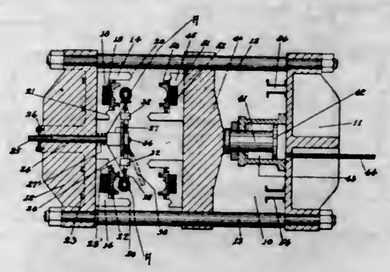
1,682,618. WHEEL ATTACHMENT. LOUIS S. KLINE, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed Aug. 12, 1925, Serial No. 49,806. Renewed Mar. 30, 1928. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—2.)

A device of the character described including a shoe member adapted to conform to the exterior of a pneumatic tire and spaced guides on the outer surface of the shoe, a ground engaging element including a pair of right-angular plates having one side thereof arranged in contacting relation and secured together, the other sides being extended in opposite direction and formed to conform to the curvature of a shoe and adapted to be disposed within said guides, the outer edge of the parallel portions of said plates being notched to form teeth, said teeth curving outwardly with the teeth on one plate curving in a direction opposite that of the teeth on the other plate.



1,682,619. FLEXIBLE STEAM SPOTTER. ERBEN E. LA TURNER, Jerome, Idaho. Filed Aug. 17, 1927. Serial No. 213,603. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—18.)

1. A vulcanizing device including a plate having slits extending from the side edges thereof to permit the plate to be bent over a tire casing, a pipe formed into loops, secured to the plate, and said loops adapted to be supplied with steam to heat the plate to vulcanize rubber contacting with the plate.

1,682,620. APPARATUS FOR ELECTRICAL VULCANIZING. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 10, 1922. Serial No. 528,141. 26 Claims. (Cl. 18—17.)

1. An apparatus for vulcanizing rubber tires comprising a fixed, annular, mold section, a movable, annular, mold section, means for supporting the tire to be vulcanized between said sections, means for moving the movable section towards the fixed section to place the tire under pressure, a primary coil, and a transformer core including a fixed core section and a movable core section moving with the movable mold section, said transformer core sections being so arranged as to engage each other to constitute a closed magnetic path when the mold sections are brought together upon the tire, whereby said mold sections become the secondary of the transformer and vulcanizing heat is generated therein.

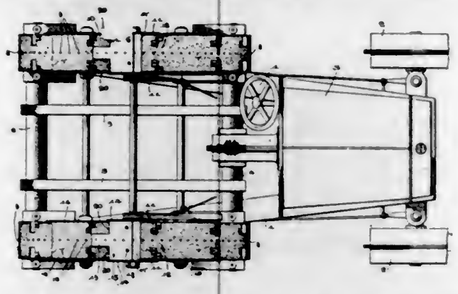
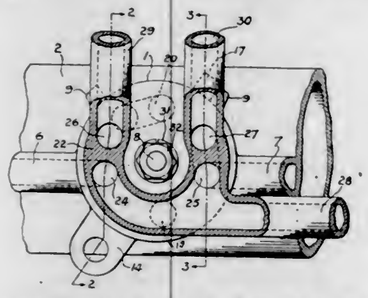
1,682,621. FORCEPS. FRED LENESCHMIDT, Tripp, S. Dak. Filed Mar. 25, 1927. Serial No. 178,361. 8 Claims. (Cl. 128—328.)



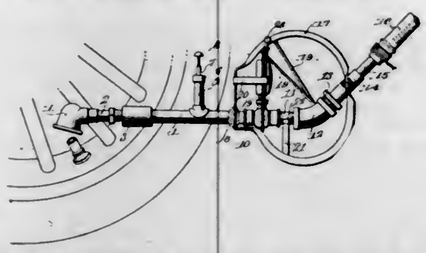
1. A veterinary instrument comprising a shank, a head at one end thereof, notched gripping fingers pivotally carried by the head, a rod movable longitudinally of the shank and having one end within the head, a disk secured to the referred to end of the rod for engagement within the notches of the fingers to move the latter pivotally when the rod is moved longitudinally, spring means to move the rod in a direction to open the fingers, a handle at the other end of the shank, an arm pivotally mounted within the handle and having an operative connection with the end of the rod, a trigger pivotally mounted within the handle, and engaging the arm, whereby the latter may be actuated to operate the rod and move the fingers to a closed position and means engaging the trigger to prevent opening movement of the fingers.

1,682,622. MOTOR SLEIGH. JOHANNES LÖFSTRÖM and OLOF LÖFSTRÖM, Ostersund, Sweden, assignors of one-half to Anders Eriksson, Boda, Lit, Sweden. Filed Aug. 20, 1924. Serial No. 738,221, and in Sweden May 19, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 180—5.)



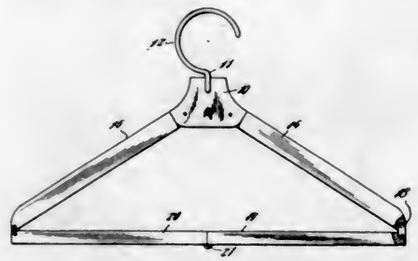
1. Driving aggregate for motor sleighs comprising in combination a sled, a frame, driving and guiding wheels rotatably journaled in the front and rear ends respectively of the frame, an endless traction element running on said wheels, front and rear supports provided on the sled, parallel links of equal length and pivotally connected at one end to the said frame and at the other end to the said supports at equal veritcal distances from the runners, and means for pivotally connecting the sled with a horizontal shaft of an automobile, said links permitting the frame together with the traction element, when acted upon by unevennesses of the snow, to ascend and descend automatically and independently of the sled while maintaining the parallel position of the driving part of the traction element relatively to the runners of the sled.

1,682,623. BELT SCRAPER FOR TRACTORS. JOSEPH MOSCA, Rouse, Colo. Filed Oct. 15, 1926. Serial No. 141,808. 2 Claims. (Cl. 280—158.)



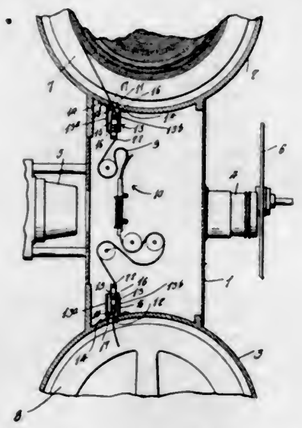
1. A scraper attachment for tractive belts comprising belt embracing supports, a rock shaft journaled therein to overlie and traverse an embraced belt and having a portion of its peripheral surface flattened, a resilient scraper blade secured adjacent one end to the flattened surface of said rock shaft in tangential relation thereto, an adjusting handle secured to one end of said shaft, and means for releasably holding said handle in different adjusted positions of the rock shaft and its tangential scraper blade.

1,682,624. VALVE. JOHN HILL NORTH, Seattle, Wash. Filed Aug. 15, 1927. Serial No. 213,074. 4 Claims. (Cl. 251—90.)



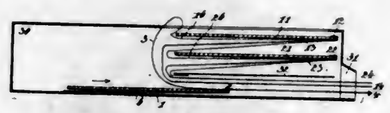
4. A valve comprising a ported body and a ported cover block between which a ported disc is adapted to be rocked to establish communication between ports of the body and ports of the block, and means for exerting a yielding pressure tending to force the block to the disc and the disc to the valve body.

1,682,625. INFLATION DEVICE. EMIL J. OLSEN, North St. Paul, Minn., assignor of twenty-five per cent to Waldo Olsen, twenty-five per cent to Emelia Olsen, twenty-five per cent to Corrine Olsen, and twenty-five per cent to Vernon Olsen, North St. Paul, Minn. Filed Oct. 14, 1927. Serial No. 226,181. 6 Claims. (Cl. 152—11.5.)



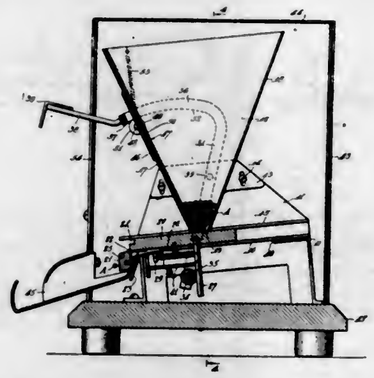
1. An inflating head for air line terminals comprising a length of tubing having an air chuck at one end and an air line connection at the other, an inflation pressure gauge, an air control valve interposed in said tubing mounting and having valved communication with said pressure gauge, said valve having an operating handle and a guard protecting said gauge mounted on said tubing and having portions positioned for engagement by said valve handle in different positions of adjustment of the valve.

1,682,626. GARMENT HANGER. ARTHUR H. PECKHAM, Chiloquin, Oreg. Filed Dec. 6, 1926. Serial No. 152,970. 2 Claims. (Cl. 223—65.)



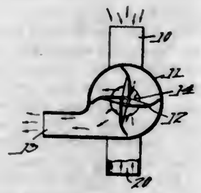
1. A garment hanger of the character described comprising a bridge piece, pivoted sections thereon adapted to extend obliquely therefrom, a bracing bar pivotally connected with the ends of said sections, said bar including pivotally connected sections, whereby the latter and the first mentioned sections of the hanger can be folded in parallelism directly beneath said bridge piece, a hook formed from a single length of material and including opposed companion portions having their corresponding extremities pivoted on the opposite side of the bridge piece for the purpose specified.

1,682,627. FIRE STOP OR TRAP FOR MOTION-PICTURE MACHINES. DON A. RAYMOND, Monticello, Ind. Filed Oct. 13, 1927. Serial No. 225,939. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—17.)



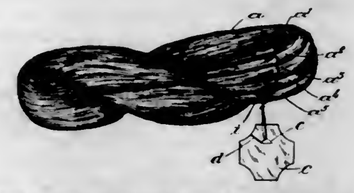
1. A fire stop or trap for motion picture machines, comprising a casing, a plate extending longitudinally of the casing and projecting beyond one end thereof, a flange on the end of the plate within the casing for contact with one wall of the casing, means pivoting the plate to such wall of the casing, a spring interposed between such wall of the casing and the plate, rollers journaled on the plate for contact with the opposite side of the casing, and a roller journaled on the plate beyond the casing.

1,682,628. PHOTOGRAPHIC FILM OR PLATE PACK. MARIAN ROMANOWICZ and JOHANN ROMANOWICZ, Vienna, Austria. Filed May 19, 1927, Serial No. 192,614, and in Austria May 25, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 95—22.)



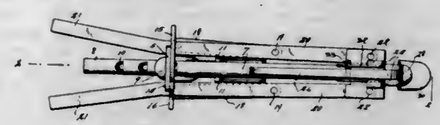
1. In a pack of superposed photographic carriers of sensitized coatings the combination of a plurality of such carriers, a backing sheet and a protecting sheet attached to the front edge of each of such carriers, the backing sheet of each carrier being arranged between such carrier and the protecting sheet of the same and on the same side thereof, the rear end of the protecting sheet of each carrier being connected to the rear end of the backing sheet of the next lower carrier.

1,682,629. DISPENSING DEVICE. LOUIS ROSSI, New York, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Frank A. Sanford, New York, N. Y. Filed May 17, 1927. Serial No. 192,059. 8 Claims. (Cl. 312—79.)



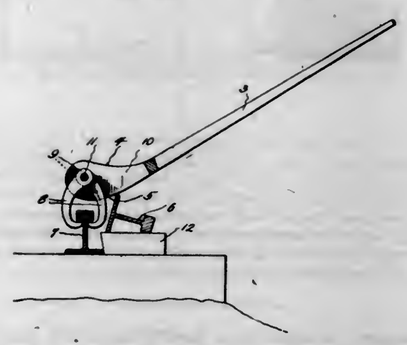
1. A dispensing device including a hopper, a valve element having a receiving pocket registrable with the discharge end of the hopper upon movement of the valve element in one direction for receiving from the hopper through the discharge end, an article to be vended, and means co-operating with the valve element upon movement in an opposite direction for effecting a wide opening of the pocket to cause a discharge of the contents.

1,682,630. MEANS FOR INCREASING BUOYANCY. FREDERICK G. SARGENT, Westford, Mass. Filed Jan. 30, 1928. Serial No. 250,379. 3 Claims. (Cl. 244—18.)



1. In a device for the purpose described, the combination with a tall vertical casing open at the top and closed at the bottom, of a blower rotatable on a horizontal axis and connected with the casing at a point substantially midway between the top and the bottom by an air inlet passage and having an outlet passage extending to the front or rear, whereby the operation of the blower will produce a reduction of air pressure in the bottom of the casing and thus a difference in air pressure on the outside and inside of the bottom wall of the casing to tend to lift it.

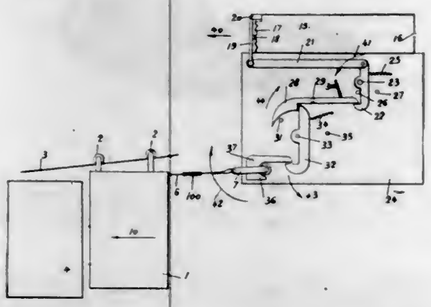
1,682,631. HANK OF YARN AND THE LIKE. GOTTHOLD SAYLER, Zittau, Germany. Filed July 2, 1927, Serial No. 203,133, and in Germany May 7, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 242—159.)



1. A new article of manufacture and sale comprising in combination a hank of yarn and a member on which the yarn can be wound connected to the beginning thread of the hank of yarn.

1,682,632. TIRE SPREADER. ELMER H. SCHAEFFER, Reading, Pa. Filed Nov. 5, 1927. Serial No. 231,333. 6 Claims. (Cl. 152—27.)

1. A tire spreader comprising a plate having a tire engaging lug, links at opposite sides of the plate and pivoted thereto, levers pivoted upon the links, a casting pivoted to the levers, a bar slidably received by the casting, said plate being also slidably engaged with the bar, a head carried by the bar provided with a tire engaging lip, a lever pivoted to the head, and a rigid member pivoted to the casting and having a part engageable with the last named lever.



1,682,633. RAIL BREAKER. HERMAN J. SCHRADER, Atkinson, Nebr. Filed Sept. 2, 1927. Serial No. 217,240. 2 Claims. (Cl. 29—66.)

1. A rail breaker comprising an elongated lever having a longitudinal slot in its front portion which opens through its front end and its upper and lower edges, said front portion of said lever having longitudinally curved cam portions at opposite sides of said slot for contact with a rail to be broken, a pair of grapple hooks whose lower ends are shaped to grip a fixed rail of a track, the upper ends of said hooks being received in said slot and having alined eyes, and a pivot passing through the front portion of the lever and through said eyes.

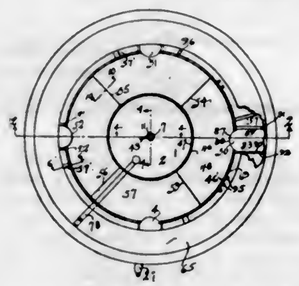
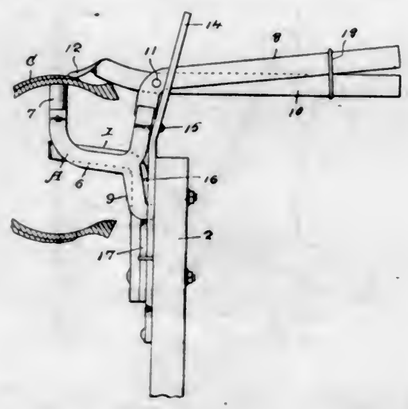
1,682,634. AUTOMATIC FIRE-PROTECTION DOOR OR SCREEN. JULES SCHWAB, Paris, France, assignor to Societe Thermosonus, Paris, France. Filed June 26, 1926, Serial No. 118,868, and in France June 29, 1925. 6 Claims. (Cl. 189—47.)

1. Arrangement for the automatic control of fire protection closure devices, comprising in combination, a fluid containing expansible chamber, a lever mechanism directly actuated by the expansion of said chamber, a self setting detent mechanism normally operative for retaining the closure device in its open position and normally locked by said lever mechanism, said lever mechanism arranged to move the detent mechanism and to free the closure device for self-closure when the expansible chamber is deformed by a sudden expansion due to a sharp rise of temperature.



1,682,635. PIPE COUPLING. CHARLES E. SMITH, Three Rivers, Tex. Filed Mar. 25, 1927. Serial No. 178,385. 3 Claims. (Cl. 285—157.)

1. A pipe coupler having its bore threaded from the ends thereof and having annular pockets at the terminals of the threads, and hollow frusto conical expanders formed independent of the coupling and designed to be arranged therein and have their widened ends contact with the inner walls of the pockets and to project into the threaded portion of the bore of the coupler and engage with pipes which are screwed in the coupler.



1,682,636. MECHANICAL BASEBALL GAME. GOLDWIN SMITH, Tampa, Fla. Filed Aug. 20, 1927. Serial No. 214,317. 18 Claims. (Cl. 273—117.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a ball, of rotatable means, a stationary field surrounding said means and having a plurality of pockets therein, manually operative means to rotate said first mentioned means, and movable means adapted to strike and drive said ball from said first mentioned means toward said field, substantially as and for the purposes specified.

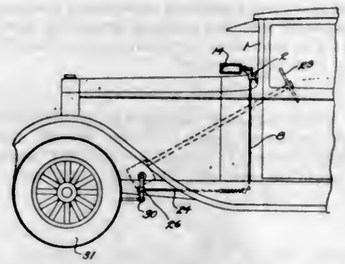
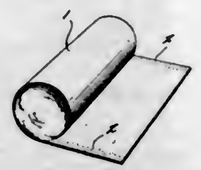
1,682,637. TOOL. HOSEA C. SMITH, Pine Bluff, Ark. Filed July 7, 1927. Serial No. 204,030. 2 Claims. (Cl. 78—48.)



1. A riveting tool comprising a stationary support, a pin thereon, a member slidably mounted on the support, a tube carried by said member and fitting over the pin, a hand operated latch for normally holding the slidable member in raised position, a handle connected with the slidable member and a second handle pivoted to the first handle and having a part for holding an object on the upper end of the tube.

1,682,638. LEFT-HAND-TURN LIGHT. JUDGE SWAN, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 31, 1927. Serial No. 195,353. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—47.)



1. In a device of the class described, a substantially vertical shaft, means for operating the shaft, means for supporting the shaft for rotation on a vehicle, an arm on the shaft, a signal journaled on the arm and comprising an illuminating pane and a signal pane disposed at an angle to each other, a pinion secured to the signal, a fixed rack wherewith the pinion meshes, the rack having inner and outer stops, the pinion engaging the inner stop to dispose the signal parallel to the line of advance of the vehicle with the illuminating pane in a substantially vertical position and exposed at the outer side of the signal, the pinion engaging the outer stop to dispose the signal at an angle to the line of advance of the vehicle with the signal pane in a substantially vertical position and exposed to view, means for connecting the arm releasably to the shaft whereby the arm may be disconnected from the shaft and swung inwardly on the shaft across the vehicle with the illuminating pane at the front of the signal and transverse to the line of advance of the vehicle, thereby to light the road ahead.

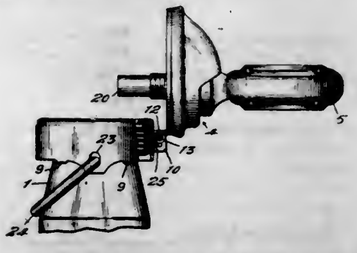
1,682,639. BLASTING PAPER. G. FARRIS TEMPLEMAN, Lexington, Ky. Filed July 10, 1926. Serial No. 121,681. 1 Claim. (Cl. 102—6.)



In a blasting charge container, a roll of blasting paper having adhesive material on its longitudinal edges, said roll being adapted so that a sheet of paper can be taken therefrom with adhesive material on two edges thereof for forming a tube by rolling the sheet from either of its said two edges whereby one of the edges may be used for sealing the sheet in tube formation.

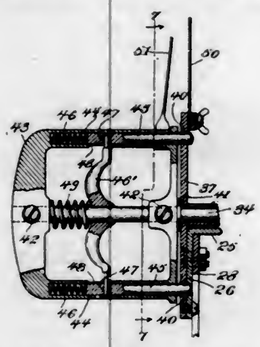
A device of the class described comprising a vertically arranged cabinet having its rear open and provided with side and end walls and a front having a door opening therein, a hinged door for closing the opening, upper and lower cross pieces at the rear of the cabinet for fastening the cabinet to a wall, a central cross piece at the rear of the cabinet, a side piece connected with the central part of each side wall and having its rear end abutting the central cross piece, each side piece having a notch in its upper rear edge, a brace having its lower end hinged to the bottom wall of the cabinet, a board hingedly connected with the upper end of the brace, a cross strip on the inner end of the board having its ends projecting beyond the side edges of the board and adapted to engage the notches in the side pieces when the board is in horizontal position, a latch on the inner end of the board and a keeper on the upper edge of the central cross piece for receiving the latch for locking the board in horizontal position.

1,682,641. RADIATOR CAP. GEORGE H. TOWNSEND, Greenwich, Conn., and HERMAN SCHLAICH, Long Island City, N. Y. Filed Mar. 18, 1925. Serial No. 16,315. 8 Claims. (Cl. 220—24.)

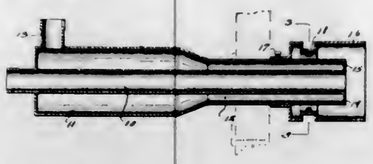
1. In combination, a radiator neck, a collar encircling and resting on said neck, a compressible gasket interposed between the collar and the top of the neck, a cap resting on the collar, a compressible gasket interposed between the cap and the collar, and means bearing against the neck and the cap for pressing them toward one another and thereby compressing both of said gaskets to seal the joints between the collar and the neck, and between the collar and the cap.

1,682,642. INCANDESCENT CATHODE. BALTHAZAR VAN DER POL, Eindhoven, Netherlands, assignor to N. V. Philips' Gloeilampen Fabrieken, Eindhoven, Netherlands. Filed May 11, 1925, Serial No. 29,526, and in the Netherlands May 21, 1924. 7 Claims. (Cl. 250—27.5.)



1. A cathode for a discharge tube comprising a pair of parallel lead-in wires, a pair of parallel filament wires parallel to the said lead-in wires and connections so that the current in each pair of wires is in the same direction.

1,682,643. SIGNAL-OPERATING MEANS. GEORGE J. VAROUTSOS, Lowell, Mass. Filed Nov. 24, 1926. Serial No. 150,506. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)



3. Signal operating means comprising in combination with a rotatably mounted shaft, a rigidly mounted plate through which the shaft extends, a substantially stirrup-shaped handle rigid with the shaft to rotate the latter, spring actuated means to lock the handle to the plate and hold the shaft against rotation, and means slidable longitudinally of the shaft within the handle and connected with the handle locking means to release the latter.

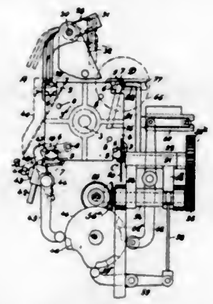
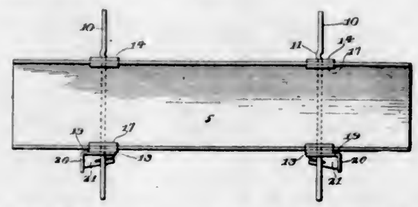
1,682,644. OIL BURNER. MELBOURNE E. VEZIE, Cushing, Okla. Filed Sept. 20, 1927. Serial No. 220,735. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—74.)



In a furnace having a fire box, an oil burner comprising a centrally disposed oil pipe, a concentrically disposed steam pipe terminating at one end with the discharge end of the oil pipe and being connected thereto at this end by an apertured wall, the apertures being arranged concentrically to the opening in the steam pipe, an air sleeve surrounding the forward end of the steam pipe and being longitudinally adjustable thereon and spaced from the steam pipe and extending beyond the same, the rear portion of the sleeve having an inwardly extending hollow rib concentric to the steam pipe and disposed closely adjacent thereto, this rib being formed with a plurality of perforations, the air inlet openings of this air sleeve being disposed within the fire box.

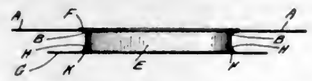
1,682,645. GAME APPARATUS. MILTON D. VOLLMER, Willow City, N. Dak. Filed Aug. 10, 1927. Serial No. 212,076. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—119.)



1. In a game apparatus, a teeter structure providing two opposite aligned guide ways having adjacent end portions opened to provide a transverse pasage, a ball movable in the guide ways toward said opening, means yieldably urged in a direction substantially at right angles with respect to said teeter structure toward said opening for striking engagement with said ball to throw said ball from movement in said guide ways when said ball reaches said opening, and means operable by said ball striking means for imparting see-saw action to said teeter structure to cause said ball to gravitate toward said opening.

1,682,646. MACHINE FOR PRODUCING WOOD SCREWS FROM PRESSED BLANKS. GUSTAV WEBER, Cologne-on-the-Rhine, Germany. Filed Nov. 30, 1925, Serial No. 72,253, and in Germany Oct. 28, 1924. 12 Claims. (Cl. 10—2.)

1. A machine for the production of wood screws from pressed blanks, comprising in combination a feeding device and a delivering device at the first working point of a circle, a thread cutting tool at the second working point of the circle, and rotating tongs at this second working point for gripping and rotating the corresponding work during the thread cutting, a circular saw for cutting the slit in the bolt head at a third working point of the circle, a tool head with cutting tools for turning off the head of the bolt at a fourth working point of the circle, means for rotating said tool head, a work holder in said circle, said work holder having four axial grooves, means for securely holding a work in each groove, means for intermittently rotating said work holder to bring each groove successively from one working point to the other and for stopping said work holder after each part rotation in front of the grooves, and means for advancing said work holder after every part rotation to push the head of one work into said rotating tongs to bring the head of another work into the range of the circular saw and to bring the head of another work into the range of said turning tools and for moving said work holder back prior to every part rotation.



1,682,647. BRAKE-BEAM SUPPORT. ROBERT D. J. BURNS WEBBER, Allentown, Pa. Filed May 19, 1927. Serial No. 192,641. 6 Claims. (Cl. 188—210.)

1. In a brake beam support of that type including a connecting element between the side frames of a truck, the combination of supporting beams disposed transversely of and below said element, and each formed with a transversely extending lateral offset and a slot spaced from the lateral offset, said offset forming the beam with an integral abutment, combined coupling and supporting members mounted on said beams and detachably engaging with said element for connecting it with said beams, and means extending through said slots for maintaining certain of said coupling members in abutting engagement with said offsets and all of said members from shifting on said beams and in coupling position with respect to said element.

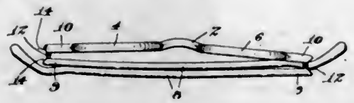
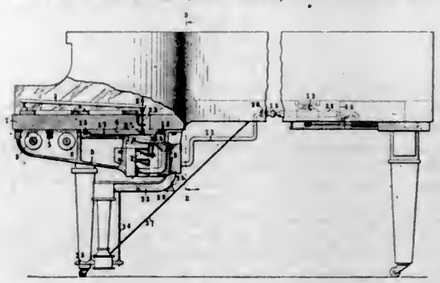
1,682,648. TOILET-SEAT COVER. JOSEPHINE M. WEED, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 5, 1928. Serial No. 259,027. 2 Claims. (Cl. 4—243.)



1. A toilet seat cover comprising a sheet of tissue paper, having an opening conforming to the opening in the seat and adapted to cover the top of the seat, a sheet of tissue paper having a similar opening and adapted to extend laterally from the opening in the seat to cover the underside of the seat, and a strip of tissue paper adapted to cover the wall of the opening extending circumferentially of the openings in the two sheets of paper and uniting them, the arrangement being such that both the upper and lower sides of the seat and the wall of the opening therein are protected with a continuous covering of tissue paper.

1,682,649. GRINDSTONE AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. JOHN L. WELLER, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Filed Dec. 11, 1926. Serial No. 154,277. 3 Claims. (Cl. 51—278.)

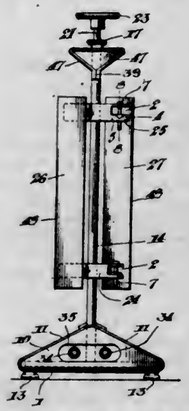


2. A method of producing abrasive stones which consists in taking a material having substantially the desired grinding qualities of the finished stone, crushing it to form a coarse aggregate; forming a plastic, self-setting, cementitious mixture, adapted when set to possess substantially the same grinding qualities as the material employed for the aggregate; mixing the aggregate with sufficient of the plastic mixture to fill all voids; and effecting the setting of the mixed mass, whereby a stone is formed substantially uniform throughout in its abrasive qualities and free from internal stresses.

1,682,650. OPHTHALMIC MOUNTING. JAMES WILSON WELSH, Providence, R. I., assignor to Bausch and Lomb Optical Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 24, 1925. Serial No. 52,001. 3 Claims. (Cl. 88—47.)

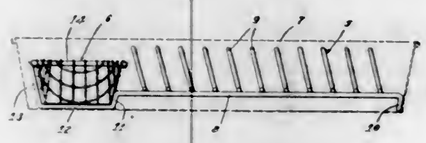
2. An ophthalmic mounting comprising a resilient lens-holding front and two temples, the lens-holding front having two lens-holding rims connected by a bridge, each lens-holding rim lying in substantially a plane, and the planes diverging from the bridge in directions towards the respective temples, each temple having a forward portion and a rear portion, the rear portions being adapted to engage opposite sides of a wearer's skull, the temples being pivoted to the lens-holding front at their forward portions, and the pivotal movement of the temples being limited, whereby the lens-holding front will be flexed into substantially a plane by the engagement of the rear portions of the temples with the opposite sides of the skull.

1,682,651. PLAYER PIANO. FRANK C. WHITE, Meriden, Conn., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Simplex Player Action Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 24, 1921. Serial No. 455,346. 15 Claims. (Cl. 84—26.)



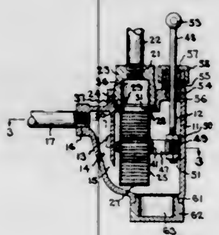
1. In a grand player piano, in combination, a manual piano action, and a pneumatic player system co-operating therewith and including a drawer supported by the piano case and horizontally movable beneath the key bed and carrying in relatively fixed relationship therewith a tracker bar and striker pneumatics, with means of connection between said pneumatics and said piano action effective for playing in different positions of said drawer.

1,682,652. IMPREGNATED MATERIAL AND METHOD OF TREATING THE SAME. LYMAN F. WHITNEY, Boston, and WILLIAM E. WHITNEY, Newton, Mass., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Rajet Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 15, 1924. Serial No. 686,464. 11 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)



1. A new article of manufacture comprising chrome leather impregnated with nitrocellulose and glycerine.

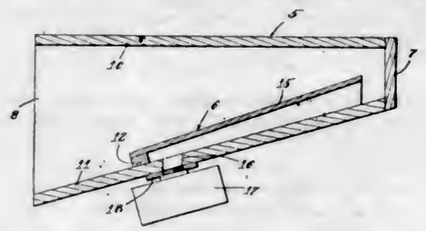
1,682,653. ELECTRIC TOASTER. FREDERICK JACKSON ALDERSON, Kingston, Ontario, Canada. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,853. 6 Claims. (Cl. 53—5.)



2. In an electric toaster the combination, with a heating element, of a base formed with inwardly and upwardly sloping sides, a head in spaced relationship to the base and formed with inwardly and downwardly sloping sides and reflector surfaces for said sides.

1,682,654. DISH DRIER. ARTHUR G. ANDREWS, Rockford, Ill., assignor to The Washburn Company, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 9, 1926. Serial No. 134,374. 3 Claims. (Cl. 141—11.)

1. A device of the character described, comprising a dish tray having a wire frame composed of longitudinal wires and cross wires thereon, said longitudinal wires being bent downwardly at one end of said frame to provide means for supporting said tray in elevated relation to its support, said longitudinal wires being bent downwardly similarly at the other end of said frame for a similar purpose and being bent outwardly to provide an end support beyond said cross wires in the form of an extension of said frame, the free ends of said longitudinal wires being bent upwardly, said wires outwardly of the cross wires being adapted to support a silverware basket.



1,682,655. OIL STRAINER. JOHN S. ARMOUR, Harrison, Ohio, assignor to The Campbell Hausfeld Company, Harrison, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 26, 1925. Serial No. 58,941. 1 Claim. (Cl. 210—167.)

A strainer comprising a casing having an inlet opening at its lower portion, an outlet opening at its upper portion, a removable plug in the latter, a perforated tube received in said casing through said outlet opening and extending in said cavity above said inlet opening, a wiping ring received about said tube and the perforations in said tube, a fork with which said ring has pivotal connections at opposite sides of said tube, a rod connecting with said fork and extending outside said casing, a packing between said casing and said rod in which said rod has axial movement for moving said wiping ring lengthwise of said tube across said perforations, said casing provided with an opening below said tube and ring, and a removable plug to close said opening and form a trap in said casing below said inlet opening.

1,682,656. LOUD-SPEAKER HORN. JOHAN O. BERGMAN, Rockford, Ill., assignor to Rockford Novelty Furniture Company, Rockford, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 9, 1926. Serial No. 100,782. 5 Claims. (Cl. 181—27.)

4. An amplifier horn comprising a main horn of a truncated bell form having a back wall and diverging side walls extending outwardly therefrom, and a secondary horn built onto one of the side walls of said main horn using said side wall as one of the side walls of said secondary horn, said secondary horn being reversed in relation to said main horn and directed toward the back wall thereof, the small end of said secondary horn being arranged to have communication with a source of sound, and the large end thereof communicating with the small end of said main horn.

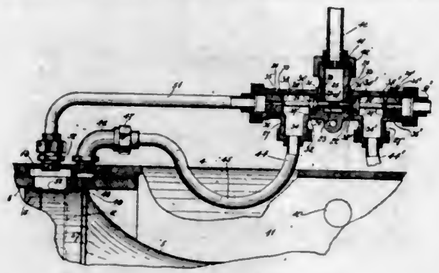
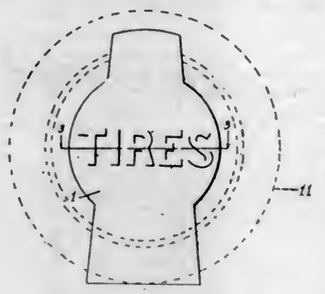
1,682,657. BRUSHLIKE IMPLEMENT FOR PAINTING WITH LIQUID SUBSTANCES. ERNST BLANK, Eitorf-on-the-Sieg, Germany. Filed Aug. 24, 1925, Serial No. 52,119, and in Germany Dec. 15, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—269.)



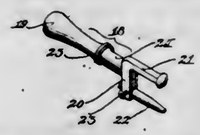
A dabbing-instrument comprising in combination a bundle of cotton-wool wicks, a tubular cover of extensible fabric enclosing said bundle of wicks so that these wicks project at both ends of said cover, and a rod having a point and incisions behind said point adapted to be inserted into the bundle of wicks to spread the same and to expand said cover of fabric.

1,682,658. TIMBER CLAMP. GEORGE B. BOSCO, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 6, 1926. Serial No. 146,653. 3 Claims. (Cl. 304—41.)



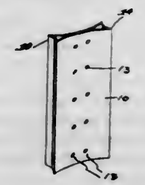
1. A clamp for securing together two crossed members comprising a bracket adapted to engage one of the members, a sling adapted to embrace the other of said members and having its ends spaced apart and adjustably secured to said bracket, and a wedge secured to the ends of said sling and spanning the gap therebetween.

1,682,659. LUBRICATING DEVICE. ARTHUR L. BAIDEHAM, Boston, Mass. Filed Aug. 29, 1925. Serial No. 53,415. 11 Claims. (Cl. 184—55.)



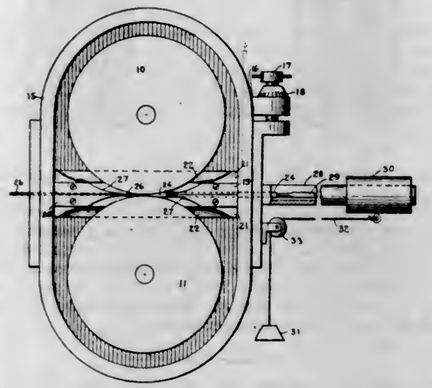
1. In combination, a reciprocating member, a bearing therefor, and means for lubricating the joint between said member and bearing when the reciprocating member is occupying a determinate position with relation to the bearing to form said joint, said means comprising a chamber which contains fluid under pressure, an oil supply, communications, one with an outlet into said joint and the other controlled by the reciprocating member to have intermittent open communication with said pressure chamber and closure therefrom as said member is reciprocated, and means whereby oil from the oil supply will be supplied to and pocketed within said other of the communications when it is closed from the pressure chamber during one phase of the reciprocation of said member and whereby also oil thus pocketed within said other of the communications will be ejected therefrom by the fluid pressure within the pressure chamber through said one of the communications first mentioned into said joint for lubricating the joint when said member is occupying its determinate position as aforesaid to form said joint and is permitting also open communication between said other of the communications and the pressure chamber.

1,682,660. DISPLAY STAND. MILTON C. BURKE, Kalamazoo, Mich., assignor to Merchants Publishing Company, Kalamazoo, Mich. Filed Sept. 14, 1925. Serial No. 56,370. 3 Claims. (Cl. 211—24.)



1. A display stand comprising a front member and a pair of strut members formed of a single piece of material scored for folding, one of the strut members being wider than the other, the narrower strut member having projecting tongues on its edge, the wider strut member having horizontally disposed U-shaped slits positioned to receive the said tongues, the partially severed portions formed by the slits constituting clutch members engaging the tongues when they are disposed through the slits, the upper ends of the struts being recessed to receive the article to be supported and the front member projecting above the struts, the struts having segmental slits terminating in their front edges providing wing-like extensions for the front member.

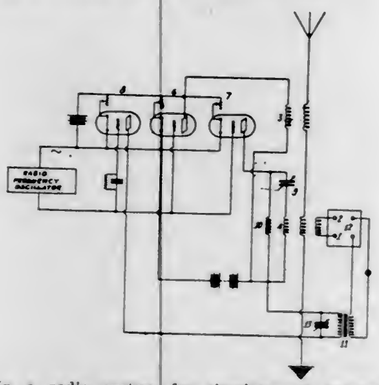
1,682,661. LIGHTER. JOSEPH T. BURNS, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to Clarence Y. Hibbs, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Aug. 23, 1927. Serial No. 214,810. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—32.)



1. A lighter including a handle of non-conducting material, a contact of low resistance material secured to the handle, and a contact of high resistance material having one end connected to the other contact.

1,682,662. NAILING BLOCK. SAMUEL D. BUTTERWORTH, Miami Beach, Fla. Filed Aug. 20, 1926. Serial No. 130,382. 5 Claims. (Cl. 72—101.)

1. A nailing block comprising a pair of oppositely disposed metal members, these members being spaced apart near their edges and having their edges turned over toward each other and into substantially abutting relation to form directly opposed nail gripping members.



1,682,663. MACHINE FOR REDUCING OR TRIMMING MATERIAL IN STRIP FORM. HERMAN E. S. CHAYES, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Chayes Dental Instrument Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 23, 1921. Serial No. 487,133. 2 Claims. (Cl. 51—82.)

1. In combination, reducing wheels for operating on opposite faces of a strip of material, relatively spaced entrance and exit guides for the strip material, a plate connecting said guides, said plate having its center portion cut away and said guides having tapered portions extending into the cut away portion of the plate and entered between the reducing wheels.

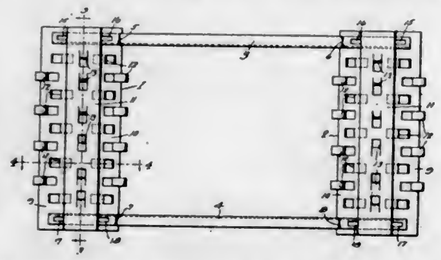
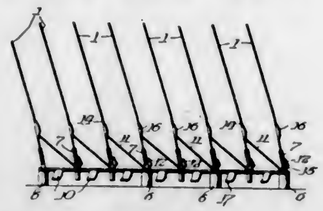
1,682,664. RADIO TRANSMISSION RECEIVING SYSTEM. HENRI CHIREIX, Paris, France. Filed Aug. 29, 1921, Serial No. 496,666, and in France Jan. 16, 1920. 3 Claims. (Cl. 250—9.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. In a radio system for simultaneous transmission and reception at the same frequency, the combination of a common unifilar transmitting and receiving antenna, a receiver tuned to the common transmitting and receiving frequency and coupled to a portion of said antenna, transmitting apparatus coupled to a second portion of said antenna in series with the first portion, means for detecting a portion of the transmitter current, and means for introducing said detected portion of current into said receiver circuit in a manner to neutralize therein effects due to transmitting current.



1,682,665. RAIL SUPPORT. WILLIAM P. DAY, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed July 13, 1927. Serial No. 205,340. 13 Claims. (Cl. 238—25.)

1. A rail support of the character described comprising a plurality of spaced parallel plates extending parallel with the track, parallel cross beams extending transversely of the track and connecting said plates and holding the same in spaced relation, concrete filling the spaces between said plates, bearing blocks disposed between two of said plates and resting loosely therebetween, a tie plate carried by each of said bearing blocks and means for fastening a rail to said bearing blocks.



1,682,666. RAIL SUPPORT. WILLIAM P. DAY, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed Aug. 1, 1927. Serial No. 209,779. 8 Claims. (Cl. 238—25.)

1. A rail support of the class described embodying a pair of hollow, parallel metallic beams, each of said beams having slots therein adjacent the ends thereof, cross bars extending through said slots and holding said beams in spaced relation, clamping members secured to said beams and cross bars and serving also to clamp a rail to each of said beams and concrete filling said beams and the space between said rails.

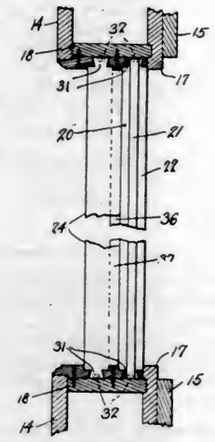
1,682,667. EXPANSIBLE LOOSE-SHEET HOLDER. JOSEPH EIFEL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 1, 1921. Serial No. 497,609. 13 Claims. (Cl. 45—2.)

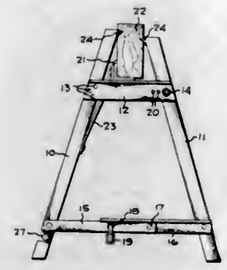


1. A filing appliance comprising in combination a series of file leaves, members movable relatively to said leaves, each having an upwardly turned end adapted to pass under the edge of one file leaf and an opposite end adapted to rest against the adjacent file leaf and thereby hold the contents of the file in place.

1,682,668. FOLDING FEED TABLE FOR PRESSES. FRED S. ENGLISH, New London, Conn. Filed Sept. 2, 1926. Serial No. 133,216. 8 Claims. (Cl. 271—61.)

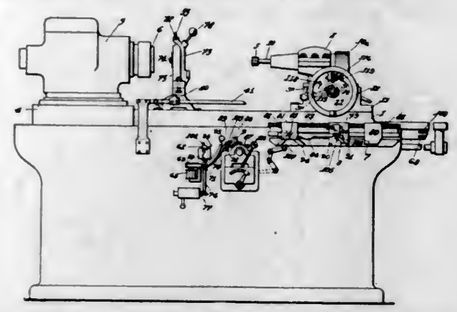
1. In a press, a feed table for the stock, comprising front and rear sections mounted on supports to permit said section to be swung into and out of active position, at least one of said sections including table leaves arranged to fold in relation to each other, for the purpose set forth.

1,682,669. WINDOW. CLAUD H. FREELAND, Lansing, Mich. Filed Aug. 17, 1925. Serial No. 50,772. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—52.)



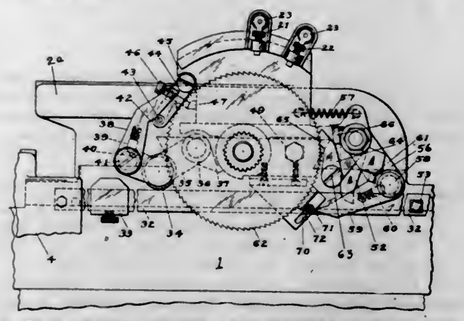
A window structure comprising a frame having spaced parallel vertically disposed strips adapted to provide dovetail grooves therebetween and within the sash runs, sashes for the frame, the side rails of the sashes being provided with dove-tail portions slidably mounted within said grooves, and fillet strips carrier within the dove-tail adapted for frictional engagement with the frame within the grooves.

1,682,670. WINDOW CONSTRUCTION. BERTRAM J. GOLDSMITH and EMIL KOEB, New York, N. Y., assignors to Perfect Window Regulator Corporation, Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 23, 1925. Serial No. 64,304. 6 Claims. (Cl. 296—44.)



1. A window frame provided with side members a combined metallic guideway and garnish strip fastened to said side members and provided with a free unsupported edge having channel members bent out of the metal thereof, a window sash having its side edges frictionally held and slidably mounted in said channel members and means whereby said guideways and garnish strips may be detachably secured to or detached from said frame while said sash in mounted therein.

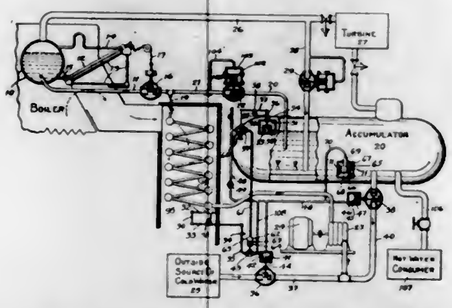
1,682,671. COLLAPSIBLE BENCH LEG. GEORGE F. GOODING, Seattle, Wash. Filed Dec. 8, 1925. Serial No. 74,084. 3 Claims. (Cl. 304—5.)



1. A collapsible bench leg of the class described embodying two leg members, toggle links connecting the lower ends of said leg members and a cross bar extending between the upper ends of said leg members said cross bar being rigidly secured to one of said leg members and pivotally secured to the other leg member.

1,682,672. GRINDING MACHINE. WALDO J. GUILD, Worcester, Mass., assignor to The Heald Machine Company, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 7, 1925. Serial No. 48,734. 21 Claims. (Cl. 51—165.)

1. The combination with a grinding machine comprising means for supporting the work, means for supporting a grinding wheel, means for producing a reciprocating motion of one of said before-mentioned means with relation to the other, means to so control said motion as to cause a relative traversing motion between the wheel and the work, one past the other in contact, or to cause withdrawal of one from contact with the other and subsequent restoration to contact, a tool for dressing the grinding wheel so mounted that it is engaged my the said wheel when the contact between the work and grinding wheel has been so interrupted, and feeding mechanism that causes the grinding wheel and work to move one relative to the other transverse to said traversing motion to maintain grinding contact; of devices operated directly by said feeding mechanism and operable on said motion-controlling means to cause the withdrawal motion and then to restore the contacting traversing relation of work and grinding wheel, whereby the grinding may proceed by a succession of uninterrupted traversing motion confined to the surface to be ground, and at a stage determined directly by the movement of the feeding mechanism, the contact of grinding wheel and work is automatically interrupted, the grinding wheel is dressed and traversing contact with the work is resumed.



1,682,673. GRINDING MACHINE. EDWARD M. TAYLOR, Worcester, Mass., assignor to The Heald Machine Company, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 25, 1926. Serial No. 83,592. 13 Claims. (Cl. 51—165.)

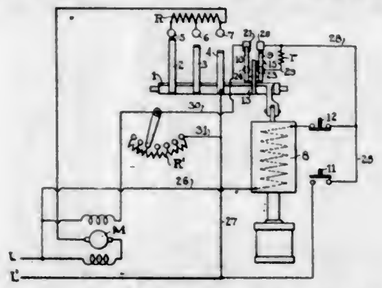
necting said feeding element to said driving member, automatic means for progressively advancing said driving member, a table mounted for movement on a machine frame providing for a traverse between the work and tool and an extended movement, and means responsive to extended movement of said table for changing the setting of the gearing connecting said feeding element to said driving member.

1,682,674. STEAM PLANT. WILLIAM THEODORE HEDLUND, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 2, 1925. Serial No. 54,096. 38 Claims. (Cl. 122—35.)

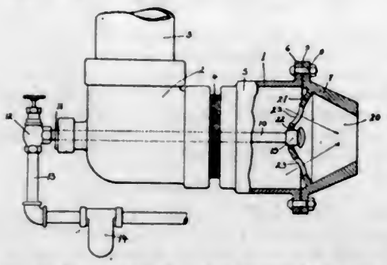
1. A feed water heater adapted to be heated by a heating agency with valve mechanism to control flow through the same responsive to temperature of the heating agency and a boiler supplied with water from said feed water heater.

10. In a steam plant, in combination, a boiler, a feed water heater therefor, means to supply cold water to said heater, an accumulator, means to supply hot water to said heater from said accumulator and automatic means responsive to variations of plant load to control the relative amounts of hot and cold water supplied.



1,682,675. REFRACTORY HEAT-INSULATING MATERIAL AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. BASIL T. HORSFIELD, Badin, N. C., assignor to Aluminum Company of America, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,893. 24 Claims. (Cl. 106—9.)

1. The method of making a refractory material, comprising melting a refractory oxide, changing the molten oxide into the form of strong hollow substantially spherical globules, and bonding the same with a refractory binder.



1,682,676. ELECTROMAGNETICALLY-OPERATED DEVICE. ALBERT J. HORTON, White Plains, N. Y., assignor to The Cutler-Hammer Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed June 22, 1918. Serial No. 241,364. 17 Claims. (Cl. 175—375.)

1. In combination, an electromagnetically operated device, an energizing switch therefor requiring manual retention in closed position, a resistance for inclusion in circuit with the winding of said device upon operation thereof to a given degree, and an auxiliary switch having a contact element attached to and movable with said device to first establish an energizing circuit therfor independent of said first-mentioned switch and to subsequently include said resistance.

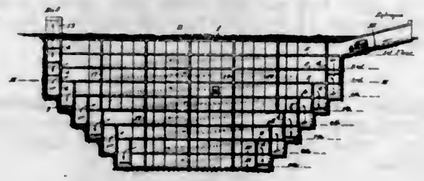
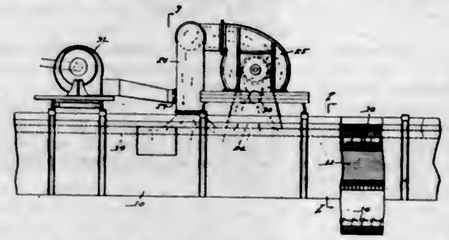
1,682,677. OIL BURNER. WALTER KAUFFMAN, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Jan. 25, 1927. Serial No. 163,522. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—76.)



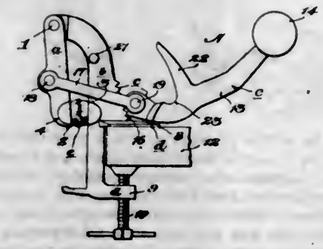
An oil burner embodying a low pressure air blast conduit, a distributing head removably carried by the outer end of said conduit and formed to include a forwardly converging mixing chamber, a wall formed integral with the inner end of said head of substantially conical form, said wall being provided with openings establishing communication between said chamber and said air blast conduit, the axes of said openings intersecting the axis of said chamber, and oil supply pipe passing longitudinally through said conduit, a spray nozzle carried by the outer end of said pipe and communicating with the inner end of said chamber, said nozzle being formed to include a discharge orifice, and a spring pressed valve serving normally to close said orifice but responsive to fluid pressures within said pipe to admit of the passage of oil through said orifice to inject the oil in spray form into said chamber.

1,682,678. FINISHING DEVICE. JOHN J. W. KENAN, Crafton, Pa. Filed Feb. 9, 1927. Serial No. 166,858. 7 Claims. (Cl. 29—79.)



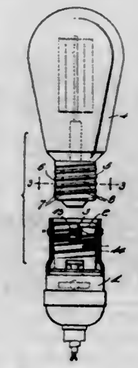
1. In a finishing device of the character described, a plane rotatable disc-member; a plurality of straight removable cutting-blades positioned on said disc-member and arranged in groups, each group comprising a straight major blade and a plurality of straight minor blades disposed in parallel relation to said major blade, each of said major and minor blades having at its outer end a lug; a clamping ring of substantially L-shaped cross-section fitting about said disc member and adapted to engage simultaneously said lugs, and a cap positioned centrally on said disc-member adapted to engage the inner ends of said major blades and of some of said minor blades.

1,682,679. SUBTERRANEAN BUILDING. CHARLES B. LAWTON, Detroit, Mich. Filed Mar. 3, 1927. Serial No. 172,307. 11 Claims. (Cl. 20—1.13.)



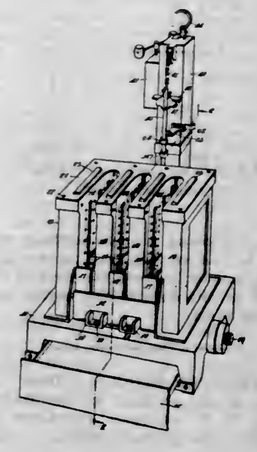
1. A subterranean building having floors gradually decreasing in area, and ramps at the marginal edges of said floors with said ramps continuous from the lowermost floor to the uppermost floor.

1,682,680. METHOD OF PREPARING A FUEL PRODUCT. HENRY F. MAUBEL, Providence, R. I. Filed Apr. 28, 1926. Serial No. 105,284. 7 Claims. (Cl. 44—28.)



1. The method of preparing fuel containing moisture and hydro-carbons, which consists in driving the oil vapors and steam coming from the fuel, together with the air or oxygen required in the treatment around back under the fuel and through the body thereof and over the heating means to heat the said vapors and introduce them into the fuel to raise the fuel to the required temperature.

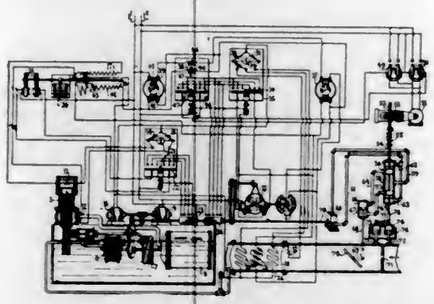
1,682,681. NUTCRACKER. FRANK E. MODLIN, Glendale, Calif. Filed June 26, 1926. Serial No. 118,788. 4 Claims. (Cl. 146—16.)



1. In a device of the character disclosed, a pair of jaws hinged together, a handle member, a link between one of said jaws and said handle, the other of said jaws being formed with an inclined wall, said handle being adapted to wedge against said inclined wall to move the link and in turn cause relative movement of the jaws.

1,682,682. SPRING LOCK FOR INCANDESCENT LAMPS. FREEMAN H. OWENS, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 17, 1926. Serial No. 95,304. 6 Claims. (Cl. 176—31.)

1. A spring locking device for incandescent lamps having a threaded base adapted to engage a screw threaded socket, said locking device including a plurality of rows of indentations formed in the screw threaded base of said lamp and a spring wire member having portions bent upon themselves forming a pair of parallel extending portions encircling said screw threaded socket and passing through an aperture therein for engaging the indentations formed in said screw threaded base for preventing said base from turning in said socket under conditions of shock vibration.



1,682,683. TOASTER AND BROILER. ANGELO C. PARODI, Jersey City Heights, N. J. Filed June 27, 1925. Serial No. 40,028. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—19.)

2. A device of the class described including holders adapted to receive material to be subjected to heat, a vertically reciprocating operating rod operatively connected with said holders, and a weight having guided vertical movement and having a connection with said rod to actuate the same, together with means to raise said weight, said weight being adapted to descend gravitationally.

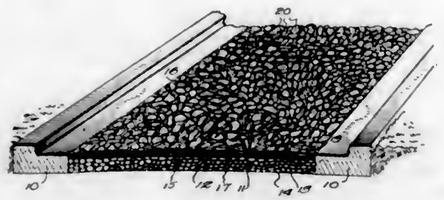
1,682,684. FUEL-FLOW REGULATOR FOR CONSTANT HEAT. CLARENCE S. PINKERTON, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to The Cutler-Hammer Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Nov. 13, 1926. Serial No. 148,235. 16 Claims. (Cl. 236—1.)

1. In apparatus for maintaining of substantially constant value the total available heat of a flow of fluid, the combination with a conduit, of an adjustable valve for controlling the rate of flow of fluid therethrough, and means for effecting automatic adjustment of said valve, said means including a calorimeter and an electric fluid meter and being adapted to operate as a function of both the total heat per unit quantity of the fluid and the quantitative rate of flow thereof, and said means being also adapted to compensate for variations in temperature, pressure and saturation conditions of said fluid.

1,682,685. CHAIR ROCKER. CONOE C. RODERY, Hornersville, Mo. Filed Apr. 16, 1925. Serial No. 23,635. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—74.)

1. A rocker comprising a base, portions returned over said base, ribs in contact with each other and rising from said portions at a point between the sides of the base, and integral guards at the ends of the rocker engaging said ribs to reinforce them.



1,682,686. SPELLING BLOCKS. JOHN RUTHERFORD, Slingerlands, N. Y., assignor to The Embossing Company, Albany, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 11, 1927. Serial No. 190,410. 4 Claims. (Cl. 35—9.)

3. A spelling-block outfit of the kind described for use by children as a toy, comprising a plurality of rectangular base blocks of uniform size and a plurality of smaller letter blocks of uniform size whereby a plurality of letter blocks may be placed on a single base block, each base block having a plurality of aligned shallow recesses in its upper face and each letter block having a short flat projection on its lower face adapted to fit into the base block recesses.

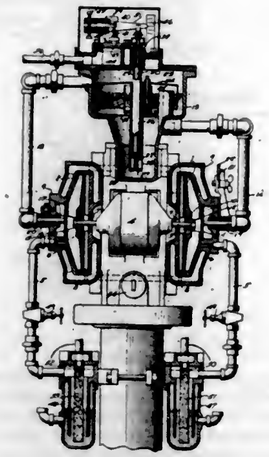
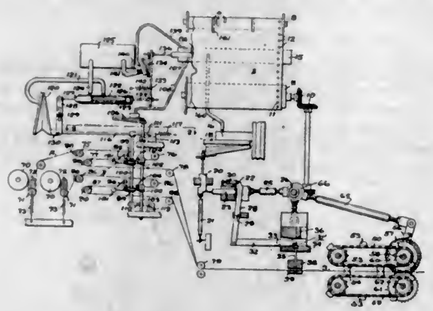
1,682,687. CONCRETE BLOCK OR SLAB AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. FRANK W. SAMPSON, Atlanta, Ga. Filed July 28, 1926. Serial No. 125,567. 3 Claims. (Cl. 94—24.)



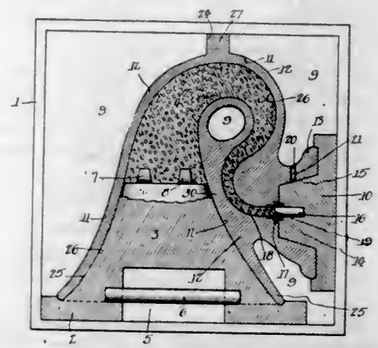
1. The method of making concrete structures which consists in placing a base containing aggregates and an insufficient quantity of mortar to fill the normal voids of the aggregates, vibrating the aggregates of the base whereby the mortar content thereof will be sufficient to fill the voids, placing a surface course containing mortar and aggregates on the base before the latter has set, and vibrating the aggregates of the surface course.

1,682,688. HORSESHOE AND CALK. WILLIAM T. SHEPERDSON, Paxton, Mass.; John William Sheperdson executor of said William T. Sheperdson, deceased. Filed Oct. 28, 1926. Serial No. 144,840. 3 Claims. (Cl. 168—41.)



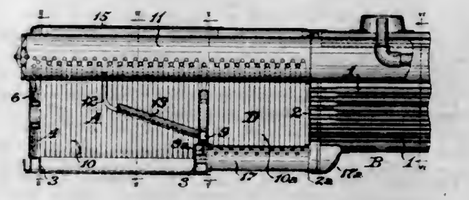
1. As an article of manufacture, a replaceable horseshoe calk having a central longitudinal plain web of substantially uniform thickness, and having transverse triangular end walls connecting the ends of the web to the base for strengthening the web, the surfaces connecting the interior surfaces of the web and end walls all diverging from each other from the center outwardly, whereby the centers of the end walls at their bases are thicker than their edges, and said calk having positive means for preventing it from turning.

1,682,689. APPARATUS FOR REGULATING THE COMPOSITION OF MIXED GASES. CHARLES H. SMOOT, Maplewood, N. J. Filed Feb. 2, 1927. Serial No. 165,397. 14 Claims. (Cl. 236—15.)



1. In a regulator for controlling the composition of mixed gases, means for producing under like conditions two varying pressures, one affected by the density of the gas whose composition is to be regulated, and one unaffected by such density, and means responsive to both of such pressures for regulating the composition of the gas to maintain a definite relation between said pressures.

1,682,690. METHOD OF MANUFACTURING NOTE SHEETS. CHARLES F. STODDARD, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Piano Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Dec. 8, 1914, Serial No. 876,147, Patent No. 1,432,424, dated Oct. 17, 1922. Divided and this application filed July 29, 1921. Serial No. 488,495. 8 Claims. (Cl. 33—18.)

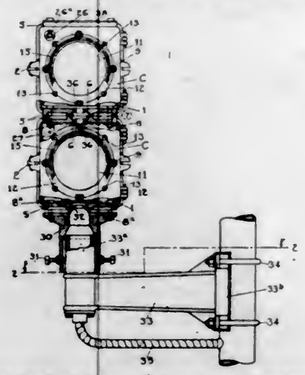


1. The method of making note sheets for musical instruments by marking informative indicia on and making note perforations related thereto in said note sheets which includes moving said note sheet, subjecting said moving note sheet to a marking operation and then, after a predetermined increment of marking has been effected, beginning the making of note perforations at a point properly related to the informative indicia previously marked on said sheet.

1,682,691. CORE FOR CASTING AMPLIFYING HORNS. FRED W. TEMPLE, Cicero, Ill., assignor of one-half to William P. Crockett, Chicago, Ill., and one-fourth to Alfred Marchev, Cicero, Ill. Filed June 1, 1925. Serial No. 33,937. 8 Claims. (Cl. 18—45.)

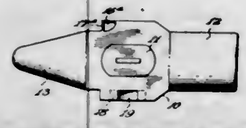
1. A core for use in casting an amplifying horn for a loud speaker reproducer, which is flexible and composed of sponge rubber.

1,682,692. LOCOMOTIVE BOILER. ALFRED W. BRUCE, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 7, 1927. Serial No. 166,391. 8 Claims. (Cl. 122—94.)



1. In a locomotive boiler, the combination of a barrel; a fire box, comprising a combustion chamber and a fire chamber; a back head, having a rigid outer sheet and closing the rear of the fire chamber; a drum, supported, and fitting freely, in the back head, and extending forwardly therefrom into the barrel; water tubes forming the sides of the fire and combustion chamber; a hollow mud ring, communicating with the water tubes of the fire chamber; a tube sheet secured to the barrel and closing the rear of the steam space thereof; a feed water communication, leading from the barrel to the mud ring and communicating with the combustion chamber water tubes; and a wrapper sheet secured to the barrel and to the fire box, and performing the functions of rigidly connecting said members together, and forming a housing covering the roof of the fire box.

1,682,693. SUPPORT FOR LIGHT SIGNALS. SALISBURY M. DAY, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to General Railway Signal Company, Rochester, N. Y. Original application filed Oct. 17, 1921, Serial No. 508,194. Divided and this application filed Dec. 29, 1924. Serial No. 758,666. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—52.)



1. An adjustable mounting for light signal casings, comprising, a socket member having an upwardly tapering conical internal surface, a substantially cylindrical perforated support of smaller diameter than the largest internal diameter of said socket member universally adjustable therein, bolts threaded into the walls of said socket member for clamping said member to said support, a central perforated ball member on the upper surface of said socket member, a signal casing having a matching perforated socket member, and adjusting and fixing means for, and spaced from, said ball and socket members.

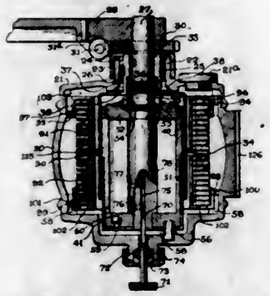
1,682,694. COMBINATION TOOL. THORNTON W. LOSEY, Silver Grove, Ky. Filed May 13, 1927. Serial No. 191,171. 2 Claims. (Cl. 7—9.)

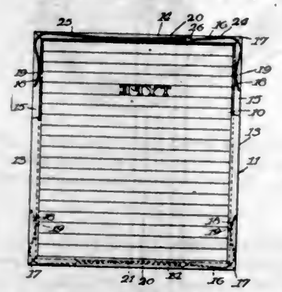


1. A tool comprising an elongated head having a handle projecting therefrom intermediate its ends, and having a side portion bulged and formed at an end of the bulge with an opening which is closed at its outer adjacent sides by thin walls which are angularly disposed.

1,682,695. OPTICIAN'S CABINET. JOSEPH A. MINER, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to American Metal Furniture Co., Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed July 5, 1927. Serial No. 203,467. 4 Claims. (Cl. 312—153.)

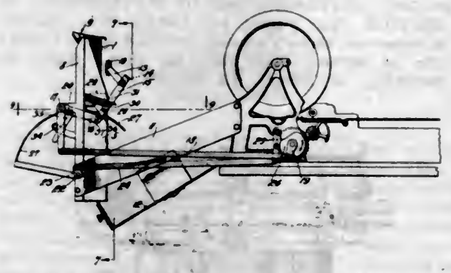
1. The combination with a cabinet forming a storage chamber having an inwardly and upwardly swinging closure door, of an inclined storage tray mounted in said compartment, and a pair of links pivotally connected to said tray near the upper and lower edges respectively thereof, said links being pivotally connected to a support within the compartment and the forward lower link being V shaped, substantially as described, whereby the tray will be supported, in its retracted position, beyond the arc of movement of the swinging closure and be projectable outwardly and downwardly through the compartment opening.

1,682,696. CLOSING AND RETARDING DEVICE. PORTER S. MORGAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Morgan, Blodgett, Morgan, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 28, 1924. Serial No. 688,943. 39 Claims. (Cl. 16—58.)



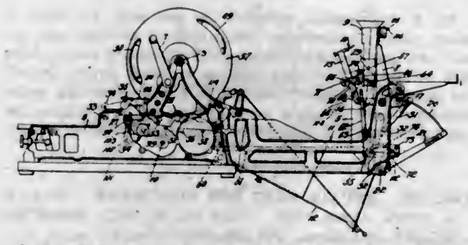
1. A hydraulic door check and closer comprising in combination a casing, a helical door-closing spring; cylindrical spring carriers covering and connected to the ends of the spring and provided with exterior and interior cam lugs; lugs set in the casing to engage the exterior lugs of the spring carriers whereby one of the spring carriers, upon being rotated from a given point in one direction, is moved out of frictional contact with other parts and secured against further such rotation relatively to the casing, and whereby the other spring carrier, upon being rotated from a given point in the opposite direction, is similarly moved out of frictional contact and secured against further rotation; a cylindrical spring driver positioned within the spring and spring carriers and provided with cam lugs to engage the interior cam lugs of the spring carriers whereby upon rotation of the spring driver from a given point in one direction one of the spring carriers is picked up, removed from frictional contact with other parts, and rotated by ann with the spring driver, and whereby upon rotation of the spring driver from a given point in the opposite direction the other spring carrier is so picked up, removed from contact and rotated; hydraulic checking means positioned within the spring driver and comprising a cylinder, a wing piston mounted to oscillate therein and adapted to move freely in one direction but against hydraulic resistance in the opposite direction; and means for operatively interconnecting the spring driver, the checking means, and the door.

1,682,697. CONCRETE WELL STRAINER. THOMAS W. THORPE and GEORGE E. THORPE, Des Moines, Iowa, assignors to Thorpe Brothers Well Company, a Copartnership composed of George E. Thorpe, Walter T. Thorpe, and Thomas W. Thorpe, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Aug. 18, 1927. Serial No. 213,830. 5 Claims. (Cl. 166—5.)



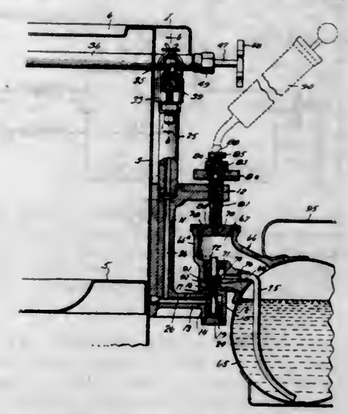
1. A well strainer comprising a tubular concrete wall for forming a support, vertical ribs on the outside of said support, a marginal flange on said support connecting the lower ends of the ribs together, the wall of the support between said ribs having openings therein and strainer sections placed between said ribs and spaced from said wall.

1,682,698. TEMPORARY TYPE-PAGE LOCK. EARLE WILLIAMSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 5, 1927. Serial No. 173,019. 9 Claims. (Cl. 101—404.)



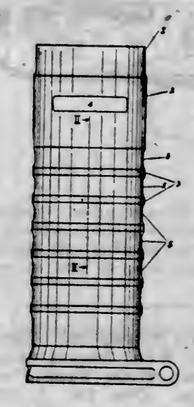
7. A frame for temporarily holding a type page, comprising rigid frame sections at opposite sides of said type page, U-shaped spring clips extending across opposite sides of said type page, and interlocking means for connecting the ends of said clips with said frame sections for holding said type page in assembled relation.

1,682,699. INTERLEAVING DEVICE. ERNEST JOSEPH BRASSEUR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 15, 1927. Serial No. 213,163. 16 Claims. (Cl. 34—1.)



1. A device for inserting separators between successively delivered sheets, comprising means for holding a collection of separators above a table receiving the sheets, means for releasing a separator from the collection to descend on its end to a sheet on the receiving table, and means for exerting force against the descended separator to assist it to a position parallel to the table.

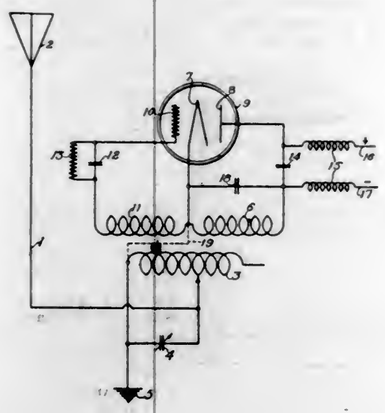
1,682,700. CONTROL MECHANISM FOR INTERLEAVING DUPLICATING MACHINES. ERNEST JOSEPH BRASSEUR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 3, 1927. Serial No. 217,312. 16 Claims. (Cl. 34—1.)



1. A control mechanism for duplicating machines provided with means for delivering sheets successively, means for determining whether a sheet is in position to be fed to the sheet delivery means, means for holding a collection of separators, and means for placing a separator on each delivered sheet, comprising, means operative upon the exhaustion of separators for preventing the operation of the sheet delivery means, and means for preventing the operation of the separator placing means when no sheet is in position to be fed to the sheet delivery means.

1,682,701. LIQUID-FUEL STOVE. LEE S. CHADWICK, Shaker Heights, and MARC RESEK, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, assignors to Perfection Stove Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 19, 1926. Serial No. 149,353. 25 Claims. (Cl. 126—44.)

1. In a liquid fuel stove of the class described, the combination of a fuel conduit leading to the burner, said conduit terminating at its receiving end in a seat that surrounds said end, a fuel reservoir normally requiring detachment from the stove for filling, and having an outlet for application to said seat, means urging the reservoir toward the conduit thereby to effect a fluid tight joint between the outlet of the reservoir and the seat, and means for introducing air under pressure into the reservoir.



1,682,702. METAL-COATED VALVE SLEEVE AND METHOD OF COATING THE SAME. HENRY J. EDWARDS, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 21, 1925. Serial No. 76,688. 7 Claims. (Cl. 123—75.)

1. In a sleeve for an internal combustion engine, the combination of a metallic body portion, and a metallic coating thereon composed of a material different from the material of said body portion, said coating being in the form of deposited metal lands.

1,682,703. RADIO APPARATUS. DONALD G. LITTLE, Edgewood, Pa., assignor to Radio Corporation of America, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 8, 1920. Serial No. 415,523. 14 Claims. (Cl. 250—36.)

10. In a radio system, a tunable oscillation circuit, a circuit coupled thereto, said coupled circuit having a tuning device in addition to the coupling, the natural period of said coupled circuit being outside the range of frequencies to which said oscillation circuit is tunable.

1,682,704. FIREARM. CRAWFORD C. LOOMIS, Ilion, N. Y., assignor to Remington Arms Company, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 12, 1925. Serial No. 74,946. 7 Claims. (Cl. 42—25.)

1. In a firearm, in combination a longitudinally movable shell ejector, a movable actuator for said ejector, a fixed stop limiting the movement of said ejector actuator, and a spring interposed between said ejector actuator and said fixed stop.

1,682,705. LIQUID DISPENSER. THOMAS M. MANSON and CHARLES H. WARD, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, assignors to Clear Vision Pump Company, Limited, Toronto, Canada. Filed Feb. 3, 1927. Serial No. 165,598. 13 Claims. (Cl. 221—99.)

9. In a liquid dispenser, the combination with a measuring chamber and an overflow, of means for temporarily closing the overflow entrance, and means connecting the chamber with said overflow and adapted to form therewith a siphon to withdraw the liquid from the chamber when the overflow entrance is closed.

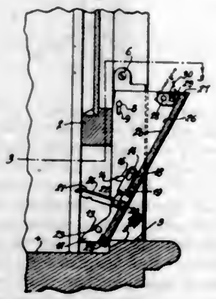
1,682,706. DETERMINATION OF WAVE-ENERGY DIRECTION. MAX MASON, New London, Conn., assignor to Submarine Signal Company, Portland, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Filed June 25, 1919. Serial No. 306,681½. 40 Claims. (Cl. 181—26.)

37. A compensator adapted for use with receivers of wave energy, comprising two auditory devices, one for each ear, and means for transmitting the wave energy from each receiver to the corresponding auditory device, including separate manually adjustable fluid conducting paths connected with the said auditory devices for bringing the oscillations therein into phase, substantially as described.

1,682,707. REPAIR PART FOR FOOTWEAR. WILLIAM A. OWEN, Akron, Ohio. Filed Jan. 6, 1922. Serial No. 527,337. 5 Claims. (Cl. 36—30.)



1. A molded article of manufacture comprising a layer of completely vulcanized rubber composition, a layer of relatively unvulcanized rubber composition having an attaching surface, an intermediate layer of fabric vulcanized to said layers of rubber composition, and a removable protective covering adhesively secured to the attaching surface of said unvulcanized layer of rubber composition.

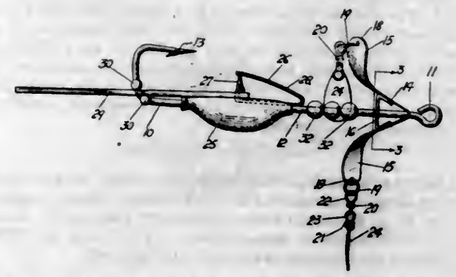
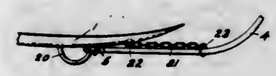
1,682,708. AUTOMATIC WINDOW VENTILATOR. VINCENT PETILLI, Bronx, N. Y., assignor to Butler Mfg. Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 26, 1928. Serial No. 288,439. 5 Claims. (Cl. 98—99.)



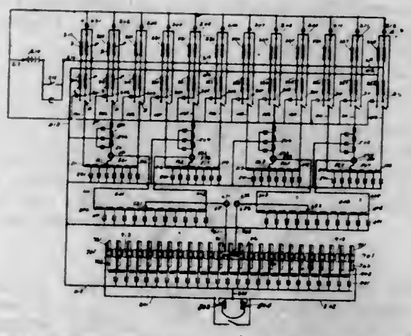
1. A ventilator for windows embodying a pair of vertically movable and swingable end plates, each of which is provided in its upper portion with a substantially upright slot and in its intermediate portion with another slot, studs adapted to be rigidly mounted with respect to a window frame and extends through said slots, an air deflecting element supported at its opposite ends by said end plates and adapted to extend transversely of the window frame, a trigger pivoted to each end plate and adapted to extend into the path of a window sash of said frame when the sash is elevated, and a link pivoted to each trigger and also pivoted to the stud which extends through the intermediate slot of the corresponding end plate.

1,682,709. FISHING REEL. CHARLES T. PFLUEGER, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Enterprise Manufacturing Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 19, 1924. Serial No. 720,900. 9 Claims. (Cl. 242—84.5.)



2. In an automatic fishing reek a reel structure, a rotary spool therein, a brake, a brake operating lever attached to the reel structure and extending outwardly therefrom, a latch secured to the lever near the outer extremity thereof and extending toward the reel structure whereby pressure may be applied to the latch to depress the lever, and a keeper on the reel structure with which the free end of the latch is engageable.

1,682,710. SPINNER. CHARLES T. PFLUEGER, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Enterprise Manufacturing Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 19, 1924. Serial No. 720,902. 6 Claims. (Cl. 43—45.)

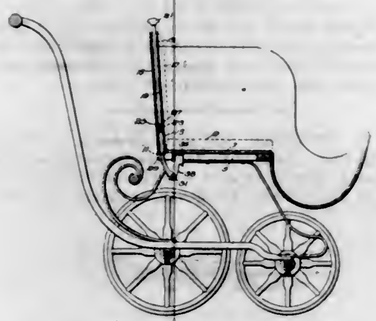


1. A spinner comprising a shank, a main spinner journaled on said shank, said spinner having spaced blades, a brace between the blades having an elongated slot therein through which the shank passes, and secondary spinners swiveled on links connected to said blades.

1,682,711. STRIKER SPOON. CHARLES T. PFLUEGER, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Enterprise Manufacturing Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 23, 1926. Serial No. 90,012. 1 Claim. (Cl. 43—45.)

A fish lure comprising a spoon, a spring catch attached to the spoon, a flexible element also attached to the spoon, a ring on the end of the flexible element, and a fish hook, the shank of which is movable through the ring, the hook being provided with an eye adapted to be engaged by the catch when the hook is adjacent the spoon, and adapted to act as a stop to prevent withdrawal of the hook from the ring.

1,682,712. ELECTRIC COMPENSATOR. GEORGE W. PIERCE, Cambridge, Mass., assignor to Submarine Signal Company, Portland, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Filed June 25, 1919. Serial No. 306,689½. 7 Claims. (Cl. 177—386.)



2. An electric compensator comprising a series of retardation branch lines and a retardation line common to all of said branch lines and connected thereto, each of said lines comprising inductances in series and capacities in shunt and arranged in sections, the ratio of the inductance to the capacity per section of each of the branch lines being n^2 times the corresponding ratio for the sections of the retardation line common to said branch lines as described.

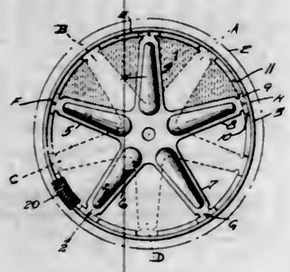
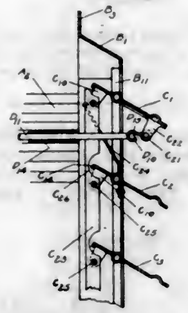
1,682,713. NORMAL-PRESSURE ACID-SLUDGE HYDROLYSIS. ERNEST W. ROTH, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 13, 1927. Serial No. 183,594. 5 Claims. (Cl. 23—173.)



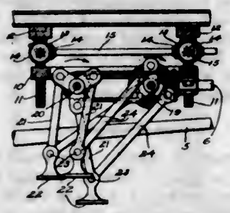
1. The method of separating acid sludge into useful constituents which comprises; heating a supernatant layer of acid sludge by means of heat applied to an underlying layer of dilute acid having a density greater than that of said sludge, said acid being maintained at its simmering temperature during said heating and without material agitation of said sludge layer.

1,682,714. SEAT CONSTRUCTION FOR BABY CARRIAGES. HAROLD F. SHAW, Leominster, Mass., assignor to F. A. Whitney Carriage Company, Leominster, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 30, 1926. Serial No. 125,915. 3 Claims. (Cl. 280—47.)



2. In combination with a seat having at the rear edge thereof a back hinged thereto, a spring-controlled rod mounted in and passing vertically through said back and having its upper end projecting therefrom at the top edge for manual reciprocation against said spring substantially in the plane of said back, the lower end also projecting, and a rack-like structure on the bottom of the seat forwardly of the rear edge thereof to cooperate with said lower end whereby said back may be secured in adjusted angular position relative to said seat.

1,682,715. TOY WHEEL. CLIFFORD M. WATROUS, East Hampton, Conn., assignor to Gong Bell Manufacturing Company, East Hampton, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed May 8, 1924. Serial No. 711,825. 2 Claims. (Cl. 301—63.)

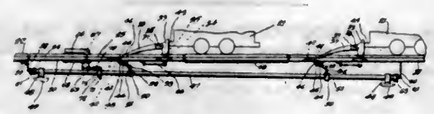


1. A wheel for toys formed from a disk of metal consisting of felloe section having a deformed peripheral edge providing a smooth running section or tread and having interiorly thereof, a comparatively long flange of uniform shape throughout, and a spider like spoke section blanked out of the disc and reunited to the flange the ends of the spokes overlapping the flange at points other than those from which they were blanked out.

1,682,716. CONTROL SHUTTER FOR ENGINE RADIATORS. DANIEL M. WINANS, Binghamton, N. Y., assignor to The Brewer-Titchener Corporation, Cortland, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 15, 1925. Serial No. 62,616. 2 Claims. (Cl. 189—62.)

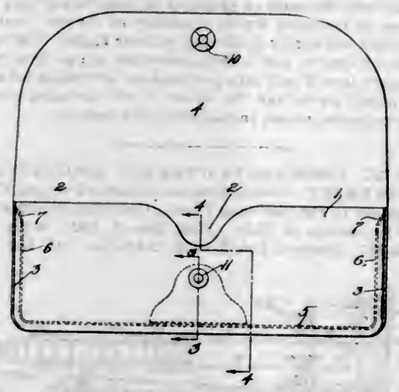
1. A shutter apparatus arranged to control air flow through an engine radiator core, comprising a frame serving to house a plurality of shutter slats adapted to swing between open and closed positions, tie-bar means interconnecting the several slats, slat actuating means including an elongated link pin operatively connected to rock in unison with the slat movements, said actuating means further comprising a reciprocative push rod having one end provided with an intermediary link adapted to pivotally engage and slide lengthwise of said pin, and guide means associated with said radiator core serving to constrain lateral movement on part of the link end of said rod.

1,682,717. TRACTOR ATTACHMENT. ARTHUR CORONA, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Nathan Hirsch, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 4, 1926. Serial No. 152,639. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—8.)



A tractor attachment, including a support, a pair of crank shafts adapted to turn in the same direction, links pivotally connected to the crank arms of one of said shafts, feet pivotally connected to the lower ends of said links, having extended ground-engaging portions, and other links connecting the crank arms of the other shaft, with their feet at the point of pivotal connection with the first-mentioned links.

1,682,718. COMBINATION AUTOMATIC CAR FEEDING AND STOPPING MECHANISM. GLENN W. MERRITT, Bowerston, Ohio. Filed Oct. 18, 1926. Serial No. 142,476. 22 Claims. (Cl. 214—126.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a trackway, and cars adapted for movement along said trackway, of a bumper structure disposed between the rails of the trackway, said bumper structure including a pivotally supported bumper, means for releasably holding said bumper in the path of movement of the cars, means for disengaging said holding means to permit said bumper to pivot by movement of the cars from bumping position, and means operable on said bumper structure for resetting the bumper in the path of movement of the cars.

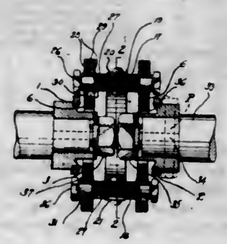
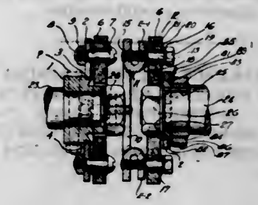
1,682,719. EYEGLASS CASE. CARL G. ALDRICH, Somerville, Mass., assignor to Continental Optical Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed May 5, 1926. Serial No. 106,918. Divided and this application filed May 26, 1927. Serial No. 194,474. 5 Claims. (Cl. 206—5.)



1. A case comprising a leather pouch and a reinforcing bow frame consisting of a strip of sheet metal fitted within said pouch and provided at its side edges with barbs embedded in the walls of the latter whereby said frame holds itself in place within the pouch and supports the walls thereof that are opposite its edges in spaced-apart relationship.

1,682,720. COUPLING. JOSEPH BIJUR, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 30, 1919. Serial No. 293,655. 12 Claims. (Cl. 64—96.)



1. In a coupling, in combination, a plurality of coaxial circular spring plates, each said plate having deflections at diametrically opposite parts of its periphery for contact intermediate the said deflections of the succeeding plate, said plates being otherwise spaced from each other, and fasteners one for securing each said deflection to the part of the contiguous plate in contact therewith.

1,682,721. COUPLING AND THE LIKE. JOSEPH BIJUR, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 5, 1921. Serial No. 505,593. 20 Claims. (Cl. 64—96.)

1. In a coupling, in combination, a pair of hub members, flexible driving members corresponding one to each hub member and secured thereto near opposite ends of a diameter, a transmission band member between said flexible members and of width materially smaller than the distance between the two flexible members, and inner diameter sufficiently large for convenient access of a wrench to tighten a fastening nut, and lugs extending outwardly from said band and projecting from opposite edges thereof and in line with each other, and securing means fastening said lugs to said flexible members at points midway between the points of connection of the latter to the hub members, said securing means being accessible for application and removal thereof from the end of the coupling.

1,682,722. COUPLING AND THE LIKE. JOSEPH BIJUR, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 23, 1922. Serial No. 531,009. 33 Claims. (Cl. 64—96.)

1. Zimmerman, Harry C., Washington, D. C. Draft coupling. 1,680,436; Aug. 7.
Zabaty, Joseph, assignor to A C Spark Plug Company, Flint, Mich. Flexible shaft connection. 1,680,000; Aug. 7.
Zucker, George L., East Orange, N. J. Weighing mechanism. 1,680,192; Aug. 7.
Zweig, Joseph, Brooklyn, assignor to Metropolitan Lamp Co. Inc., New York, N. Y. Lighting fixture. Des. 75,995; Aug. 7.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF INVENTIONS

FOR WHICH

PATENTS WERE ISSUED ON THE 7TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1928.

NOTE.—Arranged in accordance with the first significant character or word of the name (in accordance with city and telephone directory practice). Includes patents, reissues, and designs.

Abrading apparatus. R. Roscoe. 1,679,376; Aug. 7.
Abrading apparatus. W. R. Sanders. 1,679,378; Aug. 7.
Absorbent-pad machine. G. Weiss. 1,680,268; Aug. 7.
Accordion. A. Lanka. 1,680,052; Aug. 7.
Acid and acetates, Manufacture of acetic. P. A. and H. G. Smith. 1,679,994; Aug. 7.
Acid or hydrochloric acid, Apparatus for the formation of nitric. G. Guadagni. 1,680,019; Aug. 7.
Aeroplane. H. Grunewald. 1,679,356; Aug. 7.
Airship, Dirigible. A. Faber. 1,679,565; Aug. 7.
Airship, Gas-supported. K. Siller. 1,679,550; Aug. 7.
Alarm device for alarm valves, Constant-. H. G. Carlson. 1,679,404; Aug. 7.
Alkyl cumaranes and making same. H. Jordan. 1,679,664; Aug. 7.
Alloy, Heat-resisting. A. L. Boegehold. 1,680,007; Aug. 7.
Alloy, Light metal. J. A. Gann. 1,680,262; Aug. 7.
Alloy of high resistance, Aluminum. H. Bénit. 1,680,004. Aug. 7.
Alloys and improved product, Treating copper. V. O. Homerberg and D. N. Shaw. 1,680,045-6; Aug. 7.
Aluminum sulphate, Making. R. M. Meiklejohn. 1,679,366; Aug. 7.
Ammonia from synthesis gases, Removing. R. E. Slade and K. Gordon. 1,679,792; Aug. 7.
Amusement device. I. Noda. 1,680,167; Aug. 7.
Anchor, Rail. R. A. Blair. 1,679,646; Aug. 7.
Andiron. H. J. Gross. Des. 75,973; Aug. 7.
Antenna support. M. L. Lujan. 1,679,675; Aug. 7.
Anticreeping device for railway rails. E. F. Holinger. 1,679,903; Aug. 7.
Antislipping device for stands and the like. R. Wörsching. 1,679,461; Aug. 7.
Artificial hand, Plastic. H. E. Hodgson. 1,680,022; Aug. 7.
Aryl-azo-diaminopyridines useful as bactericides and making the same. I. Ostromislensky. 1,680,108; Aug. 7.
Ash furnace, Soda-. D. R. Means. 1,679,486; Aug. 7.
Ash gate. L. E. Striegel. 1,679,549; Aug. 7.
Attachment mechanism. L. E. Roby. 1,679,628; Aug. 7.
Auto signal. A. and J. R. Parke. 1,679,681; Aug. 7.
Automatic register. G. Pucci. 1,679,542; Aug. 7.
Automobile accessory, Receptacle-holding. S. C. Fish. 1,679,715; Aug. 7.
Automobile signal. J. F. Rauschelbach. 1,679,944; Aug. 7.
Automobile wheel. J. H. Wagenhorst. 1,679,453; Aug. 7.
Automobile wheel. J. H. Wagenhorst. 1,679,455; Aug. 7.
Awning. G. S. Henritzy. 1,679,862; Aug. 7.
Awning, Automobile. A. Olson and W. R. McDermott. 1,679,443; Aug. 7.
Bag: See—
Garment bag.
Bag holder. J. Thompson. 1,679,450; Aug. 7.
Baker, Square. E. H. Sebring. Des. 75,988; Aug. 7.
Balance, Sash. S. E. Snyder. 1,679,746; Aug. 7.
Bank, Money. O. F. Baughman and J. Habart. 1,679,644; Aug. 7.
Battery: See—
Storage battery.
Battery box. W. E. Glancy. 1,679,657; Aug. 7.
Battery connection. H. E. Frasier. 1,679,716; Aug. 7.
Battery-lead connection or clamp. J. P. and H. J. Bihl. 1,680,201; Aug. 7.
Bead-covering machine. C. H. Desautels. 1,680,091; Aug. 7.
Bearings, Making. C. W. Johnson. 1,679,772; Aug. 7.
Bed, Invalid. S. H. Steinberg and J. E. Snyder. 1,679,635; Aug. 7.
Belt, Cord. N. E. Kimball. 1,679,575; Aug. 7.
Beveling and sealing clamp. T. Midgley. 1,680,059; Aug. 7.
Bill folder. B. Rolfs. 1,679,877; Aug. 7.
Blasting apparatus, Sand-. C. F. Motz. 1,679,369; Aug. 7.
Blow-out preventer. L. M. Crans. 1,679,962; Aug. 7.
Blowing machine for the manufacture of hats. E. Brecht and R. Fugmann. 1,679,851; Aug. 7.
Board: See—
Game board. Wall board.
Board bolt, Running-. G. C. Davis. 1,680,015; Aug. 7.
